Will Build 24-Foot Wide Streets

Board Approves Centex Quadroplex Development

Two weeks after rejecting revised plans for the Centex Corporation quadroplex development behind Alexian Brothers Medical Center, the Elk Grove Village Board of Trustees has approved the plans.

The board approved the plans Tuesday night after receiving a plan commission recommendation which urged that a proposal to build 24-foot wide streets be accepted.

Last month the plan commission had recommended the board reject the revised plans because of inadequate parking, turnaround areas and width of streets. The commission had urged the village to require 28-foot streets — Centex proposed only 20-foot streets in the 152-unit development.

However, the Centex proposals to widen the streets to 24-feet, prohibit on-street parking and provide adequate off-street parking were accepted Tuesday night by the plan commission.

THE PLAN commission reconsidered the proposal after village board members indicated last week they were receptive to a proposal to reduce the 28-foot requirement for the development.

Board members indicated the 28-foot requirement for the development is unfair since there are other 24-foot streets in the village. They also noted that Centex got caught in an unusual situation in its plans for the development, known as "Parcel C" in the planned unit development site west of Arlington Heights Road and north of Biesterfeld Road.

Centex revised its plans for the area after nearby homeowners protested the quadroplex plans. The homeowners objected to the plans primarily because of their low cost in comparison to other homes in the area.

After Centex revised its plans, homeowners expressed support for the new plans at a plan commission hearing Dec. 16. The revised plans, which showed a probable $5,000 per unit increase in selling price, were taken under advisement by the commission at the time.

THE REVISED plans involved a change in building design through use of mansard roofs and brick exteriors. The redesigned units' selling price was estimated at slightly under $30,000, compared to the $23,900 to $24,900 price of quadroplex units in Centex' "Parcel E" in the village.

The revised plans which apparently caused the problems cited by the plan commission involved removing three proposed deadend streets in the northwest corner of the development in favor of one crescent-shaped street.

Domanico Back In School Board Race

Albert Domanico is back in the race for the board of education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Domanico, of 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village, said yesterday he will be a candidate for election to the board in the April 8 election. He was defeated last year by Erwin Poklacki in a race for the board.

"I'm tempted to say I'm running out of habit," Domanico said. He served on the board for 16 months during 1969 and 1970, but did not seek reelection in 1970 because he was expecting to be transferred out of the area.

He said yesterday he expects to campaign on the basis of his long acquaintance with the district, and added, "During the last year when I attended board meetings I have found myself continuously voting with the minority on many issues."

HE SPECIFICALLY criticized the board decision last summer to close the school buildings to all after-school use following defeat of a tax rate referendum. The decision was made at the first meeting after the defeat by a vote of 5-2 with Poklacki and Harry Peterson voting against the action.

Data Processing Eyed— Hint NEC Withdrawal

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school officials will look into alternate ways to get data processing services in preparation for a possible withdrawal from the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC).

The district is now buying data processing services through a cooperative run by NEC, an organization of 10 Northwest suburban school districts. Dist. 59 has in the past been highly critical of NEC.

Members of the board of education agreed Tuesday night to look into private sources during the next few weeks for the data processing service which provides payroll and student records. The district wants to see if the services would be cheaper than continuing them through NEC.

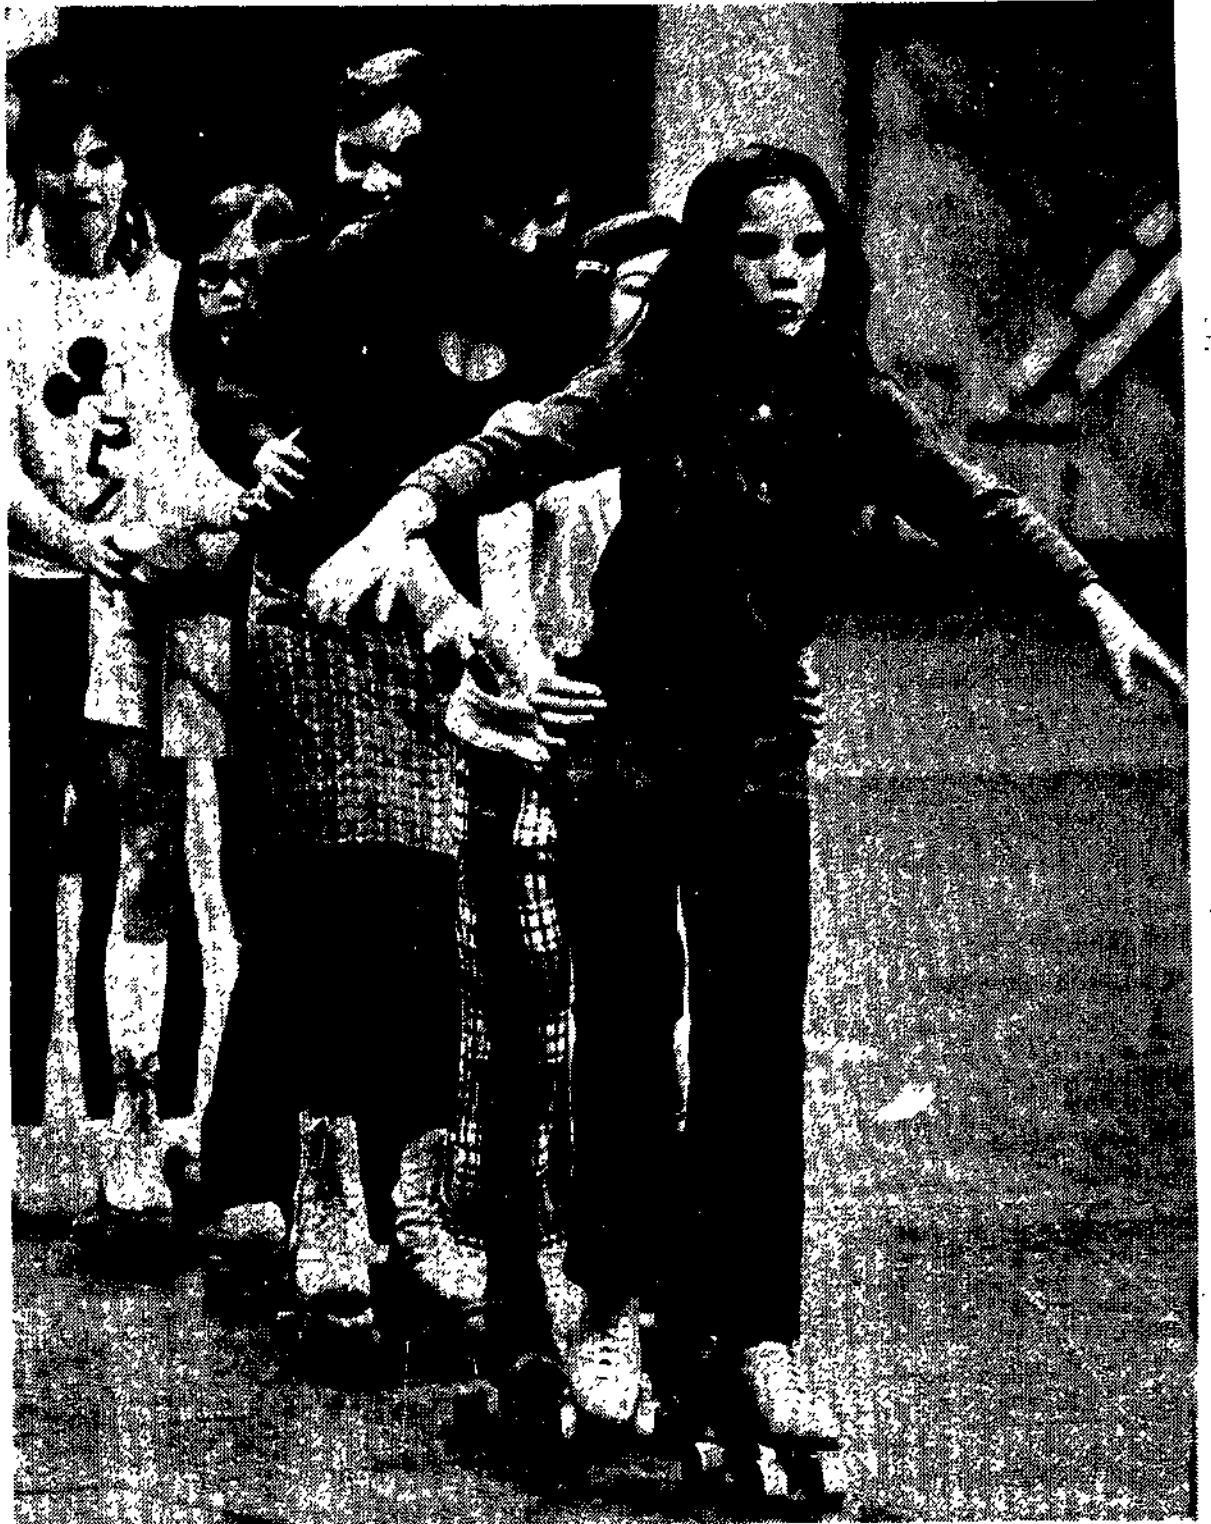

NEC is now discussing whether to continue buying computer services from Harper College or to purchase its own computer. A special meeting of the governing board will be held Saturday to recommend action on one of the two alternatives.

BOARD MEMBER Judith Zanca said, "I see advantages to the co-op, but I'd like to rid ourselves of some of the distasteful parts of NEC."

Other board members agreed they would be favorable to withdrawing from the co-op if services elsewhere would be less expensive. This year data processing services from the co-op cost the district about $23,000, according to Asst. Supt. Arthur Perry.

In addition, Supt. James Ertlvi told the board it may now be possible for the dis-

Ex-Wife Shot, Friend Slain; Cop Is Held

A Franklin Park policeman was being held by Cook County Sheriff's Police yesterday after he allegedly shot and seriously wounded his ex-wife and then shot her male companion to death.

Criminal charges were pending yesterday against Patrolman Peter DiVenere, 38, of 3306 Lincoln St., Franklin Park, after he was arrested by sheriff's police in a trailer court in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

DiVenere allegedly shot his ex-wife, Laurel, 23, twice, and then shot and killed her companion, Charles McConnell, 23, after he burst into her Hanover Park apartment about 3 a.m. yesterday. Mrs. DiVenere told police her ex-husband shot her twice with a .38 caliber revolver and then shot McConnell once in the back and once in the chest.

Mrs. DiVenere was in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday with gunshot wounds of the back, right arm and abdomen. McConnell, who lived in an apartment at the same address, was dead on arrival at the Cook County morgue.

HANOVER PARK police issued an all-points bulletin for DiVenere's arrest shortly after 3 a.m., when they were called to the apartment by an ambulance driver.

Less than four hours later sheriff's police arrested the suspect at his brother's trailer in the Oasis Mobile Home Court, 7500 N. Elmhurst Rd. DiVenere was arrested without resistance after his car was spotted outside his brother's trailer, police said.

DiVenere has been a member of the Franklin Park force for nine years.

Hanover Park police late yesterday afternoon said no charges had been filed yet, pending word from the state attorney's office.

'Bucket Seat' Thief Hits VW In Village

An enterprising burglar pried open a window and stole two bucket seats out of a Volkswagen this week in Elk Grove Village.

Police said the seats were stolen from a car belonging to Walter Bauer, 815 Brantwood Ave., while the car was parked at his home. Value of the seats was estimated at $160.

Herald Writer Wins Scher Award

Herald Staff Writer Leon Shure has been named the recipient of the Jacob Scher Award for outstanding investigative reporting.

Announcement of the award came yesterday from the Chicago Chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, National Professional Society for Women in Journalism and Communications.

Shure was named the recipient of the award in the community newspaper category of the contest for his expose of the misuse of Cook County Office of Opportunity funds in Des Plaines. Beginning last summer, Shure and Des Plaines Herald City Editor Robert Casey undertook an investigation of OEO-salaried jobs in Des Plaines. Their investigation revealed that some jobs aimed at poverty-level youth were being held by sons and daughters of city officials.

The series of articles promoted an investigation by the City of Des Plaines, Cook County OEO and finally, the Better Government Association. The BGA's investigation held that there was no malfeasance on the part of city officials.

The award for investigative reporting is given in honor of the late Jacob Scher, Northwestern University journalism professor, newspaperman and authority on press law and freedom of information. The awards will be given at a dinner Thursday, Feb. 17 in Chicago.

Entries for the awards were in four categories. Shure and Casey's award was given in the Community Newspaper category. Chicago Today will receive an award in the Metropolitan Newspaper category and no awards will be given in the radio and television categories.

Ski Mask Bandits Lurked 4 Hours

by CRAIG GAARE

Police theorized Wednesday that the two men who robbed the Bank of Buffalo Grove and escaped with more than $100,000 were in the bank undetected for more than four hours before forcing a teller to open the vault after banking hours Tuesday evening.

George Miller, the president of the bank, said yesterday between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken, but the exact amount still is not known.

It is possible that the two men, described by witnesses as under 25 years of age and wearing long hair, could have been familiar to bank employees and thus would not have been considered suspicious.

However Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said that theory is only speculation and added, "It is not necessarily that difficult to get downstairs," to hide near the vault where the robbery occurred.

Smith also said it is only speculation whether the robbery was carried out by local persons or if professionals were involved.

BUT HE DID say, "I have the feeling it is someone we know."

Police are compiling a list of possible suspects and are "talking to as many witnesses as possible," according to Smith.

Meanwhile, the two suspects, who wore ski masks and brandished small caliber revolvers in the robbery, are still at large and are being sought by local and state police and federal agents.

Smith said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has assigned 15 agents to the case. He met with state police detectives for about an hour Wednesday morning to discuss the case with them.

After the meeting, Smith told the Herald most of the information and leads are sketchy and he is meeting with state and federal agents to "correlate our information so there is no duplication."

ACCORDING TO the police account of the robbery, the suspects entered the bank sometime before 2 p.m. when the bank closes all but the drive-up windows. When the robbery took place, shortly before 6:30 p.m., there were four persons in the bank — three tellers and one employee working downstairs.

Police believe the robbers first handcuffed the employee in the basement and then waited for each other to bring down the day's receipts from the cash drawers. The tellers normally come separately because they finish totaling their receipts at different times, Smith said.

As each teller came down, the robbers handcuffed them and placed the tellers out of view of the next employee coming down the stairs. After all the employees were in the basement, the robbers forced one teller to open the vault at gunpoint.

The suspects fled on foot out the west door of the bank carrying the money in a green duffel bag.

Smith said he did not know the exact amount that was taken.

SMITH SAID NO shots were fired and no one was injured. The only physical violence consisted of the tellers being handcuffed.

The robbers narrowly missed being apprehended by village police, who as a normal security measure, patrol the bank parking lot at closing time. Patrolman Gary Wenekebach was in a police squad in the parking lot at 6:12 p.m., according to the police radio log. He stayed in the lot approximately six minutes. He told the Herald he did not observe anything suspicious, so he resumed his normal patrol at 6:18.

At 6:20, the robbery was reported.

GEORGE MILLER, PRESIDENT of the Bank of Buffalo Grove (center) confers with FBI agents and insurance investigators after Tuesday night's robbery of the bank. Two armed men apparently hid in the basement of the bank until closing time when employees brought cash to the basement.

Stolen Money Fully Insured

The president of the Bank of Buffalo Grove said yesterday the money taken in Tuesday's armed robbery will not result in any loss to persons who have accounts with the bank.

"We're completely covered," George Miller said yesterday following the Tuesday night robbery in which between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken at gunpoint from four bank employees after closing hours.

Miller said the bank is protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and an additional policy the bank has with a private insurance company.

He said the bank will have the money from the insurance companies by next Tuesday.

THE BANK, located at the corner of Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, was chartered in July, 1968 and opened about a year later in August, 1969.

The bank opened with holdings worth $750,000. The bank has grown steadily over the last two years and listed assets totaling $7,876,591 as of Sept. 30, 1971.

The Village of Buffalo Grove has most of its money in the bank and the park district invested the proceeds from its $1,250,000 bond issue with the bank.

Urge Expanded Food Law

A Cook County health inspector recommended yesterday Elk Grove Village consider adopting an expanded food ordinance.

John Schulz told the village board of health adoption of a code similar to one used in Rolling Meadows would improve enforcement of health standards at village restaurants.

Schulz said the recommended code is set up so "there will be no questions as to what is wanted." The code would set up more specific standards and hence be more enforceable, he said. The present food code, which Schulz called "very sketchy," provides only general standards.

Health board members indicated they would probably study the Rolling Meadows code to determine which parts of it could be used by Elk Grove Village.

Data Processing Service Is Eyed

tent to withdraw from NEC while retaining a member of the data processing co-op, something that has not been possible in the past.

Recently the NEC governing board agreed to allow districts outside of NEC to join the co-op without becoming a member of the NEC board. The action came after Des Plaines Dist. 62 asked if it could join the co-op. Dist. 62 has not yet decided to join.

"AN IMPORTANT question is how serious they are about that action," Ervin said. "I don't know if they realized that because of what they did, one district could pull out of NEC and still stay in the co-op."

Board Member Sharrille Hildebrandt, the Dist. 59 representative on the NEC governing board, said NEC did understand that possibility because "I told them it was possible."

Board Pres. Harold Harvey agreed with that idea, saying, "If we join the data processing co-op without being a member of NEC, it would make more sense than belonging to NEC and getting involved with its other problems."

He added that the district could then compare the costs of outside data processing service with the cost of data processing from the co-op without figuring in NEC administrative overhead. This year, in addition to the $23,000 for data processing, the district is paying $1,000 plus 41 cents per student for the administrative costs of NEC.

HARVEY SAID the district could make a decision on whether to remain in NEC, withdraw from NEC and buy services from the co-op, or buy services from outside sources once cost figures for all alternatives are in.

Once the NEC board recommends a course of action for the co-op it will ask all member boards to ratify that.

Currently eight districts belong to the data processing co-op. NEC members High School Dist. 211 and Arlington Heights Dist. 25 do not belong to the co-op.

Board Approves Boardwalk Plan

The long delayed plans for the Boardwalk apartment complex received final approval from the village board of trustees this week.

The board Tuesday approved necessary ordinances for the 144-unit project, which is to be built behind the Elk Grove Medical Dental Center, 755 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The board's judicial, planning and zoning committee last week recommended approval of the plans after it said all previous objections to the plans had been disposed of.

The village board had earlier refused to approve the project until a western access was provided. After the property's owner, Dr. Marvin Schumacher, successfully negotiated with the Centex Corp. for purchase of land for a western access, the plan commission approved the plans.

150 Spectators Yelled 'Go Kirk Go'

by DOUG RAY

For a few hours yesterday, they were no different than anyone else.

The boys raced up and down the gym floor as the coaches yelled "defense, defense . . . pass the ball." And the fans applauded their efforts as vigorously as if it were a professional basketball game.

For the teachers and parents of the players, the outcome of the game wasn't as important as the opportunity the youths were getting to participate.

The boys of both the Samuel Kirk Center and Little City in Palatine were being cheered by more than 150 spectators. "Go Kirk Go" boomed through the gym of the host team Pennants lined the walls of the basketball court.

"It has a great unifying effect on the students," said Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center. "They are beginning to feel a school spirit."

The inter-school competition began this year with the formation of the Northwest Athletic Association League. Kirk Center, Little City, Stratford Center in Highland Park and Malloy Center in Morton Grove are charter members in the conference which may expand to 10 teams next year.

"Quite frankly we didn't think we would ever be able to do it," Sterrett said. "But now look at it," he added pointing to the enthusiastic students, faculty and parents.

Kirk had its own cheerleaders dressed in green and white uniforms made by the wife of one of the teachers at the school. The student body voted on the school colors and the team mascot, the Cubs.

Basketball practice is held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at Kirk Center by coach Sam Burgdorff. The players learn discipline, but, more importantly the will to win, according to the coach.

Later this year, the teams in the newly-formed conference plan to compete in volleyball and a track and field meet. A basketball tournament is also being scheduled and at least one of the teams will vie in the Handicapped Olympics in May sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

After yesterday's game, which ended

28-17 in favor of Little City, the players shook hands as fans applauded. The handicapped children were learning things that their brothers and sisters have always known. There were no losers.

School Dist. Seeks Recycled Paper Bids

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 is going to investigate the price of ecology.

The board of education Tuesday night authorized the administration to ask for bids for duplicating paper for the district.

— and asked an alternative be included in the specifications asking for a price if the district buys recycled paper.

In other action, the board waived an irregularity on the performance bond submitted by Towns and Country Plumbing of Chicago, the plumbing contractor for Friendship School.

The bond submitted by the company was from a new insurance company not rated in the Best Insurance Guide as required in bid specifications, according to the administration.

Also the board approved the appointment of Richard Jenness, principal at Holmes Junior High School, as summer school principal for the third consecutive year.

The classes will be offered to two age groups, seven to 14 years old and 15 years through adult.

A 15 registration fee is charged for the 10 week session. Further information about the program may be obtained by calling the park district at 528-8600.

Turkey Hunt Permits Available Monday

Illinois turkey hunters must wait until Monday, Feb. 14 to apply for a turkey permit for the spring turkey hunt.

"All applications received before Feb. 14 are being returned to the applicant," said Jack Calhoun, leader of the turkey project for the Illinois Department of Conservation. "Hunters will be allowed to apply over the counter at the Springfield office beginning the same day, however, their applications will be processed after the applications received in the day's mail."

Illinois' turkey season is split into two three-day hunts, and only four southern Illinois counties will be hunted — Alexander, Jackson, Pope and Union. The first season will be April 14, 15 and 16, and the second season will be April 21, 22, and 23. 200 hunters will be allowed in each county each of the three-day seasons.

When filling out the application the hunter should list his name and address, first and second choice of counties he wishes to hunt and first and second choice of seasons he wishes to hunt. This should be sent to the permit office with $5 in check or money order.

"The applicant will receive his first choice if the county and season is open," Calhoun said. "However, if he has listed both a first and second choice for both county and season, and the first choice of seasons is closed he will receive the second choice of seasons. If neither seasons are available for the first choice of counties, we will go to the second choice of counties and first choice of season. If that is filled the hunter will get the second choice of counties and the second choice of seasons."

Calhoun said that if there was a reason that a hunter did not want a second choice of either county or season or both, he should only list the ones he wanted. If they are filled, the application will be returned.

The split season is an experiment being tried by the Division of Wildlife Resources this year to cut down on the hunting pressure on the birds. Too many hunters in the field will cut down on the hunter's chances of success.

Applications for turkey permits should be mailed to: Department of Conservation — Turkey, Room 613, State Office Building, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Hollywood Scene...

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Seven months after Clint Walker pulled the spike end of a ski pole from his heart the big fellow had completed two physically demanding Westerns and looked as strong as ever.

"Four days after I had heart surgery I was back on my feet," Walker said. "All I've got to remind me of that accident is a scar so small you have to look close to see it."

The scar is not the only residual affect on Walker.

He has become a more thoughtful man, given to self-questioning and slower to judging other persons.

"An accident like that gives you a new set of values," he said, eating a fresh salad at a health food restaurant. "It makes you see who you are and where you are in life."

"SOME THINGS aren't as important anymore — material possessions."

"I was religious to a degree before the accident. Now I'm more convinced than ever that the miracle of life isn't an accident. I say that because I think I had a glimpse of the other side."

Walker nearly died last March when he tumbled down a ski slope, the pole lodging in his chest. He remained conscious for 10 minutes before blacking out.

"That was a short 10 minutes," Walker said. "I thought they were going to be my last. Gave me time enough to think, though."

Walker recently completed "Hardcase," the first live action feature of Hanna-Barbera, the top cartoon studio in Hollywood. The role demanded he ride horseback and engage in a roughhouse fight with former pro-footballer Alex Karras, 260 pounds.

EARLIER HE completed "Pancho Villa" with Telly Savalas in Spain. Only two months after the accident Walker was doing his own fight scenes for that one, too.

At 230 pounds and standing 6-feet, 5-inches, Walker is in excellent health.

"Being in good physical condition helped save my life," he said.

"The doctors told me if my muscle tissue hadn't been in such great shape I wouldn't have made it through the operation."

The affable giant continues to work out with weights and other exercises.

'Bonanza' To Be Seen Twice A Week

by RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — NBC-TV's "Bonanza" series will be seen twice a week in prime time starting May 3 as the network tries to beef up its anemic Tuesday night lineup with reruns of the long-running Western hit.

"Bonanza" is normally seen on Sunday nights, and will continue on that evening in addition to the Tuesday reruns. The only difference, really, is that the Tuesday repeats will be shown under the new series title "Ponderosa," which is the name of the ranch in "Bonanza."

The fact of the matter is that both of these weekly series will be offering reruns of previous episodes, because by May, most regular shows will be starting to repeat their programs for the late spring and summer months.

With the government cutback on prime time hours for networks, and with the economy continuing to be tight, it seems unlikely that we will see very much in the way of creative or original summer series. That's the way things were last summer, too, as we saw countless old episodes of shows rerun as series with new overall titles.

NBC-TV's MORNING "Today" series will hit the road for the primary elections for the first time in its 20 years on the air.

There will be full two-hour originations daily from six, and perhaps seven, key primary states. In most of these states "Today" will originate for three consecutive days — "the appropriate Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday."

The first primary covered will be in New Hampshire, March 7 and 8. Other states on the schedule are Florida, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Oregon and California.

OVER AT CBS-TV, meanwhile, a children's news segment will be an added feature of the "Morning News with John Hart" starting next Monday. The network says the segments will be "devoted to news for in-school children" and will utilize the Bill Brown Puppeteers "to do a Punch and Judy presentation with CBS news correspondent Marya McLaughlin discussing news topics with the puppet family."

The series will also step up features on consumer, health, arts and educational news.

NOTES TO WATCH television by:

CBS-TV will present two ambitious, back-to-back 90-minute dramas on Friday, Feb. 25. . . Opening the evening will be "To All My Friends On Shore," written by Allan Sloane and starring Bill Cosby as an airport porter whose dream of providing his family with a better life is shattered when he learns his son is stricken with sicklecell anemia. Following this will be "Look Homeward, Angel," an adaptation of the Pulitzer Prize-winning play based on Thomas Wolfe's famous novel, and starring Geraldine Page, E. G. Marshall and Timothy Bottoms.

DUCK LIVES AGAIN!

Crabapple Sauce and Cognac. The best.

A plump, meaty duckling is halved and boned, then slow-roasted and basted in a sauce of orange, lemon juices and melted with rich gravy and mild seasonings. Served under thin slices of fresh California orange. Crowned with a covering of fine French Cognac and flambeared at your table to a crackling crispness. Accompanied by our own wild rice recipe. Yes, duck lives again!

'Auction' For Schlickman

by BOB LAHEY

An imaginative note will be injected into the campaign of state Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, at a fund-raising event scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in Arlington Park Towers Hotel, Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Roads, Arlington Heights.

Schlickman supporters will offer at auction prizes ranging from a new automobile to a weekend at DeSoto House in Galena — where the guests will occupy the room formerly used by Gen. Ulysses S. Grant.

Chairman Dwight Walton said other items donated for the auction include a trail bike, a $100 oil painting, kitchen and bathroom fixtures, a camper-trailer, cameras, auto tires and other accessories.

Automobiles to be donated — with a minimum sale price — by Bill Cook Buick, include two new Buicks and two used cars.

Chief auctioneer will be Roland Wiltse of Arlington Heights, who is known as radio disk jockey Stan Scott.

Proceeds will go to Schlickman's campaign for reelection in the new 4th Legislative District.

DAN WALKER, independent Democratic candidate for governor, will meet with voters Sunday at an informal coffee at the home of Annette and Hank Archambault, 31 Evergreen, Elk Grove Village.

The coffee, which is open to the public, is scheduled for 7 p.m.

Walker, who refused to seek support of regular Democratic organization state-makers, recently claimed a sweep of endorsements by independent political organizations in the Cook County area.

Latest group to endorse him is the Independent Citizens Committee of Chicago's 8th Ward. He earlier was backed by the Independent Precinct Organization, made up of wards on the North Side lakefront, by a vote of 128-7. Other independent Democratic groups which are backing Walker include those in Wheeling Township, Riverside-Proviso Township, and Oak Park.

LT. GOV. PAUL SIMON, Walker's opponent in the primary, will be the guest at a "99-cent Spaghetti Dinner and Chinese Auction" in Des Plaines Sunday.

The event, sponsored by the Near North Suburban Citizens for Simon, will be held at the International Machinists Hall, 50 W. Oakton St., Des Plaines, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Items to be auctioned include some donated by Simon.

Simon's wife, Jeanne Hurley Simon, will visit the 3rd Legislative District on Feb. 23 as the guest of state Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, candidate for reelection in the district. Mrs. Simon is a former state representative from Wilmette.

CHARLES MIHALEK of Wheeling has been named Wheeling Township chairman for the campaign of David E. Brown for the Republican nomination to the Illinois Senate in the 1st Legislative District.

Brown, state central GOP committeeman, named township chairmen throughout the new district, which includes all of Wheeling Township north of Palatine Road.

He recently was endorsed by the New Trier Township Republican Organization, of which he is committeeman.

REP. BRADLEY M. GLASS, R-Wilmette, Brown's opponent for the state Senate seat, recently received the endorsement of 20 of his colleagues in the Illinois House of Representatives.

The legislators said they made their endorsement after examination of the two candidates' qualifications by a nine-member "evaluation committee."

Included in the endorsement were representatives George M. Burditt of LaGrange; Mrs. Robert C. Dyer of Hinsdale; Gene L. Hoffman of Elmhurst; William D. Walsh of LaGrange Park, as well as Chicago and Downstate legislators.

Glass will address the Wheeling Rotary Club at noon tomorrow at Han's Bavarian Lodge, 931 N. Milwaukee Ave.

Young People's Lib: Do Labor Laws Hurt Or Help?

by TOM TIEDE
WASHINGTON — For most of its history the United States let its children fend for themselves in the area of making a buck. Kids were part of the available work force and that was that. So it was: the cavalry sometimes hired teenagers to scout Indians, manufacturers hired little beggars for the lowest-paying jobs, and the nation's employers became notorious the world around for their sweatshop exploitation of little people down to the age of six.

All that changed in 1938. Public indignation brought about the Fair Labor Standards Act. It forbade anyone under 11 from any salaried employment. It set 14 as the minimum age for specified jobs outside school hours. It established 16 as the basic minimum age for full-time employment in nonhazardous occupations.

At the time, and for many years after, the act was hailed. Every state in the Union followed with new laws of their own or the stiffening of old ones.

Now, however, the cheers have faded. Many out of work kids are booing instead.

Every day the Department of Labor receives letters such as this recent one from a boy in Michigan: "I'm 15 and I want to work in a lumberyard, only the law says I can't. The law says I'm too young to work regular after school. The law says I'm too young to work in a 'hazardous' occupation. I don't think the law is fair. I'm 6 feet 2 and 195 pounds. I need the money."

THE COMPLAINTS are, officials say, another manifestation of Young People's Lib (some call it Young People's Lap). And there is no doubt why it's growing: youth unemployment is running at one of the highest rates in the history of the Union.

According to Eli Cohen, director of the National Committee on the Employment of Youth, there are "about one million kids between 16 and 19 out of work. That's about 17 per cent of those who want jobs. And when you get into categories it's worse. Unemployment for black children is 35 per cent, double that of the national average. And in the ghettos one of two kids is out of a job."

Cohen says he doesn't have reliable statistics on unemployment under age 16. "But the general situation is very bad for all kids. As bad as I've seen."

Ergo, the complaints from youngsters that the 1938 Fair Labor Standards Act should be modified. They say it's outdated. And more than that. They say it forces some kids to break the law (to lie about their age, to withhold income tax). They say it forces some kids into a kind of economic slavery ("If you take an illegal job, you do whatever the boss says and like it"). They say it also causes some (many?) kids to drop out of school ("They can't afford to stay in").

Even some adults are concerned. Robert Taggart, executive director of the National Manpower Policy Task Force, says he believes tight federal laws are in some cases hurting rather than helping kids: "The good employers won't break the law to hire them, so kids must go to bad employers who don't care about the law."

Taggart thus agrees with the youngsters' complaints. He believes some jobs deemed hazardous in 1938 should be opened up today. He believes kids who need to combine school and work should be considered case by case. In sum, he believes youngsters of today are "perfectly capable of looking out for themselves."

Other adults, to be sure, take other views. Labor Department officials are especially reluctant to see a relaxation of child work laws. Adelia Kloak, the department's child labor expert, says that in some areas the laws should be strengthened. "Every year we find thousands of abuses of the existing laws. Often they are tragic abuses. I've just heard of a case where an underage boy was operating a meat grinder in a supermarket. He got his arm caught all the way to the elbow. They had to take both him and the grinder to the hospital."

Mrs. Kloak says the nation should be concentrating on plugging child labor loopholes, rather than opening up new ones. "Agriculture, for instance, is now excepted in most states from strict laws. So we see time and again 8 and 9-year-old children doing stoop labor in the fields."

But even Mrs. Kloak concedes that 1972 is not 1938, that kids today are different from kids yesterday. Therefore: "Perhaps some reassessment of the laws is in order." But she doesn't see it happening. Not now anyway. With so many adults out of work, nobody is currently paying much attention to Young People's Lap.

The Volunteer Bureau

Skills And Time Needed

The Volunteer Service Bureau of Northwest Cook County is a private, non-profit organization which attempts to provide volunteer help to selected agencies dealing in public service. If you have a skill and some time to spare, the Volunteer Bureau will try to match your talents with an agency in need of volunteer help. Now in six different locations in the Northwest suburbs, the Volunteer Bureau acts as a free service, teaming volunteers with agencies and organizations in need of help.

by ESTHER RABCHUK

Can you type? Traditionally, volunteers who type can always be placed — if that's what they want to do. Some volunteers take a regular assignment such as each Wednesday afternoon during which time they type whatever is waiting for them. Some schools have a typing pool whereby three or four volunteers are at one table and consequently can intersperse their work with a visit and maybe even a cup of coffee. Other typing volunteers may be on call for assignments of an emergency nature.

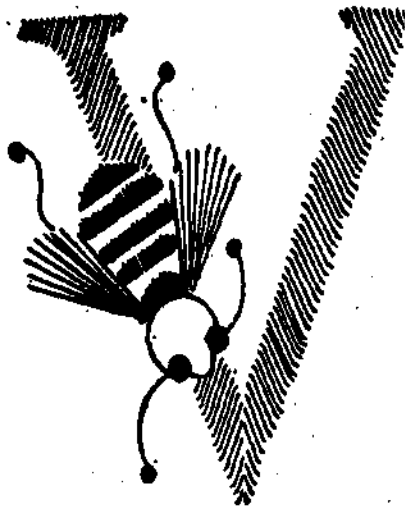

Through the Volunteer Bureau the volunteer has some assurance that he is serving agencies which have agreed to the guidelines: The volunteer is not displacing paid personnel, that the organization is non-profit, and there is a procedure within the agency to handle problems as they come up. Any of the branch offices can register you in this capacity and you can specify the time, place, and which type of an agency you desire to give of your time and talent. There are 54 agencies registered with the Bureau. The two general classifications are schools and social agencies.

Elgin State Hospital which serves the northwest area in mental health has a training program for all volunteers serving their program. The program includes services outside the building grounds such as outpatient services.

Again, the volunteer does not replace the paid personnel or the professional but rather the volunteer is incorporated into the team approach to serve the client. Contact the Elk Grove Branch Office if you are interested in this type of volunteer work.

RIDGE ELEMENTARY School in Arlington Heights Dist. 25 is in the process of setting up an enrichment program for their youngsters, and volunteers are being sought in areas such as kite-making for 5th graders, knitting for 3rd, 4th, and 5th graders, newspaper publishing for 3rd, 4th, and 5th graders, puppet-making for 1st and 2nd graders, circle dancing for 1st and 2nd graders, cooking and sewing clubs for various grades.

The enrichment programs are conducted with the teachers in attendance and will be held on Monday, Feb. 21, 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. ending May 22. In case you're interested — or in areas not mentioned, but in keeping with the enrichment idea — call the Arlington Heights Branch Office. Teens who can arrange their high school schedule are welcome to be volunteers with this program.

Are you an oceanographer? There is a request waiting for you at the Mount Prospect office.

Requests such as the oceanographer one are termed one-shot assignments, and usually involve a lecture or demonstration which is an hour or two in total commitment. Several of the junior high schools conduct career programs which use volunteers for such assignments.

PROFESSIONAL athletes, accountants, radio announcers, research scientists, bankers, telephone operators, beauty counselors, have been used. Contact any of the branch offices if you're interested.

Can you read and write in German? The Bensenville Home Society and the Lutheran Home for the Aged in Arlington Heights, both of which are facilities for the aged, appreciate volunteers who have this talent as many of their residents are more comfortable in the tongue of their childhood. The Bensenville Home is served through the Elk Grove Branch and the Lutheran Home is served through the Arlington Heights office. Both facilities have a trained coordinator to help the volunteer have a good experience in his assignment. Yes, they use and need both men and women.

Area Schools In Band Contest

Two Northwest suburban high school bands will be among four junior college bands and 36 high school bands scheduled to participate in the 13th annual band festival at Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, Ill. this Friday and Saturday.

The Forest View High School band and the Elk Grove High School band will be among high school bands competing in the Saturday events at the university.

The college band session will be on Friday, Feb. 11 and high school bands will compete Saturday. A final concert Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in McAfee Gymnasium will feature the best of the participating bands and Eastern University's jazz band.

Both college and high school bands will compete for trophies, plaques and certificates during the two days.

Sgt. Jack Kimsey:

A 'Dedicated Cop'

by RICHARD HONACK

It was the height of the rush hour in Wheeling. Streets were slick, a light snow was falling.

A call came over the police car radio "602... Man has caught his hand in a machine, fire department en route."

Wheeling police Sgt. Jack Kimsey was driving in car 604 and was acting as the backup man in the area.

When the call came across he switched from a smiling, talkative individual to a very serious one. He reached down, turned on the lights and siren and was off for the scene.

Weaving in and out of traffic and trying to avoid those cars not heeding emergency warnings he called 602 on the radio.

"What's the situation?" They answered the man was only slightly injured and on the way to the hospital.

"Thank God, it could have been worse," said Kimsey.

That's the kind of guy Jack Kimsey is — worried about others and ready to help.

"Our job is based on helping other people," he said, "we're helping them even when we give them speeding tickets. Some day they may slow down and save not only their lives but others' lives too."

KIMSEY SAID people forget that "cops are human beings and tend to think of us as robots. We can't operate like that. I'm a human being and things affect me like they do others."

"When I get to the scene of an accident, the first thing I think about is how can I help the individuals involved. Whether they are injured or just scared, they need help."

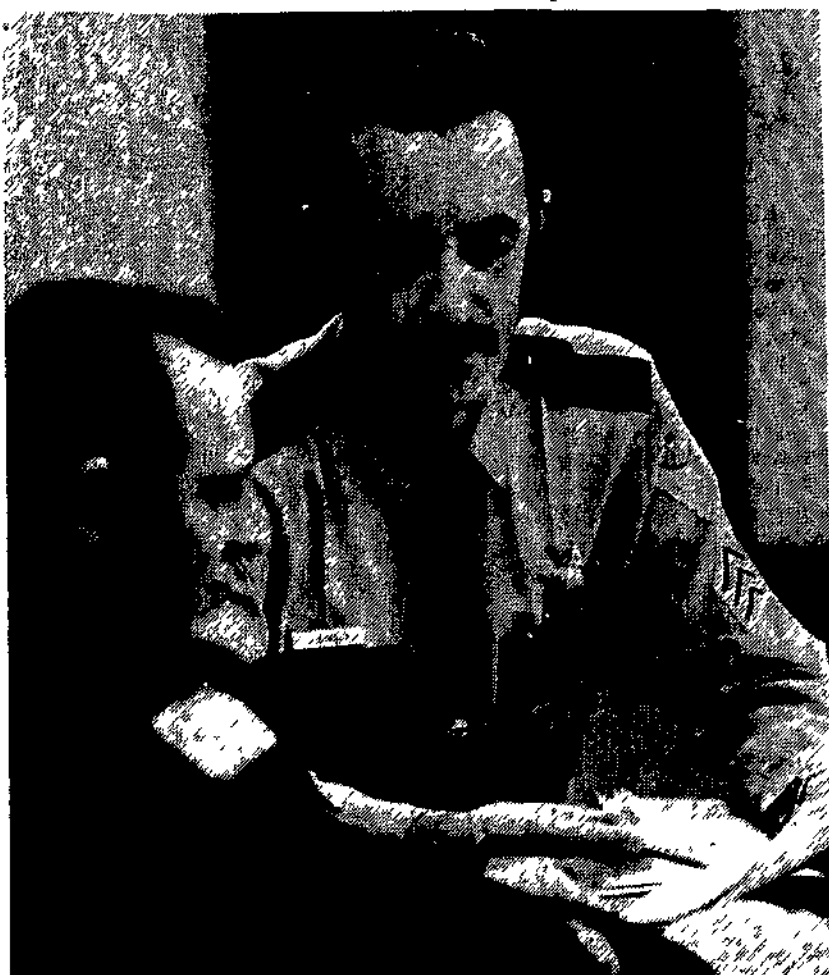

One of the most frequent calls for Wheeling police are those of family disturbances.

"I hate those calls," said Kimsey. "We usually try to answer them with two men. We also call a social group and try to get a counselor in the home to help the couple. We don't like to leave them alone."

Kimsey waved back at two Wheeling High School track men jogging down Hintz Rd.

"Now that's rewarding," he said with a satisfying grin. "Those kids really make my day."

Kimsey has worked with kids for most of his 13-year police career. "I was police and the public in a time when po-schools," he explains, "and those were two of my students."

Kimsey had the job of bringing a degree of communication between the police and the public in a time when police were criticized across the country.

The things the kids like best about Kimsey is he "tells it straight. He is one of us and respects us as we respect him," said one of his former students.

Another student said he understands kids' problems. "If I ever got in trouble with the police I'd ask for Kimsey. He'd understand."

KIMSEY CLAIMS he understands mainly because of his experience at the junior high schools and because he and his wife, Sue, are involved with a youth organization at the local Presbyterian church.

"We're planning a lock-in at the church in a few weeks. We are going to have about 30 kids and we will be working on crafts, hobbies and just rapping about life. It should be fun," he said.

Kimsey's car slid into an intersection and immediately called public works with a road report.

What does he think when someone calls him a "pig"?

"It's up to the individual. If someone calls me a pig I look at myself and ask: Why? If I'm at peace with myself I know they're wrong and let it bounce off."

"It's not always the kid's fault. It's what they learn at home that gives them the idea that cops are 'pigs' and very often it's the cops themselves."

Kimsey started toward the south end of the village to fill in for a unit covering an accident.

"Many patrolmen come on strong and tough. Their bark is often bigger than their bite. I see no need to always be harsh with people," said Kimsey.

"An example of this is when you stop someone for speeding. It seems to me to be easier to say 'Good morning sir, did you know that you were speeding?' instead of, 'Hey buddy, where's the fire?'" he added.

Traffic seemed extremely heavy to Kimsey for 6:30 in the evening. He figured it was the snow.

Kimsey, a shift commander, said his philosophy is "to treat people as I would like to be treated, if I were in their shoes." He believes this feeling is felt by many of the "new cops."

"THESE NEW GUYS are really well educated. They understand problems and study them."

"It's because of them that many of the older men on the force are going back to school. It really is great for the department," he said as he drove his car into the garage.

One of the officers on Kimsey's shifts said the sergeant has been influential in many of them going to school.

"Jack likes to keep us up to date and when that's done he thinks about the future," he said. "If I had to put it in one sentence I'd say Jack Kimsey is an up to date, modern cop, who runs a tight ship."

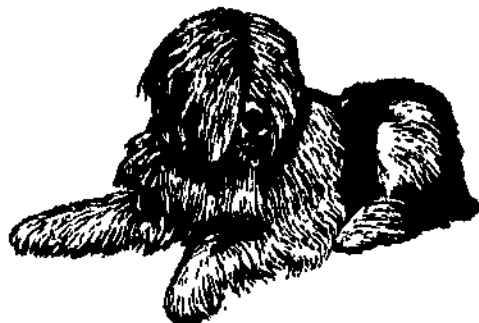

As Kimsey sat at his desk ready to go over the events of the day all he wishes is that people had a better understanding of a cop's work and would say "thank you" more often.

"You know," he said, "That's all most cops look for; a simple 'thank you.'"

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

The average South player would win the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs and draw trumps with three leads. Then he would lead a low heart from dummy and let East hold the trick with the nine.

An alert East would place the jack of diamonds on the table and the defense would add three diamond tricks to the heart trick already in and score 100 points.

South would probably complain about the fact that East could produce a high heart on the first lead of the suit and congratulate East on his fine play of the diamond jack. A low diamond lead would have done East no good since South would hold back his king and West would be forced to take the trick.

Someone might point out that there were nine tricks in top cards at no-trump.

How many of you readers have seen that four spades could and really should have been made?

South should let West hold the first trick. The best continuation is another club. South wins in dummy and discards a low heart. Then he plays two rounds of trumps followed by three rounds of hearts and is able to ruff the third lead.

Back to dummy with the last trump

Repairing Dry Wall Is Easy

Dry wall construction is not subject to the cracking and chipping of plaster but it, too will need repair in time. Sometimes heavy objects pushed or bumped against the wall will create dents and holes.

Joints between panels open either due to improper installation or to the warping of studs or the settling of the entire wall.

Repairs are not the same as for plaster walls, but they are not difficult. Because dry wall does not have the lath backing of plaster and because it is generally thinner, repairs are not simply a matter of filling.

Dents can be filled, of course. Use spackling compound. Two types are available — ready-to-use and powder that you mix with water. The ready-mix is probably easier for home repairs. Spread on with a putty knife. Finish with a wet blade and you probably can get it so smooth it won't need sanding.

HOLES NEED A BACKING before they can be filled. Use a piece of metal mesh slightly larger than the hole. Fasten a piece of string to the mesh, bend the wire slightly so that you can get it through the hole. Fasten the string to a stick or pencil so that the mesh will not fall through.

Pull the string tight so that the mesh will flatten against the back side of the wall. Start by applying patching plaster — or, for real quick setting, plaster of paris — against the edges of the wire so that the plaster adheres to the edges of the hole and the wire mesh. Force it through the mesh so that serves as a backing.

With the first application dry and the mesh held in place, snip off the string and continue applying patching plaster in layers. Finish with a layer of spackling compound.

Large holes should be repaired by replacing a section of the dry wall. Cut out a piece wide enough to reach from one stud to the next. Make the verticle height at least 10 or 12 inches so that the board will not buckle. Nail to each stud. The cracks can be filled with spackling compound.

A — Yes, if you request VA to use your dividends for that purpose.

Q — I AM A veteran eligible for GI home loan benefits. Will VA guarantee a loan to buy a used mobile home?

A — No. Current regulations authorize only the purchase of new mobile homes with VA-guaranteed loans.

Q — I WAS HONORABLY discharged from military service after serving from May 1, 1955 to May 7, 1960. Am I eligible for VA educational assistance?

A — Yes. Any veteran is eligible for this benefit after serving more than 180 days of active duty, any part of it after Jan. 31, 1955, and receiving an other than dishonorable discharge. Veterans released for service connected disabilities (regardless of length of service) and servicemen with more than 180 days of service are also eligible.

Q — MY DAUGHTER draws a VA pension based on her father's death in World War II. If she works during the summer, will her earning affect her pension?

A — No. Income earned by a child will not affect this benefit.

Q — I'M A VA pensioner who has just moved, and wonder what office should be notified about my change of address?

A — Your change of address should go to the VA regional office where your records are kept and to the post office which serviced your old address.

Q — I AM A 66-year-old veteran with a $10,000 National Service Life Insurance five year level premium term policy. I suffered a disability after I reached 65 which kept me from working for six months. Am I eligible for a waiver of premiums on my insurance?

Hashish Is On Increase

In a joint statement, District Director of Customs, Heinz Herz and Customs Special Agent in Charge, Ray O'Hearn said that hashish smuggling has increased more than other drugs and narcotics in the Chicago area in 1971.

O'Hearn said, "We had a total of 38 seizures where we confiscated 147 pounds of hashish. That is worth almost a quarter of a million dollars since hashish brings $1,500 a pound." A year ago the quantities of the drug seized were being measured in grams.

Herz said that there had been 82 marijuana seizures netting 2,652 pounds of weed in 1971. "That includes a commercial shipment of 1,500 pounds that was seized by Customs Special Agents at DuPage County Airport early in the year," he said. Good marijuana runs $175 a pound, using that price the value of the year's seizure is $2,850,900.

The Chicago area figures reflect the national increase in hashish traffic. However, the number one drug, heroin, was absent from Chicago Customs cases last year. Herz and O'Hearn said it is entering the country elsewhere and a volume of it is earmarked for the midwest market.

National drug seizure figures released by Customs indicated that heroin traffic was up 277%. It was the biggest year in the history of Customs drug seizures with the total for the year going over $691 million.

1,000 From Area Get 'Extended Priority'

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — About 1,000 Illinois men were among the 11,000 nationwide in the "extended priority" group who were told Tuesday that they will not have to go into the service.

Illinois Selective Service Director Dean S. Sweet said the exact number has not been pinpointed "but we think it'll be pretty close to 1,000."

Men in the extended classification are those who have passed their preinduction physicals and been ordered to report for duty but who for one reason or another are given last minute stays.

Sweet said examples of those not called were those appealing their draft orders, teachers whose service was temporarily deferred so they could finish a semester or those who sought a delay because of a temporary hardship at home.

This group of men will not be called, Sweet said, because the Defense Department does not plan to draft anyone during the first three months of the year.

Social Security and You

Q — WHAT IS CONSIDERED the first opportunity that a person has to enroll for medical insurance under Medicare?

A — A person's first opportunity to enroll for medical insurance is the 3-month period just before they reach age 65, their birthday month, and during the following 3 months after their birthday month.

Q — WHEN I BECAME age 65 in 1970, I did not enroll for coverage under the medical insurance part of Medicare. Will I ever be able to enroll if I change my mind?

A — For persons who do not enroll at the time that they have their first opportunity for enrollment, they can enroll during the months of January, February and March. The coverage then would be effective with July 1st.

Q — CAN I WAIT as long as I want to enroll for medical insurance coverage under Medicare, that is, 5 years, 10 years, etc?

A — No. You have approximately 3 years in which to enroll after the time that you could have initially enrolled. January, February and March the only months, of each year, in which you can enroll.

Q — IF I DO NOT enroll within approximately 3 years after my first opportunity to enroll won't I ever be able to enroll for the medical insurance coverage under Medicare?

A — Under the law as presently written, you would not.

Let's Avoid Paper Ballots

The March 21 primary election apparently will be marred in the Northwest suburbs, as in the rest of suburban Cook County, with the use of paper ballots.

Not since the late 1950s has the paper ballot been used extensively in the county and thankfully so, for from its use stems delay, inefficiency and fraud.

Opinions as to the cause of the renewal of this electoral blemish and the extent to which it will deface the pending balloting varies with opposite political inclination.

According to Democrats in the office of County Clerk Edward J. Barrett, most if not all suburban precincts will go to the paper system all because of County Board Comr Floyd T. Fulle of Des Plaines.

When Fulle proposed reductions in the county budget, cutting $174,000 and 23 voting machine mechanics for the election division payroll, he also did away with voting machines in suburban districts, according to his opponents.

The Democrats, through Tom King, supervisor of county elections, say it takes four hours to prepare each of the county's 3,800 voting machines for the election.

Since Fulle's budget cut was adopted by a 4 to 2 vote, with eight Democrats smugly abstaining, King says he will have only four full-time mechanics for the remaining six weeks prior to the election and 24 part-time workers for a two-week period.

King said his men will do their best to ready as many machines as possible, but he will make no promises.

Fulle, on the other hand, says there is no reason King's men, with the temporary help, cannot complete the task at hand. If they do not, Fulle contends, it will be because the Democrats made sure of it in advance.

The Republican commissioner also claims the large number of candidates for the same office in certain districts would have predated the use of paper ballots anyway.

King retorts, true, but most of the election would have been handled by machine, and the more, the better.

We feel the truth of this matter lies somewhere between these two positions. Obviously we will know more March 21, but then it may be too late.

It appears King has seriously exaggerated the situation. His figures — four hours per machine, 3,800 machines — indicate more than 15,000 man hours of work would be required to prepare the machines. Even if he had all 27 of his full-time employees, they could complete only slightly more than one third of the work prior to election.

Still, we must agree with County Board Pres. George W. Dunne, who said when it comes to money for elections he would rather be a little luxurious than a little short.

And if King is correct when he says it may take three days to count the ballots, that would mean extra pay for election judges and overtime pay for workers in the clerk's office. The additional expenditure might exceed the sum shaved from the budget in the first place.

The process of electing public officials is a sacred foundation of our government and society. It is not the place to play dollar games.

Neither is it the place to play political games, and we call on the public officials of this county, both Republican and Democrat, to put aside political considerations and search for a solution to this problem.

It is time these officials, elected and sworn to work for the people of all of Cook County and not just for those in the City of Chicago, take immediate steps to assure voting in this county does not take a giant step back to the 1950s.

A Seat Belt Threat?

Occupants of small cars face dangers in crashes that are far greater than those faced by occupants of larger-size cars, according to the filmed results of a test which pitted the small cars of all four major domestic manufacturers against their own large cars in head-on crashes at speeds between 40 and 50 miles an hour.

The results of the experiment, which was conducted by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, were hardly surprising: In each case, the little car was virtually demolished by the big car.

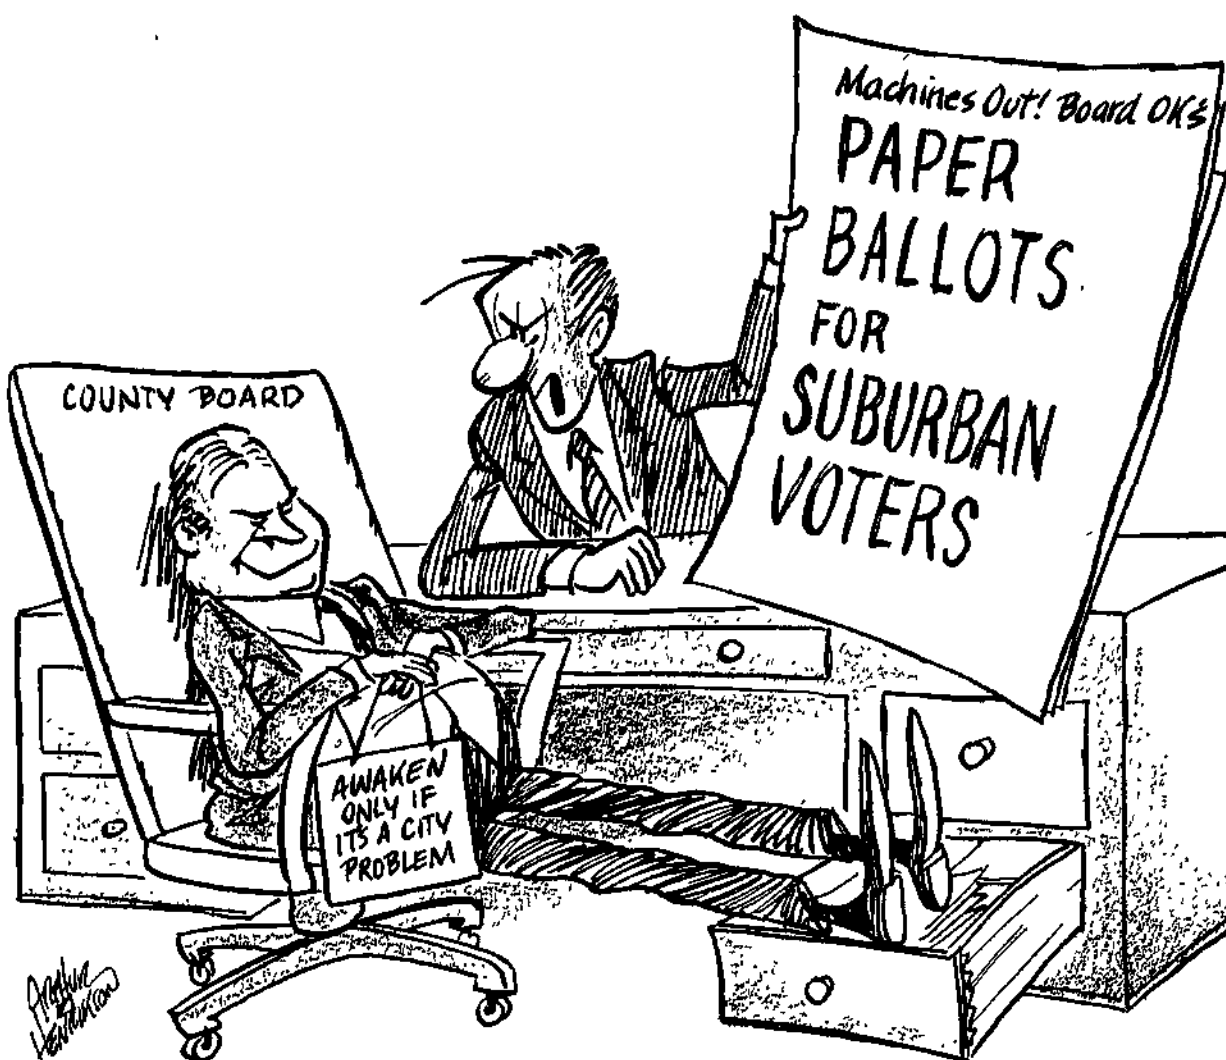

The public should be told about the dangers inherent in small-car design, says Dr. William Haddon Jr., president of the institute, especially in view of estimates that sales of small cars will represent 50 per cent of all new car sales before 1980.

Perhaps we should be told, if we hadn't guessed it before. But what is disturbing if not downright frightening about the test is that in every instance, in large cars as well as small cars, the lap or shoulder belts either broke or their anchors tore out or the restraints failed in some way to protect their dummy occupants.

Not a great deal can be done to make a small car the crashworthy equal of a large car. But surely the engineers should be able to design more dependable safety belts. Otherwise the federal law requiring their installation in all new cars becomes rather meaningless.

Isn't This Carrying Nostalgia A Bit Too Far?

Bob Lahey's Column

Mao Meets The Press

Bob Lahey

There is little to recommend the method by which Mao Tse Tung and his cohorts control the flow of "news" within and without the vastness of Red China.

But it would seem that they have given implicit recognition to the validity of the demand for free reporting to the rest of the world of President Nixon's approaching visit.

Never since the Red Chinese regime began in 1949 have foreign dignitaries been accompanied by more than 10 news representatives from their homeland.

The Chinese have agreed, however, to admit a U.S. press contingent of 87 persons — including writers, broadcasters, photographers and radio and TV technicians.

That is a pittance compared to the more than 2,000 newsmen who submitted applications to the White House to go along for the ride, and less than a third of the press mob which often accompanied Mr. Nixon on his domestic travels.

It would seem, however, to be more than adequate for the purposes of relaying back to the nation and the world the events of the historic trip to China.

The White House has chosen a representative group, including such familiar personages as Walter Cronkite (how could anybody go to China, a national convention or the moon without taking Walter along?), John Chancellor and Harry Reasoner, giving each of the major television networks its due.

Three representatives each from United Press International and the Associated Press will make the trip, assuring daily dispatches for nearly every daily newspaper in the nation.

The White House scored points for broadmindedness by issuing a trip ticket to conservative columnist William F. Buckley, one of the few widely read political commentators who has questioned the wisdom of the President's China trip.

It balanced Buckley's presence with that of Joseph Kraft of Publishers Hall, whom Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler described in an understatement as "non-conservative," and threw in Richard Wilson of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, long a friend of Richard Nixon.

Undoubtedly, there will be some noses out of joint among the sometimes snobbish famous and near-famous writers in the Washington press corps and those in other metropolitan cities.

The presence of novelist James Michener, representing the Readers Digest, and Theodore White, who writes a book every four years about "the making of the President," will irritate some members of the daily press, but each has some standing as a historian, and don't we all agree that this is a historic trip?

Ziegler has characterized China's agreement to a larger press contingent as a generous move, and indeed some concessions on their previous practices were necessary to enable adequate day-to-day coverage. More than a fourth — 24 men — will be television cameramen and technicians.

But anyone who has seen the rampant confusion that surrounds the press mob when a couple of hundred Washington reporters and 50 to 100 local and state newsmen try to keep up with the President must concede that the limited number is to be recommended.

To expose the Chinese to the spectacle of several hundred competing photographers, TV crews, green reporters and greyling prima donnas vying for position with the aid of elbows, knees, sharp pencils and an occasional fingernail might truly convince them that this is a nation of barbarians.

A Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported, in an editorial entitled "A New School For Maryville" (Jan. 28), the state pays $5,000 rent per month for renting the Maryville school. The state pays $5,000 annually, not monthly.

... And A Bit Of Praise

First of all, let me thank your paper for having the column, The Public Issues. I will certainly continue subscribing because of it and many other columns equally interesting and noteworthy!

In response to the responses on Clyde Brooks' letter (Jan. 26), I say to those people, "Stop defending yourselves and admit that he is right!" As a WASP (White-Anglo-Saxon Protestant) and a Suburban liberal, as he calls us, I admire his courage and frankness in relating his experiences with an open mind and positive attitude. He knows that the race problem is not a new one in this country, and until it can be solved it must be THE subject — in action — for all of us. It has been a hard and continual fight by blacks and whites alike to smother bigotry and breathe life into a Brotherhood of Man. It will never be easy to take a stand against the fearful and hateful people of one's own race, but for many of us it is imperative. Without the love of all men for one another there is no such thing as Christianity or democracy at all! This world IS getting smaller, and more and more people are realizing the need for everyman's friendship for their very survival. RIGHT ON, MR. BROOKS!

Thank you for making sure that there was information regarding the Bangladesh benefit dance of Hoffman Estates in The Herald. It was also nice of you to

We had a nice turnout and received $430 in proceeds. I'm sure we'll help to feed some people. Thank you for helping make more aware of it.

Research, Please

A comment on your editorial "Dollars Before Ideals" Monday, January 31, concerning Southern Africa, particularly Rhodesia and Southern Africa.

For your information the United Nations Association of the United States of America, a private organization devoted to promoting international cooperation so your editorial states, is simply not true.

According to their own brochure, UNA-USA is a private, non-partisan organization of people who want to stop war; who want to make the UN a stronger force for reason, for peace, and progress in the world — Communist Russia style I might add.

This organization is a "one-world" group dedicated to the destruction of a constitutional republic as we have in the United States. Quote their chairman Earl Warren, "In the 25 years that have elapsed, we have made some strides in re-ordering international life" — Communist style.

This same group applauded the expulsion of the Republic of China and the entrance of Red China, they applauded the murder and rape of Katanga in the Congo and Pakistan.

They cannot stand the thought of a free Rhodesia, they would dearly love another Katanga.

I would strongly suggest your editorial writer spend a little more time on research on such organization where he might be better able to quote American reality instead of Communist ideology.

Playing Ball To Win

In response to the letter written by the Rolling Meadows Boys' Baseball Association, I have to disagree.

They claim that every boy gets to play, true, but, if he isn't too good he plays one or two innings, which is fair if they would do that with all the boys.

The boy who is truly dedicated but not very good doesn't get to play as much as the boy who doesn't show up for practice.

It is very discouraging to such a boy and he eventually drops out, even though he loves the game. All because a manager and coach want a winning team.

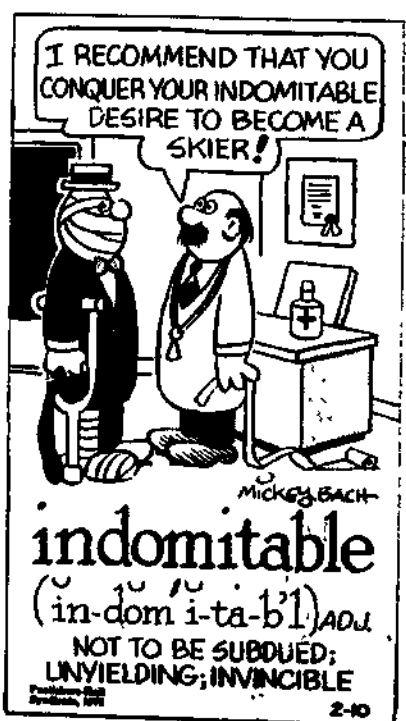

I was always under the impression Boys Baseball was to teach the boys sportsmanship first — competition should come later — much later.

Is it too much for the men to help the boys who need the help? To teach them what comes naturally to some boys? They seem to concentrate only on boys who are good at the sport and neglect the ones who need the help and are truly all heart, where the sport is concerned. I know, for I am the mother of one of such boys. The damage is done and now he is too old for Boys Baseball.

There are other things more important than winning a game.

Business Today

by DAVID W. CHUTE
DETROIT (UPI) — The American auto industry has turned thumbs down on a four-day week in its production plants but is taking a hard look at it for its dealer service areas.

The imports, however, already have stoken a march on the domestics in that area.

Volkswagen and Toyota, the two biggest challengers in the minicar market, have been pushing the four-day, 40 hour week with dealer service areas open six days a week.

They say it has spectacular success in bringing in new business and creating customer satisfaction. As they tell it, equipment that used to be idle over the weekend now is utilized, repair capacity is expanded without increased square footage and their backshop employees are happier by getting three days of free time per week.

JOHN C. BATES, head of General Motors dealer service, says GM's interest is recent but that he travels the country preaching the merits of the four day week, six-day operation to dealers in suburban and rural areas. Bates says the system doesn't work well with city dealers because it does not increase business there.

Chrysler's Robert Johnson has been checking out the merits of the system in places where it has been installed. He visited Tom Sullivan Volkswagen in Southfield, Michigan, where the system has been operating for more than a year. John Neilson, service manager at Tom Sullivan, says his firm instituted the four-day week, six-day operation even before Volkswagen began pushing it and that VW has used his experience in its campaign to get other VW dealers to try it.

Toyota is making a strong pitch to dealers for the four-day week in its magazine "Shop Talk" which is distributed to parts and service managers. It claims that dealers who have tried it have gained greater business and increased floor traffic in the salesrooms as well.

NEILSON AGREES this has been the case at Tom Sullivan VW. Since the program began, he said, the repair business has increased by about 10 per cent without adding any more employees.

His operation functions in two shifts with the repair shop open from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturdays. One shift arrives at 7 a.m. and the other at 9:30 a.m., giving maximum mechanic force during the peak mid-day hours.

One group works Monday through Thursday with Friday, Saturday and Sunday off. The other works Tuesday through Saturday with Sunday, Monday and Tuesday off.

"When we first started," said Neilson, "we thought a lot of our men might moonlight by getting weekend jobs. But it hasn't worked out that way. The men like their leisure time. We get better production from the mechanics and better quality work."

Mrs. Nelson Heads Consumer Board

Mrs. Helen Ewing Nelson, associate director of the Center for Consumer Affairs, University of Wisconsin Extension, was reelected chairman of the Chicago Area Consumer Advisory Board.

Mrs. Nelson, a research economist, holds an A.B. degree in economics from the University of Colorado and an M.A. degree in economics from Mills College. She also holds elected or appointed positions with the Consumer Research Foundation, the Consumer Federation of America, the Board of Directors of the Consumers Union and the Task Force on Consumer Affairs of CUNA, Inc. She served on the President's Consumer Advisory Council by appointment of both John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson and was California's Consumer Counsel by appointment of Governor Pat Brown.

Mrs. Nelson was elected President of the Consumer Federation of America at its national convention in Washington, D.C. on Jan. 29.

Mrs. Agnes Ryan was elected vice chairman of the Chicago Area Consumer Advisory Board at the same meeting. Mrs. Ryan is an attorney for the Legal Aid Bureau of United Charities, assigned to consumer credit and bankruptcy cases. She heads a staff of five attorneys. Mrs. Ryan received her BA from Howard University and her law degree from Fordham University. The board coordinates the efforts of various service organizations, labor groups, industry representatives and citizen groups to provide increased consumer protection and information for the people of the Greater Chicago Area. Another board function is to advise the Federal Trade Commission and other concerned government agencies on consumer education and protection, as well as to inform legislative bodies about the need for various consumer laws and programs.

The board is at present made up of representatives from the American Arbitration Association, the Spanish Center of Milwaukee, the Better Broadcasting Council, Inc., the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan Chicago, Inc., the Board of Education, the University of Wisconsin Extension, the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry and the Chicago Federation of Labor.

Also included are the Chicago Federation of Settlements and Neighborhood Centers, the Chicago Urban League, the Cooperative League of the USA, the Illinois Federation of Consumers, the Illinois Retail Merchants Association, the Legal Aid Bureau, National Consumers Union, the Associated Student Government of Northwestern University and the Chicago Area Council of Senior Citizens Organizations, Inc.

Ways To Save 20 Per Cent Of Income

Families should ideally strive to save 20 per cent of their annual income, but few succeed, fewer try it, and many don't even know how to begin to save any money at all.

The Family Banker, money-management newsletter of Continental Bank in Chicago suggests four steps a family can use to reach that 20 per cent savings goal. First determine net worth; subtract liabilities (what the family owes) from assets (what the family owns). Second, detail family expenses from last year.

Third, determine what income will likely be for the coming year; and fourth prepare a saving/spending budget.

Savings should be the first — not the last — item for the family budget, the newsletter advises. Included in the 20 per cent savings goal should be an emergency reserve fund of three to six months income and a cash goal to cover future big-ticket items the family might want to own. This fund might include money for education, vacations; a new car or a new house.

Expenses such as taxes, insurance, and housing are difficult to reduce, contends The Family Banker, but many of them can be paid for in advance through special-purpose savings accounts. These special "kitties" can ease the impact when big bills strike.

Manageable expenses are the most flexible portion of the budget and can be cut to fit the savings goal. Such expenses include food, clothing, furniture, transportation and personal items.

The budget should be prepared for the year, month-by-month. The record-keeping allows the family to maintain better control over expenses.

The Family Banker suggests several other tips to follow in keeping the family budget and attaining the savings goal:

Make regular deposits, on a weekly, semi-monthly, or monthly basis. Arrange to have funds transferred automatically from checking accounts to savings accounts.

Select the right type of savings account to fit the family need.

The newsletter emphasizes that once a family has created a budget to fit its needs, the commitment must be kept unless there are strong reasons for changing.

Sun-Ford Sales Up

During the recent annual spring and summer merchandising show in Elk Grove Village, the Sun-Ford Hopkins Co. showed 20 to 25 per cent sales increase over last year's show.

As a direct result of the show the company also increased its 400 store franchise by adding 11 new locations.

The private Sun label products drew attention the company reported. Other dollar volume movers were the summer seasonal items such as; sun tan lotions, fans, garden accessories, lawn furniture, barbecues, and beach toys.

The show was held at the Chicago-based retail drug chain's warehouse in Elk Grove village and enjoyed the largest attendance of any previous spring and summer show.

American Can Sales

American Can Co. reported higher sales but a decrease in earnings for 1971.

Consolidated net sales were $1,896,957,000 and net income was $50,135,000 compared with 1970 sales of $1,838,146,000 and net earnings of $65,893,000. Earnings per share of common stock for the year amounted to $2.66 against $3.55 for 1970.

For the fourth quarter, American Can had net sales of $450,758,000 versus $437,383,000 in the year-ago period. Net income for the quarter was $5,763,000, or 28 cents a common share, compared with $6,644,000, or 33 cents a share, for the 1970 fourth quarter.

Operating income in the fourth quarter paralleled the company's year-ago performance. The 5 cents-a-share drop in net earnings from the 1970 quarter was due primarily to charges associated with plant closings, which adversely impacted quarterly earnings by 15 cents per share. These charges were offset partially by benefits from the reenacted investment tax credit and lower Canadian taxes which together added 10 cents a share to the 1971 fourth quarter income as compared to the prior year.

In a review of 1971 operations, William F. May, chairman and president, noted that while sales were up in most of the company's major product lines, a combination of factors contributed to the earnings decline. He cited as negative factors a strike at the majority of the company's can making facilities during the first quarter, substantial price erosion in beer and carbonated beverage containers, lower margins in the paper and paper products area, a slowdown in the chemical business and plant closing costs.

May said that improved performance is expected from the company's operating groups in 1972. He added that such projection assumes continuation and expansion of the economic recovery as well as increased marketing and development efforts across all of the company's product lines. He said that, in addition, American Can should benefit from a full year of the investment tax credit and more stable prices.

To investors who have maturing treasury issues

RE-INVEST WITH US FOR A 6% RATE

As a wise investor, you should consider immediate re-investment of funds from your maturing government securities. And the logical choice is St. Paul Federal's $5,000 minimum, 6% certificate with maturities of 2 to 5 years.

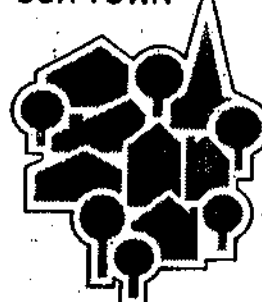

As you know, treasury obligations today no longer offer the high yields of eighteen months ago. In fact, in today's money market these securities are yielding significantly less than the interest yields on our certificates for comparable maturities. And you may invest as little as $5,000 for St. Paul's generous 6% rate, which provides an effective annual rate of 6.18% when left to compound daily. And you can secure 5% (effective annual rate 5.92%) on a one-year certificate, minimum $1,000.

For your added convenience, we are prepared to handle the re-investment and transfer details for you. Just come in with your certificate for prompt handling without loss of interest. Of course, we reserve the right to limit the amount of a single investment.

We remind you that our 6% annual rate is available to you right now and for the duration of your certificate. However, St. Paul Federal cannot predict the future course of interest rates or how long a 6% return will be available. So we urge you to act now.

And remember, the safety of funds placed with us is well known, for St. Paul has been in business continuously for 82 years. We'll keep your money at work safely and profitably.

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

The first report of mis-matched serial numbers on a 1969A series $1 Federal Reserve Note was a page story for three weeks in Coin World. Any additional mis-matches that may be discovered will probably make the front page, too.

The Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank issue with a large letter "D" in the Federal Reserve District designation and the numeral "4" in the four different sections of the face was found by Frank McCracken Jr. of Paris, Ky.

The upper right-hand serial number "D 32319266 B" which, according to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing is correct for this note does not match the serial number in the lower left, "D 42319266 B." The prefix letter "D," being the fourth letter of the alphabet, indicates the note was printed for and issued by the Fourth Federal Reserve District Bank at Cleveland, Ohio.

The suffix letter "B" is also correct, as are seven of the eight serial figures. The first three numbers in the bureau's numbering mechanism are always set by hand. The last five change automatically, which means the error was of human rather than mechanical origin.

Now that you have returned to reading Money Clips after examining the bills in your purse, please notify Ed Neuse, editor, Coin World, P.O. Box 150-B, Sidney, Ohio, 45385, if you were successful in your search. Include your name, address, date and place you acquired the note, if possible, along with the serial numbers in the proper upper right/lower left sequence.

Each year it is the policy of the Bureau of the Mint to make annual proof coin and uncirculated coin sets available to the public on order. Those who order 1972 uncirculated coin sets will receive an order card for both 1973 proof and uncirculated sets when they become available.

Uncirculated coin sets contain pieces manufactured for general circulation purposes, but only the best specimens are selected for uncirculated coin sets.

Each set consists of a 50-, 25-, 10-, 5- and 1-cent piece from the Denver and Philadelphia mints, and a 1-cent piece from the U.S. Assay Office at San Francisco. The price of $3.50 per set of 11 coins includes first-class registered mail fees.

Requests for uncirculated coins should be directed to the Officer in Charge, U.S. Assay Office, Numismatic Service, 50 Fell St., San Francisco, Calif. 94102, and should be accompanied by remittance in full in the form of a U.S. money order or a check made payable to the Officer in Charge. Please do not send cash.

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Take Your Time

Finding The Right Nursing Home

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Your elderly father who lives with you suddenly has a stroke that leaves him with a temporary or permanent physical disability and mental confusion.

Your widowed mother, who has been living independently, begins to decline in health and can no longer manage alone.

Your elderly parents, maintaining their own home, until now have cared well for themselves, but one has an accident, and the other is unable to give him the care he needs.

What should you do?

Families everywhere share your problem. Needs for these relatives vary from close supervision or constant attendance to skilled nursing care . . . often following a period of hospitalization. For various reasons — a job, small children, lack of space, ill health, inability or unwillingness to cope with added responsibility — family members are unable to provide at home the kind of care these sick people need, and must look elsewhere for help. A nursing home may be the answer.

FINDING THE RIGHT nursing home for an elderly or incapacitated patient is not an easy task. And, according to professionals working in this health field, it is not a job to undertake alone.

They suggest you enlist the aid of the patient's private physician, or your own family doctor. If either is a staff member of one or more of the four local hospitals, he'll probably refer you to the hospital's social services or home care departments. They provide this kind of help.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, Holy Family in Des Plaines, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, all work personally with these patients and the families. (Though their efforts generally are undertaken for staff doctors' patients, hospital personnel say they never turn away anyone asking for help.)

THOSE WHO WORK with geriatric placements also suggest you inquire among friends, neighbors and relatives who may have experience with nursing homes. Or telephone Information Center for Aging in Chicago. This agency may be able to steer you in the right direction.

"A particular home must be geared to a particular patient's needs . . . and to what he or the family can afford to pay," advises Mrs. Margaret Klein, assistant director for the Information Center.

All professionals agree the first step in searching out the right nursing home begins with the patient and his physician. A complete physical examination will determine the kind of nursing care the patient needs. Approximate length of stay also may be established by this evaluation of the patient's health.

Only those patients who first have undergone a thorough examination are accepted by licensed nursing homes in Illinois. Patients then are admitted only with doctor's orders.

TO OBTAIN A license in this state, a nursing home must meet standard rules and regulations set by the Illinois Department of Public Health. Nursing homes, which provide either minimal care and/or added personal care or skilled nursing care, must meet state standards. These standards cover administration and personnel and also restorative services, medical and personal care, if provided. Food services, building maintenance, home furnishings and physical plant safety and other facets of nursing home operation must meet Illinois specifications.

The Illinois Department of Public Health now conducts four unannounced inspections yearly. All nursing homes are required to be licensed and this state licensure should be prominently displayed. Nursing home professionals suggest you look for it — and others — when you personally inspect homes.

The quality of nursing services may be indicated further by additional accreditations such as given by the Joint Commission or Accreditation of Hospitals and diplomas and certificates of nursing home studies. Look for them. If you do not see them, ask about them.

REMEMBER, THE SEARCH for a nursing home takes time and patience. Those helping families to find these facilities understand the emotional impact such a decision has upon many families and patients. They report the most common reaction in families is guilt . . . and in patients, abandonment. For these reasons and others, professionals caution against hasty decisions.

What could be a good facility for one elderly person might be a very unsatisfactory choice for another. Those unfamiliar with facilities for the aged may become confused. Such institutions include retirement homes, homes for the aged and nursing homes.

Retirement homes provide hotel facilities, three meals a day, laundry and cleaning services. Good retirement homes include activity programs. The Georgian House in Evanston and the Chelsey House in Chicago are examples of retirement homes.

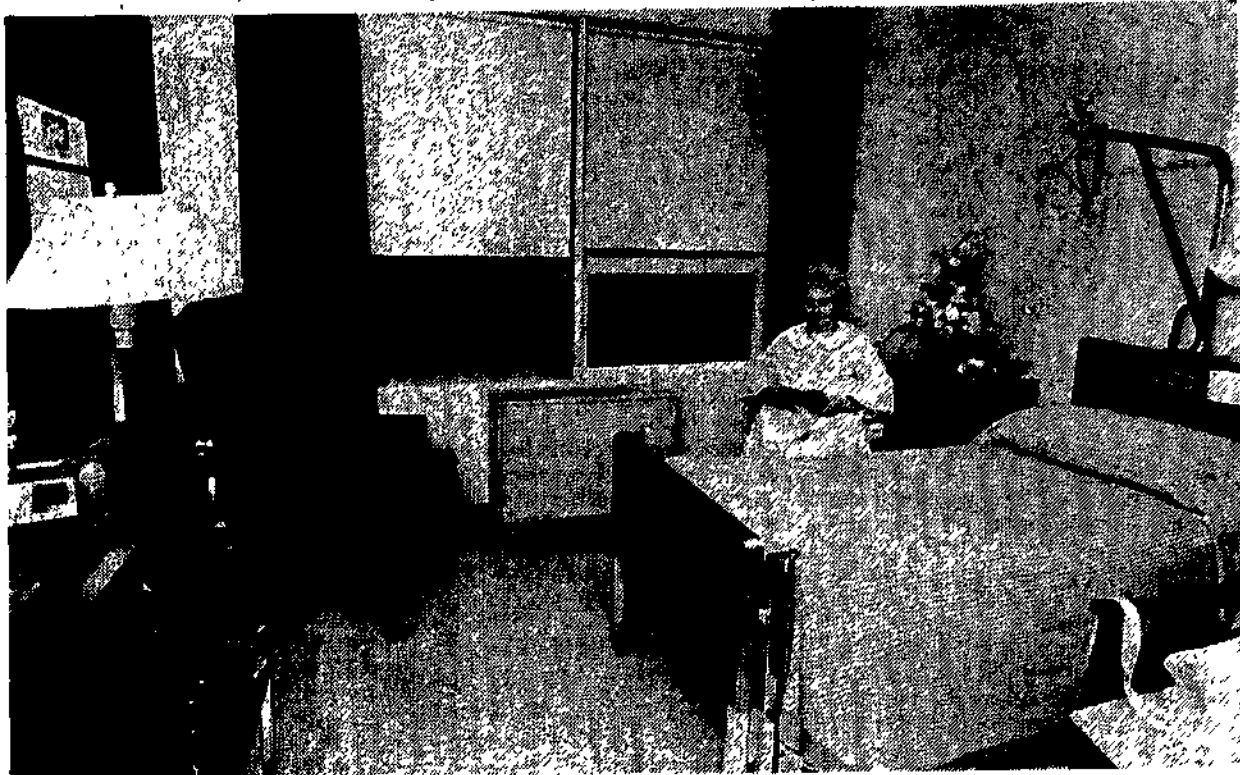

HOMES FOR THE aged usually are non-profit and are run by religious and fraternal organizations. Most residents are members of these groups, and are admitted only if in good health and able to care for themselves. However, most homes for the aged have infirmaries which give health care and nursing services as needed. Lutheran Home and Services for the Aged in Arlington Heights and St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly in Palatine are examples.

Nursing homes — sometimes referred to as rest homes, convalescent homes or sanitariums — provide health care upon admittance. Ideally, a nursing home is a facility which provides good nursing care in an environment as homelike as possible. But, caution the professionals, excellent services are more important than plush surroundings. Staff services should be closely observed also, and the place should be clean and cheerful.

Hospital personnel — familiar with nursing home facilities and their staffs in this area — cite Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine, Americana Center in Arlington Heights and Brookwood Convalescent Center in Des Plaines as excellent examples of nursing homes that provide physical therapy, and other restorative services in addition to skilled nursing care.

"BUT ANY REPUTABLE nursing home will welcome your inspection," said Mrs. Margaret Klein, Information Center for Aging.

Personal inspection by families looking for nursing homes is a "must." Once the NURSING HOMES should have as homelike an atmosphere as possible for good patient morale. Television, comfortable lounge chair and flowers help create a homely touch to the individual room of Miss Gertrude Cushing, resident at Plum Grove Nursing Home. Staff attitude is another important factor.

RESIDENTS OF nursing homes are healthier and happier when there is a good activities program. Miss Valerian Condon, back to camera, Mrs. Olivia Mason and Mrs. Amanda Freeman try their hand at ceramics in the activities room at Plum Grove Nursing Home. Whether a home has such activities is another item to check out.

patient's needs have been established, professionals will do the initial "leg work." Then — if possible — they will recommend several nearby (there aren't always vacancies) homes for the families to visit.

What will this cost you? Plenty. Nursing home costs in the northwest suburbs run from $437 to $920 a month without medical costs. At present, according to professionals, there's not too much help with this expense. Minimal aid may be forthcoming from Medicare, depending on the disability. Insurance companies, however, are aware of the need for help in this health area and, hopefully, will soon come up with a good program. And the Cook County Department of Public Aid places needy patients.

OTHERWISE, THE cost is up to you, and this is another reason you should make a careful choice. For example, a short stay in an excellent skilled nursing home may seem financially prohibitive. However, if the patient is well cared for, restored to good physical and mental health as quickly as possible, perhaps preventing long-term or permanent disability, your choice is a happy and cheaper one. Or, if you place your relative in a plush, skilled nursing home, you could be making a financial mistake. Room and board, help with laundry and cleaning and some personal courtesies in pleasant surroundings with a sympathetic staff may be just "what the doctor ordered," and it is cheaper.

Don't be afraid to ask for help. Send 15 cents to the American Medical Association, 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610 and ask for "What To Look for in a Nursing Home."

PROFESSIONALS ADVISE those seeking a nursing home for an elderly or infirm family member to check the facilities for themselves. One of the things to look for is a clean and cheerful dining room. At Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine, residents Willard Cooke, Mrs. Edith Lorenzen, rear, and Mrs. Florence Spetch enjoy mealtime in pleasant surroundings.

Women's Rights In Limelight

Women's rights will get attention next week in Chicago when the anniversary of the birth of Susan B. Anthony is celebrated Tuesday and a women's rights conference is held on Wednesday.

Chicago NOW is commemorating Susan B. Anthony's birthday by sponsoring a fund-raising event which will feature the Chicago premiere of Kate Millett's film, "Three Lives." The 70-minute film deals with three women and their experiences as human beings.

The main event will be held in the Mayfair Room of the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel, Michigan at Balbo. The film will be shown at 7 p.m. followed by a reception.

Mary Ann Lupa, president of Chicago NOW, said, "Those attending our Tuesday event will have a chance to meet and talk to a number of prominent feminists at the reception. We have invited as our guests a number of women who, like Susan B. Anthony, are battling for women's rights."

GUESTS AT THE film and reception will include Johnnie Tillmon, associate executive director, National Welfare Rights Organization and Aileen Hernandez, former national president of NOW. Also, Susan Davis, editor and publisher of Spokesman Newsletter and winner of Mademoiselle's award to outstanding young women, will be present.

Tickets at $4 are available at the Loop Center YWCA, 37 S. Wabash, third floor, or by calling 267-1115.

The film will also be shown at noon and 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Loop Center YWCA. Price is $1.50. Tickets will be available at the door only.

"WE FEEL IT IS important that Susan

B. Anthony be remembered," continued Mary Ann Lupa. "Chicago NOW is commemorating Susan B. Anthony's birthday to show our recognition of her dedication to our cause. She is indeed a role model for all the women today struggling for women's rights."

Then on Wednesday, 7 to 10 p.m., national feminist speakers Gloria Steinem and Johnnie Tillmon will head up a Women's Rights Conference at the Sheraton Blackstone Hotel.

In addition to the two main speakers, a panel will discuss issues related to discrimination in employment. Tickets will be available at the door. Further information is available through 629-0170.

Care Labeling Ordered On Piece Goods, Clothing

URBANA — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has announced a new rule to help consumers with that complex problem of clothing care and maintenance.

Dorothy Goss, University of Illinois Extension home management specialist, explains that all articles of clothing leaving a manufacturer after July 3, must bear a permanent label giving care instructions. The rule covers all garments, including hosiery, that require care and maintenance for their ordinary use and enjoyment.

However, garments may be exempt that are intended to be sold at retail for $3 or less and which are completely washable under normal and reasonable circumstances.

In addition, the FTC regulation applies to piece goods sold for the home sewing of apparel. Fabric must be accompanied by care labels that can be attached permanently to the material by normal household methods, such as sewing or ironing.

CARE LABELING applies to both imported and American-made clothes. But the rule does not apply to footwear, gloves or articles intended exclusively for headwear.

Label instructions must meet these criteria:

—Fully inform the purchaser how to wash, dry, iron, bleach, dry clean and otherwise regularly care and maintain a particular article.

—Warn the purchaser of any usual care and maintenance procedures that may seem to apply to the article but that actually do not apply. For instance, a garment might appear to be washable when, in fact, dry cleaning is required, or the opposite might be true.

—Be made readily accessible to the user; for example, not hidden in a pocket.

From one frozen armchair gardener to another, "Read any good books lately?"

Certainly winter provides time for catching up on back reading.

If you have time for only one book before the growing season sneaks up, try "The Ruth Stout No-Work Garden Book" by who else? Ruth Stout. It's a gardening book-of-the-month selection from Rodale Press.

Ruth Stout is considered the "mulch queen." She doesn't plow, spade, hoe, cultivate, weed, water or spray. At 80 years old who needs all that? Ruth says that with her method she can grow vegetables from her wheelchair, if need be!

THE STOUT no-slave-to-the-garden technique calls for a 6 to 8-inch year-round straw mulch. This is a great approach for anyone who has a garden but is not very enthusiastic about it, working mothers, career girls, lazy husbands and children who never belonged to 4-H.

Weeds? Just toss on some straw to smother them or add layers of wet newspapers (the weeds die beneath the weight of public opinion).

I admit most people would be a little skeptical about reading this book. No work-ha ha. But Ruth Stout means it. The Prairie Farmers tried it out at Arlington Heights this past summer with good results. When you don't have water, mulching is the best way.

Ruth believes that gardening should be a dalliance, not an engineering project. (Right on, Ruth.)

Maybe I liked this book because Ruth Stout doesn't set herself up as a know-it-all. Her approach is: "This is what works for me. She gets her points across without being pushy about them. "If you're devoted to chemical fertilizers," says Ruth, "enjoy yourself. I don't need it. I wouldn't advise anyone not to spray, that's their affair, but I'm genuinely sorry for sprayers."

HER STYLE is breezy and fast-paced. Her reasoning — logical. "If plowing and cultivating are so very important, then why is it that we don't turn the soil under asparagus, roses, rhubarb, etc?"

The Home Line

Dear Dorothy: My husband surprised me at Christmas with a beautiful mink jacket and matching hat. I've never owned a fur before and have no background on how to take care of it. Friends say the fur should never be rubbed down, always up. What happens if I wear it in rain or snow? Is it true that I must put it in cold storage this summer? Should the hat and jacket be covered in the closet to keep the dust off?

—Mrs. T.P.
Relax. Mink is a very sturdy fur and requires very little unusual care. If it gets wet, just hang it carefully in an area away from heat. When it's dry just shake it out. Try to hang it in a closet farthest from heat. No, the pieces do not need covering, and yes, they should be stored in the summer to keep the oils from drying out. That's all there is to it.

Good point, Ruth, it makes us readers think.

"The Ruth Stout No-Work Garden Book," another well done Stout special.

Another book that crossed my path this month was "Peacock Manure and Marigolds" by Janet Gillespie (Ballantine Books).

This is one you won't want to miss — if you have time to waste.

THE AUTHOR tried to be clever and down-to-earth and inject some humor into the generally blah subject of gardening — but she missed.

Unfortunately, this one comes off sounding like advice from the friendly, neighborhood ding-a-ling. Statements like "a spray of miscible oil, whatever that is," make her sound incompetent.

The purpose of the book "to promote a safe world for people and creatures to live in" is all very noble, but Mrs. Gillespie didn't do her homework.

If anyone asked, I'd say, "Pass up the peacock manure."

A tour of commercial greenhouses is planned by the Chicago Horticultural Society next Thursday, Feb. 17. The tour includes stops at Leider Greenhouse in Aptakisic, growers of house and foliage plants and operators of tropical plant rental services, and at Hausermann's Orchids in Addison, one of the world's largest orchid growers. The tour bus leaves the Botanic Garden Lake-Cook Road entrance at 9 a.m.

"Flowering Trees for Chicagoland" is the topic for a workshop program at the Botanic Garden on Edens Expressway Tuesday, Feb. 15. There will be two sessions, one at 10 a.m. and the other at 1:30 p.m., both conducted by Glenn Park, chief horticulturist. Information about both the tour and the workshop may be obtained by calling Fran Whittin, programs coordinator for the Horticultural Society, 332-2868.

Go ahead and enjoy it.

Dear Dorothy: I always keep a box of seasoned croutons on the kitchen shelf. Not only do they add something to a tossed salad but when seasoned crumbs are called for in breaded chicken or such, it's the easiest thing in the world to put some croutons in a bag and crush them with the rolling pin. You couldn't ask for tastier crumbs for anything.

—Joyce Mathews.
Dear Dorothy: I've used activated charcoal to absorb odors in various situations, too, and found it unbelievably satisfactory. However, can it be reactivated after it has absorbed the odors completely?

—Mrs. Charles Clarkson.
Spread the granules in a dish and leave in the direct sun and it ought to be reusable in 24 hours. All you have to do is take a "whiff" if it smells okay it can be put back in service. If there's still some odor, leave it a little longer. (Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Lower Swim Times A Year-Round Job

HINSDALE CENTRAL is the 1972 state swimming champion.

Now that this annual concession has been made, it's time to talk about the race for remaining spots in the team standings.

Such talk in the past would usually be confined to discussing how an area individual would do instead of how our teams would perform. Not anymore.

St. Viator, a school that consistently has swimmers in the grand finale, should have more area company than usual come the last weekend in February. Nearly the entire Herald Area Honor Roll is filled with preps who have already met or surpassed state qualifying standards. Many were doing it early in the season. This could mean several swimmers from the top area teams competing in the finals.

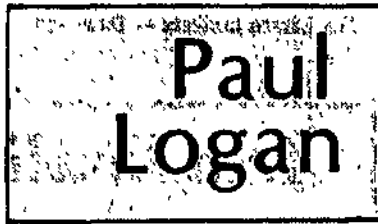

A glance at last year's honor (below) compared to this year's would surprise a lot of people, as it did Don Anderson, Arlington's coach.

"I looked at it myself a couple of weeks ago and I couldn't believe it," he said. "Some of the times on the honor roll a year ago wouldn't make it this year. There has been a tremendous amount of improvement."

With nearly three weeks left in which to lower existing times, already seven of the 10 event top times have surpassed the final honor roll of 1971. Only the 50 and 400 freestyles haven't been matched and the individual medley has been tied. Of the new times, some have bettered the old standards by quite a few seconds.

What are the reasons for this upsurge of swimming accomplishments?

Several coaches were consulted to get the answers, among them Forest View's

Gordon Aukerman. His team has enjoyed more success so far than any other in the area. Aukerman gave three principle reasons:

• More area coaches are working at the job year-round to sell their teams on the sport.

• The top kids in every honor roll event without exception have spent the entire year swimming, lifting weights and working out.

• The image of swimming has been greatly enhanced over the past three or four years.

"In total, we're getting more and better talent," said Aukerman. "It's rare to have this many good senior swimmers in the league. Seniors competing against one another are bound to bring out the best."

"I've got eight seniors who have had four years of varsity competition. As sophomores they won the conference."

Helping to keep the honor rolls' best sharp all summer long have been the park district programs, according to Aukerman. Anderson agrees.

"The park districts have been there for a long time, but they didn't seem to have high school kids with them until last year," Don said.

These summer programs, plus the assistance given by the programs at the Northwest YMCA, have greatly aided the work of the high school coach, according to Aukerman.

The non-conference meets of the Mid-Suburban League teams have reflected this improvement. Both Forest View and Arlington have defeated perennially tough St. Viator in duals for the first time ever this season, and this isn't a down year for the Lions. The other teams in the league have also done well against outside competition, as Aukerman explains:

"A few years back we were lucky to stay within 30 points of them. Now conference teams are going out and beating these teams. Personally, if I could get us on the schedule with Evanston, New Trier or Hinsdale, I'd like to."

Such scheduling is tough because of the limited number of meets prep teams can participate in. However, if the area continues to improve, the top athletes will at least get that valuable experience of going against the best in the state finals.

Spotlight On Swimming

Forest View Favored In MSL . . .

by PAUL LOGAN
Swimming Editor

If you talk to the Mid-Suburban League's swim coaches, they'll make Forest View sound like a "junior" Hinsdale Central, the perennial state champion.

The Falcons of Coach Gordon Aukerman have swam to convincing dual meet victories over the six other MSL teams, have won 20 straight overall duals the past two seasons and are loaded with veteran seniors. In short, one conference coach called them the area's "super team."

Forest View has had the edge in the two previous league showdowns, winning the first ever and then sharing the second title with Arlington. And, to make matters still worse for the rest of the league, the Falcons will be hosting the meet Friday night.

Olympic Pool in Arlington Heights will be the site with the first of 11 events scheduled to begin at 7 p.m.

Elk Grove's Jim Harrington, when asked if an upset was possible, quickly said, "I don't think anybody's going to do that. He's (Aukerman) got too many kids and they all seem to be at the top."

A glance at this week's swim honor roll proves his point. No less than eight events have Falcons placing highest of the MSL swimmers and divers. This alone makes them the most heavily favored team in the three-year history of the meet.

Forest View was expected to be a fine team this season, but the addition of former Elk Grove performer Cliff Schlak has made it into a great team.

"I think he's the big difference," says Don Anderson, Arlington's coach. "If Schlak had stayed with Elk Grove, he would have made them very tough. I think it would have been a three-team race had Schlak stayed there."

Now, according to Anderson, the real excitement will be second place with Arlington, Elk Grove and Prospect the principle contenders.

However, Aukerman doesn't take the same viewpoint as his peers.

"I look at it this way," says Aukerman. "The conference meet will be a pie cutting contest. I think the results are going to depend a great deal on where the four teams go with their top boys."

"I look for it to be a good meet in terms of competition. It's not going to be lopsided at all, I don't think."

"We don't have the depth of Arlington. Consequently, if we don't score with our second boys, we're going to have our hands full. As far as I'm concerned, it's a race to win those second places."

The league coaches met Monday night

. . . So's St. Viator In SCC

St. Viator is favored to win the second annual Suburban Catholic Conference title. So what's new?

The Lions captured the first SCC championship last year. Prior to that, St. Viator teams had taken six straight crowns in the Chicagoland Prep League. This winning tradition has definitely soaked in.

"They're still the favorite in the league," says Jim Kelly, Marmion's coach, of Coach John Fleck's Lions. "The dual meet means very little."

Kelly was referring to Marmion's 58-37 victory over St. Viator earlier in the season, a win Kelly admits was tainted because two Lions were missing and another was ailing. Randy Robertson had a pulled muscle and Monte McCollum was sick for a week. Jeff Iversen swam but was slowed by mononucleosis.

Fleck's Lions are plenty healthy now and anxiously await the Saturday showdown in the Marmion pool. The diving will get underway at 10 a.m. with the swimming events scheduled for 1 p.m.

"I think they have quite a bit of depth which we can't come up with," says Kelly. "We're a school of 400 boys and it's tough to come up the number of boys that they do."

"Marmion has some fine first-place performers," adds Fleck, "but they don't have the depth."

Leading the strong St. Viator contingent is Mike Salerno, one of the top backstroke performers in the state. Salerno, although only a junior, dazzled those in attendance at the Notre Dame meet on Saturday with a spectacular :56.7 for the 100-yard event. Only one other swimmer as of last week — Hinsdale Central's Russ Meyer (:56.1) — had done better in the state.

"He seems to be dropping a second every time he swims," says Fleck. "We've been working with mechanics this week. He's a real perfectionist."

Salerno should be in a class by himself in the backstroke Saturday.

"We could 1-2 them in the back and breast," adds Fleck. He is hoping that Mark Savage finishes close to Salerno and Randy Robertson and Kevin Szarabjka take first and second in the breaststroke.

Just as Salerno turned in an area low in the backstroke, Robertson did the same in the breaststroke with 1:05.1, eight-tenths of a second below his prior top performance.

The Lion medley relay team — Salerno, Robertson, Jim Wolf and Bob Rathman — is also expected to take a first, according to Fleck.

to discuss seeding the athletes in the 10 swimming events. The divers are not seeded and must draw the order in which they compete.

As expected, Forest View received the top seed in six events. Schlak led the 200 and 400 freestyles and Mark Bailey the 200 and 400 freestyles and Mark Bailey the 200 and 400 freestyles.

Set District Swim Sites

Highland Park and New Trier West will be the hosting districts for the Mid-Suburban League and St. Viator swimmers on Feb. 19.

Five of the teams — St. Viator, Arlington, Hersey, Wheeling and Rolling Meadows — will be a part of the 11-team field at Highland Park. Also competing with them will be Deerfield, Lake Forest, Libertyville, Stevenson, Waukegan and Highland Park.

Northfield will be hosting Forest View, Prospect and Elk Grove. Also contending will be Maine North, Glenbrook South, Notre Dame, Glenbrook North, New Trier East, Niles North and New Trier West.

In all, 116 downstate and suburban high schools have entered the tournament. Eight other districts will also be in business on that Saturday. Winners of first and second places in each event and divers finishing in the top five will advance to the finals to be held at New Trier East on Feb. 25-26.

Hinsdale Central is the defending state champion with New Trier East placing second. Evanston was third.

Top Teams Win, Others Keep Pace In Swim Action

As the area's swimming powers continued to roll toward possible conference championships, the rest of the teams sharpened their skills last week.

Highlighting St. Viator's 67-25 victory over Notre Dame was Mike Salerno's sensational showing in the 100-yard backstroke Saturday. Salerno, only a junior, splashed out a sparkling 1:06.7, second best in the state so far this season.

Meanwhile, causing a celebration at Forest View coach Gordon Aukerman's house was a big non-conference victory. The Falcons won their own triangular and handed powerful Rockford Guilford its first loss of the season.

As a warmup to their prestigious showing on Saturday, the Falcons polished off Mid-Suburban League opponent Hersey, 82-13. In other MSL action, Arlington held off Elk Grove, 58-39, and Prospect handled Wheeling, 60-26.

In non-conference meets, the Knights ripped hosting Lake Forest, 55-39, and Hersey stopped McHenry, 62-33.

Wheeling and Rolling Meadows were to have met last night to wind up the dual meet schedule in the MSL. Both were winless.

St. Viator registered five 1-2 slams and just missed a sixth because of a disqualification en route to its Suburban Catholic Conference victory. They came this way:

Jeff Iversen (1:57.9) and Ed Fitzsimmons (2:03.6) in the 200 freestyle, Mark Savage (2:17.0) and Salerno (2:17.7) in the 200 individual medley, Jeff Hansen (1:37.2) and Tom Ponsot (1:08.8) in diving, Ed Fitzsimmons (4:16.3) and Mike Schroeder (4:16.8) in the 400 freestyle and Salerno (5:58.7) and Savage (1:03.9) in the 100 backstroke.

As to how competitive Rockford Guilford was for Forest View, Aukerman had this to say, "They're in a class by themselves there (in Rockford)."

Still, the Falcons met the challenge and finished with 69 points, 12 more than their talented Guilford guests. Thornwood finished with 42.

Two school records fell in the first two events as the Falcons, winners of 20 straight meets, were intent on victory. The medley relay team — Jeff Geister, Fred Westdale, John Mate and Mark Bailey — fashioned a very fine 1:44.6. Then Cliff Schlak, the MSL's top all-around performer, streaked to a 1:49.5 in the 200 individual medley. Forest View was on its way.

Also taking firsts were Mate in the butterfly (58.2), Bailey in the 100 freestyle (51.9) and the 400 freestyle relay team of Pete Lenkeit, Mate, Norb Polacek and Schlak (3:30.1).

Arlington survived a fine 1-2 punch of Scott Bolin and Dave Toler with plenty of depth to keep alive an outside shot at a share of the conference title. Bolin won the 200 freestyle (1:53.7) and the 400 freestyle (4:06.7); Toler took the 200 individual medley (2:08.8) and the 100 breaststroke (1:08.1).

In all, the Grenadiers captured six of the 11 events, but Arlington dominated most of the rest of the places to run its record to 5-1. The Grove is 3-3 in the MSL.

The Cardinals received an added boost with Steve Jurco's fine efforts in the 100 freestyle and anchor leg in the 400 freestyle relay. Jurco won the first event and brought his team another victory in the relay despite still being slowed by a nagging illness.

Prospect moved into third in the dual standings (4-2) behind the leadership of Rich Fox and Paul Sigfusson. Fox took the 50 freestyle (23.4) and the 100 freestyle (52.9); Sigfusson the 400 freestyle (4:16.5) and the 100 backstroke (1:07.2).

The only win the Wildcats could manage against the Knights came in diving as George Wurtz totaled 123.6.

Forest View, behind the double wins of Schlak and Bailey, swept all the top spots against the Huskies. Schlak won the individual medley (2:19.5) and the 400 freestyle (4:20.0); Bailey championed the 50 freestyle (23.5) and the 100 freestyle (53.5).

The Falcons are 6-0 and the Huskies 2-4 in the MSL.

The Larsen brothers — Dave and Jeff — teamed up to help pace Prospect against Lake Forest. Dave won the individual medley (2:19.5) and Jeff the butterfly (1:02.8).

Hersey's Mike Richartz was the big gun against McHenry. Richartz won both the 50 freestyle (23.9) and the 100 freestyle (54.7). He also anchored the 400 freestyle relay to victory in a time of 3:46.2.

Elk Grove Tips Schaumburg

by JIM COOK

Don't ever judge a book by its cover or basketball teams by the final score.

Either ancient adage would have been applicable Tuesday night when Elk Grove and Schaumburg locked horns in a Mid-Suburban League South Division clash.

A century-mark digit may have been expected from either of the clubs with all the speed and quickness each harnesses. But the teams didn't even combine for that many as the Grenadiers survived Schaumburg's ball-control tactics for a 47-45 triumph.

As one Elk Grove backer observed, "It wasn't a masterful win, but a win just the same." He was obviously referring to the numerous turnovers and temper tantrums that marred an otherwise thrilling game.

Rebounding between the two smallest teams in the circuit was fierce at both ends of the floor and was directly responsible for a brief skirmish and a later technical foul from the incensed players.

When only seven points separates the largest margin by either club for 32 minutes of grueling physical combat, exuberance and frustration are likely products.

The Saxons' deliberate style of play was noticeably effective against the Grenadiers who had been running to three victories in their last four outings. "That can really hurt a team who's itching to run and play good, aggressive defense," Parmentier said. "The pressure is unbelievable for a shooter who goes up knowing that his shot might be the last time his team touches the ball for the next three minutes."

Elk Grove held the ball long enough down the crucial and heart-stopping stretch to nervously put the decision under lock and key.

With just 35 seconds remaining and the Grenadiers desperately trying to protect a 44-41 edge, Steve Scholten misfired on a bonus situation at the free throw line and Saxon John Blasco promptly dropped in a layup at the other end for a 44-43 score.

Elk Grove's Mike Milner had the next chance to ease the tension, but both of his two-shot foul attempts went awry. Teammate Bob Prince made it a two-point game when he converted a technical foul shot, but it still wasn't over.

A bad pass by Schaumburg with 12 seconds left got the ball back to Elk Grove, but it wasn't until Prince casually pumped in a pair of one-and-one chances that was enough to offset a last-second drive by Saxon Jeff Larson.

In a very low scoring first half, both teams ripped the cords at fantastic clips. Schaumburg clicked on 9-15 and Elk Grove on 7-12 as neither wanted anything but the good percentage shot.

The Saxons owned a 28-18 cushion at the intermission by out-scoring Elk Grove, 15-7. The Grenadiers recorded only two buckets in the stanza (both by sub Jeff Sronkoski), but the cold glove promptly changed hands.

A pair of field goals by Schaumburg center Larry Weller was all the Saxons could muster from the floor in period three, which afforded Elk Grove a 33-33 deadlock after 24 minutes.

A Keith Chulpek steal and layup to open the final quarter gave the Grenadiers a lead they never relinquished. Although Ken Pollitz's layup with 2:45 remaining was Elk Grove's final bucket of the evening, 7-10 shooting at the free throw line the remainder of the way proved enough.

The triumph boosted Elk Grove over the .500 standard at 9-8, and having won four of its last five, puts them in a good position to finish over the break-even point for the first time in its varsity history.

"We've played better games, but I'll take it," Parmentier nodded.

Mansfield Accuses Senators Of Shirking Duties

by STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With Democratic presidential candidates leading the way, the Senate in the first three weeks of the current session ran up an absentee record which upset even its gentle-mannered Democratic leader, Mike Mansfield. The first of the congressional vacations began today.

In a rare display of pique on the eve of the Lincoln Birthday recess, Mansfield accused some senate members of shirking their duties.

Muskie of Maine 28; Sen. Vance Hartke of Indiana 23; and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and George S. McGovern of South Dakota 21 each.

The votes came on such issues as amendments to legislation to increase the power of the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission, foreign aid appropriations, and the dock strike.

Bakalis' Office To Request Less Money This Year

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Superintendent of Public Instruction Michael J. Bakalis said Wednesday he will ask the legislature for $260,200 less to run his office in fiscal 1973 than he requested for the current fiscal year.

Bakalis said he will seek an office operating budget of $11,528,900 for next year, $260,200 below his $11,789,100 request for fiscal 1972.

A spokesman for Bakalis said requests were reduced chiefly in two areas — those for contractual services and office supplies. Last year, Bakalis' first as Illinois' chief education officer, he sought $164,000 less to run the superintendent's office than had been spent the year before.

February," Mansfield said. "If the Senate wants to lollygag and engage in dilatory tactics, I'm interested in getting the appropriations bills passed and then get out. If the Senate is not going to act with maturity — like grownup men — then that's the Senate's responsibility."

He said absenteeism was running at 25 per cent but, in response to a question, added "the presidential candidates, compared to others who are not running, have a good record."

Despite Mansfield's disclaimer, a check of roll call votes taken this session showed that the five candidates in the Senate are among the worst offenders, although they have several times interrupted their campaigns to return for critical votes

In order of absenteeism on the first 30 roll call votes, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington missed 27; Sen. Edmund S.

LaFontaine Has Four Home Plans

The northwest side of Glenview features a new 94-unit development called LaFontaine, located on Lake St. and Pfingsten Road.

A price range of $80,900 to $65,400 is included at the project by I. Kogan Construction Co. According to Irving Kogan, president of the developing organization, the homes being built are in response to demand in the north suburban area.

"We have four basic plans," Kogan said, "and three of the four have four bedrooms and either two or two-and-a-half baths. The fourth plan, which we call Les Bordeaux, has five bedrooms and two-and-a-half baths. All plans include basements and two-car garages. All have laundry and utility rooms.

"Additionally, all of our homesites are fully improved," Kogan continued. "There are separate storm and sanitary sewers, curbs and gutters, sidewalks, and underground utilities. The home buyer has no assessments to pay for any of these items."

Kogan said that model homes, ready for immediate occupancy, are for sale. LaFontaine is open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on weekends from 10 a.m. to dark.

FIVE-BEDROOM model home as shown above can be custom built by the LaFontaine development in Glenview. The project by I. Kogan Construction Co. features this Les Bordeaux model or three other basic models with four bedrooms each. Basement and a two car garage is included in all the houses offered at LaFontaine.

Consumer Views Key To Success

The developer of La Salceda, located in Northbrook, has no doubts that 1972 will represent another successful year.

"I am sure that we will sell out our remaining homes in 1972," said Joseph M. Horwitz, president of Red Seal Homes, Inc., developers of La Salceda, "but it won't necessarily be determined by the entire economic spectrum." He said a builder must take the consumers point of view into consideration. La Salceda has already sold more than 50 homes worth over $3,000,000 dollars since its introduction in September of 1970.

"One of our most important features," Horwitz said, "is the overall startling design of our homes. Despite the booming popularity of the Spanish Mediterranean design, a good number of our sales are being made for Georgian, colonial and other traditional styles. Far from spoiling the overall appearance of the community, these homes provide scale and realism which would not otherwise exist. But La Salceda, with its admixture of Colonial and other traditional styles, will look very much like a real community which 'just grew,' although obviously carefully tended."

The master bedroom suite and sitting room offered in all homes is probably the most impressive feature offered in La Salceda's interior design according to Horwitz.

The fact that every home is custom built to the buyers specifications also appears to be one of the bigger La Salceda selling points he said.

The home buyer gets a choice of ceramic tiles, quarry stone, or stained oak floors. Whole-house air-conditioning and sound control, and extended cabinet and counter space in the kitchen are available at no additional fee.

New Towns Don't Grow Like Topsy

Today's new towns are being mapped out in complete detail before they are built rather than being allowed to just grow like Topsy, according to Durand A. Holladay, chairman and managing trustee of Diversified Mortgage Investors, Boston, Mass.

Diversified Mortgage is a multi-specialty real estate trust which has made nearly $500 million in mortgage loans since beginning operations in late 1969. Holladay is also secretary and a trustee of Continental Mortgage Investors, Boston, the nation's largest real estate trust in mortgage lending.

"Boom towns grew up all across the country in the last century — prompted mostly by the discoveries of gold, silver, oil. And many of them died just as quickly — the ghost towns of today," Holladay said. "Modern planners, however, have learned from the past. They are not building new towns whose economy is based on a single product or industry. There is a diversity — something for everybody."

The successful new towns have not been built strictly as bedroom communities — added suburbs for sprawling metropolitan areas. They are complete communities — homes, schools, churches, apartment buildings, shopping centers, office buildings and industries and businesses, he adds.

"A recent study of 10 new American towns shows that the average family is in the middle-age bracket — 35 to 45 years — with an annual income of between $17,000 and $20,000. Their children range from tots to teenagers," he said.

"These same surveys show that the residents of new towns enjoy their surroundings. There is a general feeling that while the new planned communities offer most of the advantages of metropolitan life, there is still a definite closeness — friendliness — between residents — a traditional hallmark of small town America," he said.

The only dissenters, he noted, are usually teenagers. "Although they like the school facilities, most say there is not enough for them to do there. But that is a complaint that is heard in just about every town in the country — no matter what size it is," Holladay said.

Families with young children, however, are happy with the facilities that new town developers include for youngsters — swimming pools, playgrounds and plenty of open space for them to romp around, he adds. Retired people enjoy the easier access to shopping facilities and the organized community activities of new towns. Their only complaint, Holladay said, is the cost of living which is generally higher in new towns.

"Modern planners learned a meaningful lesson from the past — they are now applying what they have learned.

"Today's boom towns are not being built on booms — they are built on good, solid planning... and they are built to last. There is no reason they should share the fate of many former boom towns, becoming deserted relics of the past — empty ghost towns," Holladay concluded.

Referral Group Reports Sales

Sales of real estate through Inter-City Relocation Service in November and December, 1971, continued to show strong growth evident throughout the year. This was reported at Inter-City's regional meeting held recently in Milwaukee, Wis.

Number of units sold through Inter-City's referral program increased by 41.77 per cent, compared with the same 1970 months. Robert A. Poltzer of Gladstone Realtors, reported on returning from the meeting. Manager of the firm's Des Plaines office, Poltzer also represented Gladstone's offices in Franklin Park, Villa Park, and Elk Grove Village.

Dollar value of these sales was up by 48.5 per cent, reflecting an increase in the average price of each house sold. During Inter-City's 1971 fiscal year, ending last Oct. 31, average sale price was $36,567. Average sale closed in November and December was $37,440, Poltzer said.

Inter-City is a not-for-profit real estate referral service, with more than 500 members covering key residential markets in more than 5,000 cities in this country and overseas. Under its program, families on the move who list residences for sale with members are advised of Inter-City's no-cost, no-obligation referral plan. Those interested are put in immediate contact with members at destination.

A feature of the regional meeting was discussion of improved techniques of serving corporate transferees and other people moving from one city to another.

Included was a new Inter-City equity purchase program, offered by members in conjunction with POTERE, Inc., a New Jersey company that buys homes of transferred employees. Under this program, persons moving from or to areas served by Inter-City members will be offered cash for their former homes, based on independent appraisals of value, less the normal costs of trading.

Campanelli Has New Development

The debut of Quadro-Homes in Schaumburg was announced recently by Campanelli, Inc. The project is located in the Weathersfield Commons area.

Residents can enjoy a range of social and recreational amenities, said Alfred Campanelli, president of the Campanelli firm. "Our concept of maintenance-free living promotes more leisuretime and less worry for Quadro home owners," he said. Lawn care, maintenance of the buildings and grounds, exterior painting and snow removal are some of the services available.

Privacy and the savings advantages of individual home ownership are other features included in the low purchase price of $22,000. Four units are joined in New England style buildings.

Each unit has its own oversized garage with direct-entry access. Owners have separate, unshared entrances. Walls are thoroughly soundproof, fully insulated, said Campanelli.

These two-bedroom homes feature wall-to-wall carpeting throughout, closets and private balconies. Cabinet kitchens are equipped with self-cleaning oven, range, 15 cubic foot ice-maker refrigerator, disposer, dishwasher, washer and dryer.

All owners share the private Cape Cod clubhouse. It offers everything from an Olympic-size heated swimming pool, card room, game room and theatre-social hall available to residents and their guests only.

Unlike rent, your monthly payments work for you, building equity for you,

Has Commercial Loan Insurance

Commercial Loan Insurance Corp. (CLIC) has been licensed to guarantee Illinois lending institutions against loss on commercial mortgages secured by a wide range of real estate including apartments, shopping centers, warehouses and other commercial and industrial properties.

CLIC, insurer of commercial and industrial mortgages, is a subsidiary of MGIC Investment Corp. It had previously been limited to insuring only mortgages secured by apartments not exceeding 32 units.

The firm also has been offering lease insurance in Illinois since September of 1967. Under that program, the lease payments due under a wide variety of commercial and industrial rental contracts can be guaranteed for periods of five to 20 years.

Commercial mortgage and lease insurance is available in 49 states and the District of Columbia through CLIC. In a select number of Atlantic coast states, lease insurance is written by New York Guaranty Corporation (NYGC), another wholly owned subsidiary of MGIC Investment Corp.

Stuart M. Brafman executive vice president of CLIC, said that the expanded form of investment protection now available in Illinois will permit more financial institutions to become active in commercial lending.

"Our experience has shown that lending institutions of all sizes have used this program, but that it has been an especially strong inducement for the small and medium size lender to become active in commercial lending when commercial mortgage insurance is available," he said.

Nationwide figures show that mortgage and lease insurance in force through CLIC and NYGC climbed to $373.8 million in 1971 for an increase of 167 per cent over the previous year. Application volume over the same period climbed from $376.5 million to $967 million for a gain of 156 per cent.

CLIC mortgage insurance guarantees the top 20 per cent of a loan under a shared risk concept pioneered by another wholly-owned subsidiary of MGIC Investment Corp., Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corp. Thus, on a mortgage with a loan to value ratio of 75 per cent, the lender's exposure to loss would be reduced to 60 per cent with CLIC insurance.

Separate premium plans are available for apartment buildings and other types of income-producing properties. All policies are non-cancellable for a five year period.

The representative for CLIC's mortgage insurance program in Illinois is the Aspegren Financial Corp., which has offices at 120 S. Riverside Plaza in Chicago, and at 120 N. Scott Street in Joliet. CLIC's field representative for lease insurance in Illinois is Walter O. Miller, who has offices at the Aspegren Financial Corp.'s Chicago location and at 228 Williams St. in Aurora.

month after month according to Campanelli. In addition, part of your monthly payments are legitimate deductions and can be so itemized on your federal income tax return, he said.

The first of the new Weathersfield Commons Quadro-Homes is open for inspection. Weathersfield Commons Quadro-Homes can be reached by taking Irving Park Road about 5 miles west of Illinois Hwy. 53.

ONE OF FOUR quadro-Home styles open at the Weathersfield area in Schaumburg is shown above. The project by Campanelli, Inc., features four units in each of the New England style buildings. Two bedrooms, a garage and a private entrance are among the features of the units. A private clubhouse is also included in the development.

B&W Posts Record Sales

Baird & Warner, Inc., diversified 117-year-old Chicago real estate firm, reported the largest annual dollar volume and number of sales participations in its history.

Faced by participation in the sale of more than 3,000 residential properties, the firm chalked up a 1971 dollar volume of $180,945,336 and 3,545 sales, according to John L. Hall, senior vice president and general sales manager.

The gross sales volume represents a gain of 28.5 per cent over the 1970 figure of $129,452,380, while sales production increased about 33 per cent over the year-ago figure of 2,668 units.

Hall cited "a marked improvement in the supply of mortgage money, more attractive interest rates, an upturn in new housing construction, and a lot of blood, sweat and tears by a staff of dedicated, professional sales people" for the firm's record-breaking performance. The company's previous high record of $131 million, achieved in 1969, was topped at the end of September.

"Actually, the turnabout for our firm dates to June, 1970, when sales curved above the previous year for the first time. After breaking out of the 1969-70 recessionary cycle in June, 1970 it's been clear sailing, as supported by the fact that we achieved a number of all-time high monthly sales records during the year," Hall said.

Improved money market was the major factor in getting people "off of the sidelines and into the arena," according to Hall. He said the vigorous recovery of new construction particularly multi-family dwellings ranging from large apartment buildings to townhomes and four-plexes, also helped stimulate the existing home market.

"Many middle-aged and older couples who no longer need large homes to rear their families are responding favorably to the attraction of new housing products. This has been helping the turnover of the existing housing market," Hall said.

In 1971, the firm reported the sale of 2,983 single-family units, an increase of 31.6 per cent over the previous year's total of 2,275 units.

Except for the sale of commercial and apartment buildings in excess of 12 units, which declined by almost 50 per cent from 197 a year ago to 56 in 1971, sales in every other category were up at least 45 per cent.

"The sale of 81 condominium apartments, compared with 37 last year, was especially significant," Hall noted. "One of the questions that bothered many people when condominiums originally appeared was how they would fare in a resale market. I think we now have solid evidence that the used condominium is an attractive housing product and potential buyers need not fear the future marketability of condominium homes."

Looking ahead to 1972, Hall, who is also in his second term as president of the Chicago Real Estate Board, said he expects the year to be "at least as good" as 1971.

"There is still plenty of mortgage money available and apparently mortgage rates will continue to decline for several months. If the economic recovery we hear about materializes — and there is every reason to be optimistic in an election year — this could perk up busy activity and trigger expansion and executive transfers, which are an excellent source of real estate business," Hall said.

Record-Breaking Sales Reported

Record home sales were posted by Arlington Realty, Inc., for 1971, according to Herb Carl, executive sales manager for the firm.

Total home sales jumped from a volume of $9,106,000 in 1970, to $14,928,000 in 1971, representing an increase of 64 per cent. This is a record for the firm.

The average sales price per home rose from $36,140 in 1970 to $38,280 in 1971. Average sales price for the entire area sales in 1971 was $38,300, Carl said.

Announcement of the new records was made at the annual sales luncheon held recently at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel. Honored guests were the six million dollar sales club members for 1971.

This included two lifetime members, Lorraine Larsen and Evelyn Hines. Other million dollar club members are Lillian Marshall, Nylene Swaby, Jim Blaser and Ed Joyce. Each was presented with an engraved pewter tankard and the two lifetime members were presented with engraved pewter bowls. Lifetime membership in the group is earned by five years of sales exceeding $1 million.

Carl praised the efforts of the sales staff in bringing about the record breaking sales mark. He credited the 64 per cent increase to modern marketing methods and training.

Arlington Realty also distributed bonus checks to salespeople totaling a record sum of $5,657. The 22-year old firm has two offices in Arlington Heights and one in Palatine. The firm is a member of MAP Multiple Listing Service and Home-Link, a nationwide home referral service. Arlington Realty will open a 4th office in the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area in the spring of 1972.

In announcing new sales goals for 1972 Carl said all indicators point to another banner year. The firm plans to handle the sale of 500 or more homes in 1972, totaling in excess of $20 million sales volume.

Lower interest rates on mortgages, availability of mortgage money plus a strong demand for Northwest suburban living will help to bring about another record breaking year, according to Carl.

Saam, his wife Judith and their three children live in Schaumburg.

Both Dwyer and Cesario will report directly to Wood, while Saam will report to Frank Pliml, corporate controller, according to Wood.

An additional move was announced by W. H. Schwarz, who was named manager of development. He will also report to Pliml, Wood said.

Tax Assessment Changes Sought

Significant changes in the assessment and taxing of real property under present and proposed laws have been recommended by the Apartment Council of Metropolitan Chicago (ACMC), made the announcement.

Simon said the board of ACMC at its Jan. 27 meeting voted unanimously for six resolutions which called for tax assessors not to exclude "fair cash market value" and the "capitalized value of net income" in arriving at the assessment of real estate; called for legislation to permit pre-adjudication conferences which would permit builders and developers to have a reasonable idea as to their taxes before setting rents; called for legislation permitting assessors to assess investment real estate on a reasonable gross income formula; called upon the state to assume the substantial fiscal responsibility for schools and the federal government to assume complete financial responsibility for welfare; and lastly, resolved that ACMC go on record in support of those cases challenging the use of real property to support schools.

The resolutions were presented to the board by a special committee chaired by attorney Joseph Bernstein. The committee sent a questionnaire to ACMC members seeking their opinions. A number of responses suggested that taxes not based upon the income of investment property could become confiscatory.

According to Simon the two resolutions which seek legislation removing real estate property as a means of support for schools and welfare are essentially duplicates of the resolutions passed by the Board of the 60,000-member National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) at its fall board meeting in San Juan last October.

The Apartment Council is a member of the Home Builders Association of Greater Chicago (HBAGC) and through it, is a member of the Home Builders Association of Illinois and the NAHB. It has been established to serve the needs of the owners, builders and managers of multi-family housing in the greater Chicago area.

Following passage of the six resolutions, Simon assigned them to the legislative action committee for recommendations for specific implementation to be made at the Feb. 24 board meeting of ACMC.

"There is hardly a matter of greater importance of real estate property owners, be they investors in large developments or the owners of single-family dwellings, than the mounting real estate taxes to pay for our schools," Simon said. It was never the intention of those who initiated the real estate property tax that it bear the extraordinary burden being placed upon it today. A complete new look into all aspects of the real estate property tax and the methods of assessment must be taken soon."

Bernstein's committee told the ACMC Board that Resolution One was directed toward properties where problems not caused by management have significantly reduced the "fair cash market value" and the "capitalized value of net income" while taxes remain high.

Non-payment of rent, and vandalism in some situations, cause income to be extremely low while taxes remain high, based upon earlier "brick and mortar" valuations. Under such circumstances, many owners feel they have no logical course other than abandonment of the buildings the report said.

The committee pointed out that Resolution Two is an effort to deal with the enormous lag that exists because management must decide upon a rent structure before all his costs are known. With real estate property taxes becoming a significant cost factor, it is important for management to have a reasonable idea as to taxes well before establishing a rent schedule.

The questionnaire sent out by Bernstein's committee brought almost a unanimous opinion that a per cent of gross income should be the basis of taxation. It was agreed by the board that the per cent used might differ in different taxing areas (such as suburb versus inner city) as the various cost factors might be different. But it was agreed that such a manner of assessment would not only be the fairest but would, thereby, increase investment in residential apartments creating the sort of competition which results in good, efficient management for the lowest possible rents.

The committee reminded the ACMC Board that ultimately the residents of their apartment pay the high taxes for schools just as the home owners do and that ACMC should identify with both the home owners and apartment residents.

Realtors Slate Dinner Meeting

Legal developments affecting the real estate industry will be discussed at the Feb. 10 meeting of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Guest speaker for the dinner meeting will be Jonathan T. Howe, an attorney for Jenner & Block firm in Chicago. The meeting will be held in the Casa Royale Restaurant in Des Plaines.

The law of real estate transactions is steeped in traditions born in feudal times according to Howe. The passing of a clod of earth to the purchaser was the delivery title in the early traditions.

These and other past concepts continue to dominate the basic laws of realty transactions according to Howe. He adds that recent legal changes in this field have included open occupancy, truth in lending and rescission rights.

Howe received a B.A. degree with honors from Duke University. He has been associated with Jenner & Block firm since his graduation from Duke, specializing in association law.

The board meeting Thursday will start with a social hour at 6 p.m. and will be followed by dinner at 7 p.m. The cost is $5 per person.

Local Doctor Is Reelected

Eduardo R. Bermudez, M.D., of Rolling Meadows, has been reelected to active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The Academy formerly was called the American Academy of General Practice.

Re-election signifies that the physician has successfully completed 150 hours of accredited postgraduate medical study in the last three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership. The Academy, the country's second largest national medical association, is the only national medical group that requires members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

The Academy, founded in 1947 and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., was instrumental in the establishment of a new primary medical specialty in family practice in 1969. The new specialty is expected to increase the numbers of family physicians available to serve the public in the future. The Academy's postgraduate education program is the foundation of eligibility for family doctors now in practice who apply for certification in the new specialty.

Five Associates Join Area Firm

Following the successful completion of an eight-week training and orientation program conducted by Annen & Busse Realtors, five full time sales associates were added to the company's staff.

This brought the sales organization to a total of 37 persons. The program emphasized both technical and sales skills.

Joining the Elk Grove Office is Dick Dwinell, who resides in Winthrop Village. Dick attended Indiana University and his career background is in marketing and sales. New associates in the Palatine office include Bill Inglis, Betty C. Williams, Mary Anne Flynn and Joan Dwinell. They all live in Palatine.

In announcing these additions Donald G. Heidorn, vice president and general sales manager, stressed the importance of training sessions which include both technical knowledge and basic sales skills. "This training is the start of a series of continuous programs during a salesman's first year with the firm," said Heidorn. Financing, qualifying prospects, evaluation of property, buyer and seller motivation are among the subjects included in the firm's training sessions.

Heidorn said the 22 year-olds firm's goal is to offer service to area home owners and corporations with transferring personnel.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING REAL ESTATE SERVICE

IS NOW A GOOD TIME TO BUY?

Inflation, recession, economy, bear market, fluctuating interest rates... can this be the best time to buy a home? Cost experts say yes. Waiting for interest rates to come down probably will cost you more in the long run as labor, materials and Real Estate continue to become more expensive. Home prices are expected to climb as the housing shortage becomes more apparent.

Housing will have to be provided for 100 million more Americans in the next 30 years — in addition to replacing about half of all existing housing.

A home is an excellent long range investment, but it's important to buy wisely and carefully. Prudent purchasing begins with becoming well informed on home buying before you enter into an actual transaction. There are numerous factors that affect your investment and safeguard your financial interest.

The many local Real Estate offices that display the big gold and black "MAP Multiple Listing Real Estate Service" sign can help you make the right move. Call or stop in anytime and meet the "PROS" — the people of MAP Multiple Listing Service who work together for efficient, satisfactory Real Estate service to the community.

Buying or Selling... call a MAP office... and relax!

Karst Reelected VP Of Employee Club

Norbert Karst, 419 S. Hart, Palatine, has been reelected second vice president of the board of directors of the employee clubs at GTE Automatic Electric, Northlake.

Karst, foreman of the matrix card assembly department, is a former member of the company's Junior Staff, which provides training and experience in administration and management. He is also a former director of the company's employee credit union.

Karst joined the communications and electronic systems manufacturing company in 1947 and has served as foreman in several departments prior to his present position.

Borsch Is Manager Of Investment Funds

John B. Borsch Jr., assistant vice president of A. G. Becker & Company, Inc., Chicago, was appointed manager, Northwestern University Investment Funds, according to William S. Kerr, vice president and business manager. Borsch succeeds Lyndon O. Adams who is retiring after 28 years.

The Investment Fund Department manages the University's endowment and general funds. There are about 20 employees in the department who are handling the University's investment in security and real estate.

Before joining A. G. Becker, Borsch, of Des Plaines, served as an investment analyst at Northwestern from 1960 to 1968. He holds a master of business administration degree and a bachelor of science degree in investment management from Northwestern.

He is a chartered financial analyst and holds memberships in the Investment Analysts Society of Chicago and the Financial Analysts Federation.

Housing Starts Still Climbing

Another record-breaking year in housing, is the forecast of Richard P. Halverson, senior investment analyst, Waddell & Reed, Inc., Kansas City-based national financial services complex. Waddell & Reed manages and sponsors the United Funds, Inc., and United Continental group of mutual funds with assets of approximately $2.6 billion. United Investors Life Insurance Co. is also part of the Waddell & Reed complex.

"Compared with the record total and increase in 1971, the rate of growth will be slight," Halverson says, "but remember, we have never before had over 2 million starts as we did in 1971. A repeat performance certainly means another excellent year is in prospect."

"Builders, manufacturers of building materials and supplies, lenders and Realtors — all will benefit," he adds. "In addition, potential homeowners will be in the market fueled by a steadily rising economy and a strong supply of mortgage money at attractive rates."

Halverson said residential construction levels will be highest in the Northeast and Midwest sections, of the country in 1972. "The South," he adds, "has had a picnic the past year or two, and can now expect a moderate decline, with building rates leveling off. The West, still beset by economic difficulties, will lag, as will the Southwest."

Halverson forecasts a continuation of the trend toward single-family construction as opposed to multi-family units. He predicts that about 55 to 60 per cent of all 1972 starts will be single-family homes and 40 to 45 per cent multi-family structures.

"We are talking about three-bedroom, one and a half bath homes," he explains. "In multi-family units, the trend is toward garden apartments rather than high-rises. Consequently, high-rise construction probably will be off this year. With further development and improvement of transportation facilities, people can live still farther away from the center city. This means a move to garden apartments — to single-family homes."

"We are spreading our population over the land area instead of piling it up in the cities as we have been doing in the past," Halverson adds. "It's simply a matter of effective land usage. Townhouses continue to have their appeal, but the demand is now leveling off. Cluster housing is gaining in popularity — some at the expense of townhouses."

He noted that the leisure home market should show a modest if growing strength during the year. Modular housing still remains more of a concept than a practical consideration. Costs, while somewhat less than that of conventional construction, still are not enough lower to make a significant difference to potential homebuyers.

Halverson looks for shopping center construction to lead the way in commercial building, estimating it will be up 20 to 25 per cent in 1972.

"The trend in commercial and industrial construction is mixed," Halverson points out. "Industrial building may be a little slow in starting, but with corporate profits rising, this type of construction should show marked advances in the latter part of the year and into 1973. Construction of office buildings will probably hold at its current rate."

"Even with more than 2 million starts, the demand for housing is still not being met. The Government's announced goal of 2.6 million housing starts, annually through 1980 to meet the demand is an objective which housing and related industries are truly striving to achieve — an effort which promises continued future growth," Halverson said.

Association Has Record Savings

The greatest savings year in Arlington Heights Federal Savings history was recorded in 1971, said Donald F. Morton, president, at the Association's recent annual meeting.

Savings deposits reached $70,826,161, up $12,775,907 from the preceding year.

Honor Erickson For 25 Years

Robert J. Erickson, 19 N. Kaspar, Arlington Heights, has been honored by the Walgreen Co. for 25 years' service.

Robert Erickson

Erickson, manager of promotions and communications in the firm's merchandising department, received a gold watch and emblem.

He joined the company as an inventory control clerk in 1946 and was active in converting clerk-served Walgreen Drug Stores to self-service in the early 1950's. He was transferred to the merchandising department in 1959 and promoted to his present post in 1967.

"The $1,000,000-plus monthly average of new savings inflow almost doubled savings gains of 1970 ($6,543,538), which was also a record year," Morton noted.

"Even more significant, in view of our increasing size, is that the per cent of gain in customer savings for the year was 21.6 per cent, the largest in the past decade," Morton added. "We have to go all the way back to 1960 to find a larger percentage of net annual savings gain — 27.4 per cent — and that was when we were a $17,018,503 institution in terms of savings capital."

Total mortgage loan volume reflected the savings trend as the Association invested $22,049,762 in mortgage loans in 1971, a 70.7 per cent increase over the preceding year. "Of this amount, $1,222,000 went to finance the purchase of new homes and $18,576,762 for existing homes," Morton said.

Savers received $3,285,987 during 1971, the largest amount for a single year in Association history. Total payments were 23.6 per cent over the preceding year. The Association's 28,811 accounts held an average savings balance of $2,458 at year-end, another Federal Savings record.

Additions to reserves placed the Association 36.8 per cent above reserve levels required by Federal regulatory agencies. Despite the addition of 12 employees, bringing the current total to 53, the association managed for the fifth consecutive year to reduce operating expenses in relation to income — 17.3 cents of every income dollar. Of the rest, 57.5 cents went to savers as interest, 19.8 cents to reserves, 3.2 cents for income taxes, and 2.2 cents for interest on short-term advances from the Federal Home Loan Bank.

Reviewing the association's savings programs — passbook accounts paying 5 per cent and certificates offering 5 1/4 to 6 per cent, Morton observed that passbook savings are now paid interest on a day-in, day-out basis. He also noted that Christmas Club accounts receive the same rate of return as regular passbook savings.

'Foundation Builder' Award For Couple

Carm and George Calcagno of T-Era Sales, Inc., Rosemont, were among 20 distributors who received the annual Foundation Builder Award at Tupperware's Distributor's Conference held recently at Walt Disney World in Orlando, Fla.

The Calcagnos' award was a specially designed silver spade presented in the form of a lovely pin for the ladies and a tie tack for the men. Selection is based on sales achievements that have increased the most over best previous records.

"The Calcagnos were further honored with the company's top sales award for the fourth quarter. This award was a specially designed Armillary Sphere chosen in conjunction with the company theme for 1972, "Your Year to Shine."

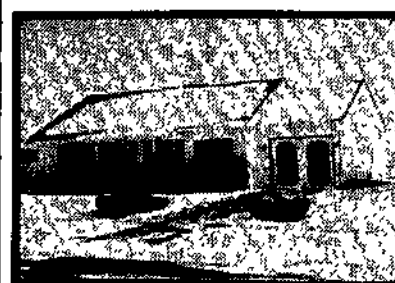

Over 200 distributors of the plastic housewares firm attended the week-long event.

We took the charm, the elegance, the luxury living that is Lake Shore Drive and brought it to a suburban setting. It's the best of all possible worlds. Should you settle for anything less?

Dana Point

IN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS

'CHARM' in a lovely natural setting. Pleasant shaded walkways accented by elegant post lighting. 34 acres of gently rolling land reflect the quiet dignity of Dana Point. You'll find 1, 2 and 3-bedroom apts. from $230. Featured with all amenities: Health Club, Sauna Baths, pitch 'n' putt golf. Recreation rooms in each building with fireplaces, special security features, closed circuit TV. Private guard patrol, carpeted kitchens with dishwasher, disposal, self-clearing oven, frost-free double door refrigerator, CONDOMINIUM COMMUNITY located at Northwest Hwy. and Rt. 53 in Palatine is the Willow Creek project, $35,400. The Centex-Winston project includes three shown above. One, two and three bedroom apartment homes are available, ranging in price from $22,200 to $35,400. The Centex-Winston project includes three buildings, each featuring 96 condominium units.

Decorator Theme Is Contemporary

Contemporary is probably the best adjective to describe the homebuyers at Willow Creek, according to Jim Riedy, sales manager of Centex-Winston's condominium community in Palatine.

"Ranging in age from young couples to more mature 'empty-nesters' and singles, homeowners at Willow Creek have one thing in common . . . they are active people pursuing various avenues of interest, they are concerned about their world around them; and they are interesting warm and friendly people who are enjoying life," he said. The project is at the corner of Rt. 53 and Northwest Highway.

The interior of the two-bedroom, two-bath model home has been redesigned to reflect this contemporary feeling. The majority of the homebuyers in the third building, which is already one-third sold out, are between the ages of 45 and 55 and more than 20 per cent of the new purchasers are young couples without children. This mix closely coincides with that of the owners who have already moved in to the first two completed buildings. Each building at Willow Creek consists of 96 one, two and three bedroom condominium homes priced from $22,200 to $35,400.

The two bedroom, two bath model home has been designed by Childs-Dreyfus of Chicago to reflect a contemporary atmosphere. "Today's woman has a more eclectic attitude and is not concerned with having her entire home furnished in one style," commented Jack Childs, designer of the model. Keeping this in mind he decorated the living room (20 feet 2 inches by 13 feet 4 inches) in shades of orange and yellow with a modern rust-colored sofa and white tables on each side. The dining area which adjoins the living room is highlighted through the use of wall-wide, floor-to-ceiling mirrors separated by wood tone beams. A glass top dining table is accented by six yellow enamel finish chairs.

The den or second bedroom (12 feet 9 inches by 11 feet 4 inches) is a setting for informal living and entertaining. Emphasis is added to the room through the use of a green bandana print fabric which is repeated as wallpaper, curtains and upholstery.

Adding an unusual touch to the master bedroom (17 feet 5 inches by 12 feet) is a breakfast table for two. Adjoining the bedroom is a dressing area with two closets and private bath.

Willow Creek homeowners are automatically members of the Willow Creek Clubhouse which features a party room with kitchen, a billiard room and card room. The clubhouse serves as a center for social activities.

All apartment homes at Willow Creek feature cabinet kitchens, equipped with oven and range, dishwasher and disposal unit, master TV antenna system, central air conditioning and heating with individual room control, carpeting throughout with the exception of the baths where ceramic floor and wall tile is provided and the kitchen where vinyl asbestos tile is used. The four-story elevator buildings have laundry facilities on every other floor and individual storage on every floor. Reserved parking and heated indoor parking is available. Children's play areas and an outdoor swimming pool are also included.

Model condominiums at 415 Creekside Drive (at the intersection of Rtes. 14 and 53 in Palatine) are open for inspection daily from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m.

CMCC Blasts Sherwood On Defeat Of Housing Study

by LEON SHURE
A Des Plaines spokesman for a pro-low-income housing group has accused Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd) of using "demagoguery" in asking city council Monday night to vote against low and moderate-income housing.

The Rev. John Petersen of the Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC), accused Ald. Sherwood of "lack of leadership" and a "demagogic approach to politics." The council vote will not stop CMCC efforts to bring low and moderate-income housing to Des Plaines, he said.

Sherwood, a candidate for a Republican nomination in the 6th district state representative race, told the Herald he will not comment on Rev. Petersen's accusations. "I don't believe in answering the radical element," he said.

Joseph Botte, chairman of the Des Plaines Residents Opposed to Low and Moderate Income Housing, praised Sherwood and the council for "listening to the will of the people."

Ald. Robert Michaels (8th) who was defeated in his attempt to authorize a study of low and moderate-income housing by the new housing commission, said the council's vote has "crippled the commission" and made an effective study of city housing problems impossible.

Rev. Petersen said Sherwood's plea to the council to reject the housing study because the "overwhelming majority of Des Plaines residents are against it" was a "demagogic" appeal.

THE JOB OF an elected official is not to hold a referendum on every issue, but to do what must be done to solve the problems of the community, Rev. Petersen said.

"The government raises the taxes, even though they know that everyone is against it." They do it because it is necessary, he said.

Although no official stand by the CMCC will be made until the group meets next week, Rev. Petersen indicated that his group may again be bringing proposals before the council, as it did last summer, sparking almost eight months of debate.

Ald. Michaels was wrong when he said the CMCC would be back in a year if the issue isn't faced. "We'll be back in much less than a year," he said.

Rev. Petersen also repeated his charge that city actions against low and moderate-income housing have threatened federal funding of the proposed senior citizen apartment building. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is now considering a fund application for this building from the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA).

"Some smart American Civil Liberties Union lawyer could make a case now for blocking funding. It's been done in other cities," he said.

Botte said Sherwood "has shown leadership, and he has listened to the will of the people. This is what a politician is elected to do, to represent the people."

Botte said members of his group had been considering a "recall move" or efforts to defeat in elections the aldermen who were for the low and moderate-income housing study.

FOUR ALDERMEN, Michaels, Alan Abrams (8th), Lois Czubakowski (5th) and Arthur Erbach (5th) voted for the amendment to authorize a housing study.

However, Botte said, these aldermen later voted to create the new commission to study only substandard housing, possible senior citizen housing sites, and the need for a city housing authority. So political moves against the dissident aldermen will not be necessary, Botte said.

He said the new commission has received a mandate not to study low and moderate-income housing.

Michaels agreed that the commission has been forbidden to study low and moderate-income housing, and added that he does not think the new commission can study city housing problems with such a mandate.

Michaels, who has stated he is not endorsing low and moderate-income housing, said that without investigating government subsidies, the commission can only recommend building code enforcement as a way of solving substandard housing problems.

Since senior citizen housing is federally subsidized low and moderate-income housing for the elderly, the commission cannot study this topic, he said.

And a housing authority's sole job is to funnel governmental funds to local housing, so the commission cannot study this without studying low and moderate-income housing, Michaels said.

The term "low and moderate-income housing" also means privately owned and developed housing, Michaels pointed out. It could mean local efforts to finance or make marketable low or moderate rent housing, but this has been ruled out by forbidding the study, he said.

Mrs. Sue D'Hondt, president of the League of Women Voters, said her group will meet Feb. 17 to decide what steps it will take on the housing issue. The league had urged that the commission study low and moderate housing.

Mrs. D'Hondt and Rev. Petersen both noted that Sherwood had referred to several reports — from the League, the Cook County Housing Authority, the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission — have stated there is a need for low and moderate-income housing in Des Plaines.

A total of 460 of Oakton's students are receiving some kind of financial aid for their study program, compared with 383 last year at this time. The majority of those receiving aid are military veterans.

A total of 1,857 of Oakton's students are single and 475 are married. The remaining students are either widowed, divorced or separated from their spouses.

About 73 per cent of Oakton's students attend all their classes during the day, while 27 per cent attend only evening classes.

Voting In State Termed Light

Voters in 51 Illinois counties ousted dozens of incumbent county board members who were vying Tuesday for nominations to seats reduced in number by the 1971 reapportionment.

Bitter cold throughout much of the state may have been a factor in keeping voters away from the polls as officials termed turnout generally light.

The primary election was the first since the reapportionment, ordered by a 1960 state law that sought to put elections on a "one-man-one-vote" basis. The re-map is expected to take power away from rural areas and concentrate it in the cities.

In Champaign County, where the re-map reduced the 50-member board to 27 members, 49 Republicans and 42 Democrats ran for nominations. Incumbent Board Chairman Wesley Schwengel, a Republican, was renominated to the

Voter Signup Locations Extend Hours On Tuesday

Several Northwest suburban locations will be used to conduct voter registration Tuesday for residents of Cook County.

The county clerk's office has agreed to provide registrars from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the following locations:

Arlington High School, 502 W. Euclid Ave., Arlington Heights; Elk Grove lodge 1487, 50 W. Oakton St., Des Plaines; Forest View High School, 2121 S. Goebbert Rd., Arlington Heights; Fremd High School, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine; Harper College, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine; Palatine High School, 150 E. Wood St.; Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington, Mount Prospect; Randhurst Shopping Center, Rand and Elmhurst roads, Mount Prospect.

The special registration is mainly intended for 18 to 21 year olds, but any residents of Cook County can register at any of the locations.

APPLICANTS NEED not bring identification, but will be asked to swear to the authenticity of their qualifications.

Persons must be at least 18 years of age and a resident of Illinois for six months and of their present address for 30 days by March 21 to register. Registration for the primary election will end Feb. 21.

The special registration arrangements were made by the county clerk's office at the request of the various schools and League of Women Voters chapters.

Social Security Death Payment Facts Clarified

People are sometimes puzzled about the social security lump-sum death benefit because it isn't clear to them who gets it and why the amount can vary, according to Cornelius R. Schafer, district manager for Chicago's Northwest social security office.

"The death payment is usually made to the widow or widower of a deceased worker who was insured under social security," Schafer said. "But if there is no widow or widower who was living in the same household with the worker at the time of death, the payment may be made, under certain conditions, directly to the funeral home or to the person who paid the funeral expenses."

The amount of the social security death benefit is three times what the deceased worker would have received as a monthly retirement benefit at 65 — with a maximum of $255, Schafer said. The amount can vary from $211.20 to $255 with the average about $242.

"The death payment is paid only when a worker who was insured under social security dies," Schafer pointed out. "It isn't payable if a dependent of an insured worker dies — unless the dependent himself has worked long enough under social security to be insured on his own record."

Schafer gave this example: A retired couple receive monthly social security benefits on the husband's earnings record. The wife never worked under social security. If the husband died, a lump-sum death payment would be made to his wife because he was insured under social security.

IF THE WIFE DIED, a payment would not be made. She had received retirement benefits on her husband's record, but she was not herself insured under social security.

Last year, the Social Security Administration paid $293.6 million in death benefits on the records of 1,220,248 deceased workers, Schafer pointed out.

"If someone in your family dies, be sure to check with your local social security office for information about the death payment as well as for information on survivors benefits," Schafer said.

ROBERT E. POLL, of Champaign, and Stanley Iles, Urbana, both incumbents, were dropped from the ballot in their districts in races that included at least three other incumbent Republicans seeking three ballot positions.

High vote-getter in the county was Democrat Jeanne-Marie Wyld, wife of a physics professor at the University of Illinois, who polled 670 votes in a district dominated by university people. In other Democratic areas, generally urban, the percentage of voter turnout was light compared to rural Republican areas.

In Adams County, where 40 county board seats were reduced to 28, one Republican and two Democrat incumbents lost renomination bids in a field of 63 candidates. Thirty incumbents sought renomination from among 35 Republicans and 28 Democrats.

DEMOCRAT Charles H. Blickhan, 59, a retired state employee and a 23-year veteran board member, came in last of five candidates in his district vying for four positions on the ballot. Blickhan lives in Quincy.

Ralph E. Pieper, 56, a Columbus construction worker and board member since 1969, came in last of five in his rural district, as did eight-year board member Walter G. Dinklage, 63, a Republican from Gilmer Township.

Republican-dominated DuPage County lost nine Republican incumbents and 19 others won renomination. The board was cut from 31 members to 25. Incumbent Republican Board Chairman Gerald R. Weeks won renomination over Lester R. Swales by more than 4,000 votes. Swales, however, an incumbent board member, won renomination to the board from his home district.

DuPage Republicans who lost renomination bids were James H. Kohler, George D. Euzenbacher, R. R. Rickson, William Swegler, Elmer Hoffman, Donald J. Wall, Patrick Riedy, Edmund J. Rmuzieka and George Pratt.

More Than 200,000 Bankruptcy Petitions Filed In 1971

The number of Americans turning to bankruptcy as a way out of their debts is on the rise again.

Over 200,000 bankruptcy petitions were filed in 1971 — up 3.8 per cent from 1970. Bankruptcies have risen steadily since World War II, setting new records each year until they reached an all-time high in 1967. They declined somewhat in 1968 and 1969 and now are creeping up again.

According to a recent survey by the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co., the number of bankruptcies has risen almost 600 per cent since 1950, when only 34,000 were filed. Over a billion dollars in debts is now washed down the drain every year.

Some bankruptcies — like those of the huge Penn Central Railroad or a member of the wealthy DuPont family — make newspaper headlines. Although the vast majority involve small businesses and consumers who don't make headlines, the results of their bankruptcies are felt by every American.

The losses written off by bankruptcy are reflected in increased interest rates all borrowers are charged and in the price consumers pay for goods and services.

When the federal Bankruptcy Act was passed in 1898, consumer credit was virtually unknown. The years following WW II saw consumer credit mushroom. And Mr. and Mrs. Average America began filing bankruptcy in increasing numbers. In 1950 there were 9,000 business and 25,000 consumer bankruptcies. By 1960 there were 12,000 business and nearly 100,000 consumer bankruptcies. Last year businesses accounted for 19,078 bankruptcies and consumers for 182,143. In 1950, 22 out of 100,000 people filed bankruptcy. For 1971, the figure was 90 per 100,000 population.

THE FAMILY ECONOMICS Bureau found several factors have contributed to the rise in consumer bankruptcies. For one thing, credit is easily available. Also, pressures are exerted on families to "buy now and pay later." Some consumers themselves may be faulted for their itch to spend and their inability at times to distinguish between luxuries and necessities. The "new morality" which tends to put a lower priority on financial responsibility, and harsh collection laws in some states are also contributing factors.

The reason for filing bankruptcy is different for each individual, but in all cases there are both "basic" and "triggering" causes. The most common basic, or underlying cause, is poor money management. A desire to "keep up with the Joneses," impulsive buying and failure to provide for emergencies all lead to careless and reckless use of consumer credit. Sudden fluctuations in earnings as a result of lay-offs or elimination of overtime pay are also primary causes. Other basic reasons include large hospital bills, medical expenses and casualty losses, such as caused by a fire or tornado, often inadequately covered by insurance.

The triggering cause, or the "straw that finally breaks the camel's back," and sends the debtor to bankruptcy court is usually threatened or actual garnishment of wages. Attachment and repossessions of such things as a car used to get to work and harassment by creditors are also triggering causes.

Studies have shown there are four types of debtors. The first is the debtor who is the victim of circumstance — the honest person struck by misfortune.

Second is the mismanager, who, while honest, simply lacks the ability to budget his income and gets deeply in debt. These two comprise the majority of all debtors. The other two types are the "won't pay," who has no intention of paying his bills, and the "skip," who leaves after running up huge bills.

THE AVERAGE CONSUMER bankrupt is not lazy or dishonest. He works hard. He is 30 years old, married and has a larger-than-average family. He is a blue-collar worker with a 10th grade education and few marketable skills. He owes money on furniture, his car, appliances, tools and clothes. He is also behind on his rent or his mortgage payments, and he owes money to a small loan company, his wife's doctor and the children's dentist. But the largest portion of his debt is owed banks and loan companies. Medical and dental bills are another large item.

In one bankruptcy court a study revealed that 78 per cent of the debtors surveyed had at least one hospital or medical bill; for three per cent, health expenses were more than half of their total debts.

Eighty-five per cent of all consumer debtors file straight bankruptcies. This discharges all debts except taxes, alimony, support payments and liability for injury to another person or to property.

The remaining 15 per cent file under Chapter 13, the Wage-Earner Plan, enacted in 1938. This enables a debtor to work out a plan, subject to approval of his creditors, to pay his debts under court supervision over an extended period of time, usually 36 months. Chapter 13 is suitable when the debts are not excessive and the debtor has sufficient earning capacity to pay. While under court supervision, a Chapter 13 debtor is protected from garnishment, repossession and harassment.

Even though a person may be head over heels in debt, he'll find it costs money to file bankruptcy, according to Northwestern National Life. In all cases, there are filing fees and attorney's costs.

In Chapter 13 cases, a percentage of the debts must be paid to a court-appointed trustee. In straight bankruptcies, the bankrupt loses whatever assets he has, except those exempt under state law.

There is still a stigma attached to going bankrupt, although doing so no longer means financial ruin. When money is tight, it is doubtful that a bankrupt can get a home mortgage, but this is not true when money is relatively easy. He would not have any trouble in obtaining new credit for any item that can be repossessed. Some retailers encourage a bankrupt to open new lines of credit, knowing that the law prevents him from filing bankruptcy again for six years.

WHILE THE BANKRUPTCY law is a federal one, it is subject to different interpretations in each state. Different personal exemptions of property from creditor's claims, and different collection laws create 50 sets of laws in 50 states. Designed originally for businesses, the Bankruptcy Act is still geared to business bankruptcies, despite nearly 100 amendments over the years.

One weak spot in the whole picture is a lack of counseling and education in credit and money management. Until recently, school systems taught students little about managing their personal affairs. Almost without exception, experts say, the person who is heavily in debt — a likely candidate for bankruptcy — can be saved if he gets help.

A Presidential Commission was recently formed to study the problems of bankruptcy and to recommend changes to Congress in 1973. It seems that some changes are needed.

As long as credit is available, some families will get into trouble over their debts.

The Lighter Side

by Dick West

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Up to a point, Quinn Tamm, executive director of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, had a good point.

His testimony that homeowners who buy handguns for protection against intruders "constitute a menace to themselves and their families" undoubtedly was sound.

But when he told a Senate subcommittee the gun buyers "would be much better off if they equipped themselves with a brick," he was treading on dubious ground.

Tamm underestimates the average homeowner's capacity for ineptitude with any sort of weapon. As the following apocalyptic news stories will illustrate:

DROPPACK PAS, Colo. — Newt Fuglie, local ski wax dealer, heard strange noises in his house last night.

Jumping out of bed, he grabbed the trusty brick he kept under his pillow for protection against marauders and headed downstairs to investigate.

He didn't find anything amiss, but on the bottom steps he stumbled over a loose snowshoe and dropped the brick on his left foot, breaking three toes.

CHARLOCK CITY, Mo. — Mrs. Alberta Evermore, wife of Clyde K. Evermore, was in Terminal Hospital today undergoing treatment for brick wounds accidentally inflicted by her husband.

Police who investigated the mishap said Evermore was sitting on the side of his bed cleaning the brick with lighter fluid, which spontaneously ignited.

In panic, he tossed the flaming brick across the room, striking Mrs. Evermore on the clavicle. No charges were filed.

FESTER PARK, Ill. — As Sol Winecork pulled into his driveway Tuesday evening, the lights of his car illuminated a burglar in the act of breaking into his house.

Winecork quickly reached into the glove compartment and extracted a brick, which he has a permit to carry in the auto. Taking dead aim, he hurled it at the burglar.

The brick sailed 10 feet over the burglar's head and crashed through the picture window, breaking a $10,000 Ming vase on the mantelpiece. The burglar fled in hysterics.

UPPER PILTDOWN, Mass. — For 25 years, former PFC Fletcher Plankstake kept a World War II Army brick in his attic as a souvenir.

Yesterday, alarmed by an outbreak of vandalism in the neighborhood, he put it in the hall closet.

While he and Mrs. Plankstake were shopping, their young son found the brick and began playing with it. In the process, he accidentally winged the pet parakeet.

REWARDING

Immediate openings in our phone room for ladies who have lots of enthusiasm, a will to learn and a desire to talk with people. You'll be working for an advertising director and a company who really cares about people. It could be the most rewarding and enjoyable position you've ever had. Sound interesting? You bet it is! This position involves handling established advertising accounts and developing new ones. Previous experience in sales, public contact or phone work helpful but not necessary. A pleasant outgoing personality, a little determination and the ability to type is what it takes. We'll train you to do the rest.

SALARY PLUS INCENTIVES

This is not a commission-type job but added incentives mean you can easily make more than the set wages. Your extra earnings will largely depend on how well you personally perform. Many liberal company benefits including paid vacations and holidays, sick leave, profit sharing, hospitalization, disability insurance and company paid life insurance. You may be just the person we're looking for and we may be just the company you're looking for. One way to find out — come in between 9 a.m. and 12 noon and fill out an application. Ask for Larry Bell, Classified Advertising Manager, or call:

DEAR DR. LAMB — My true age is 62, but when I go for a checkup I give my age as 64 and that is what my husband believes me to be. Does the doctor get a true reading on the electrocardiogram, blood pressure and so forth, when I don't give him my right age?

Dear Reader — In the past 50 age group the electrocardiogram is usually not specific enough to be significantly affected by an age difference of eight years. The difference in blood pressure in people who are 64 and 62 is not that great either.

In general, doctors do a better job for their patients if they know the truth. Sometimes there are overriding considerations. Apparently you feel that it is important that your husband shouldn't know your true age and perhaps you're right.

One good way to keep a secret is not tell anybody. I would like for you to promise me, though that if you have any serious illness or real medical problem develop that you will confide in your doctor about your true age at that point.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A few years ago, I had an attack of angina pectoris. I have no heart condition and no chest pains. However, with too much effort doing anything, I have a dull feeling in my chest that stops me doing more, and often I take a nitroglycerin pill which I carry at all times.

My question: Is there any complete cure for angina or must I live with it? Will it in time cause a heart attack? I take many pills every day and have a heart tracing twice a year, all of which have proven normal. I am retired and 71 years of age. I notice a bad circulation in my lower legs at times.

Dear Reader — If you have had angina pectoris you do have a "heart condition." In your age group it is likely that you have changes in the arteries to the heart muscle which limit the amount of blood flow to the heart.

When you are doing too much exercise for your heart is working harder but the blood supply is not able to be increased; hence, nature warns you about this by giving you this dull feeling that you state stops you from doing any more.

There are many factors that contribute to the chest discomfort of angina pectoris. It will gradually disappear in some patients. Perhaps this is because there is some improvement in the blood flow to the heart muscle in time. In other people who are overweight, the reducing of body weight helps to decrease the frequency of anginal episodes. Some people develop angina associated with smoking, usually cigarettes, but it can also be caused by cigars and pipes. These individuals will profit by stopping the use of tobacco.

Angina may not lead to a heart attack, but it is true that it is a sign that you have changes in the arteries to your heart and individuals with this problem associated with angina are more likely to have one.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.) Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Space Shuttle Project May Cut Satellite Costs

by AL ROSSITER JR.

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — The deputy director of the space shuttle project says the new rocket plane will virtually eliminate the risk of total failure in launching automated satellites.

Leroy E. Day also said the shuttle will be able to cut satellite development costs in half in some cases by being able to carry larger and heavier spacecraft gently into orbit and then having the capability to go up and retrieve them later for refurbishment.

"The shuttle will revolutionize our whole approach of developing and flying payloads," Day told a recent meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics in Boulder, Colo.

The $5.5 billion space shuttle, recently approved by President Nixon, will have a four-man crew but its main job when it becomes operational in 1979 will be to carry unmanned spacecraft into orbit.

DAY SAID RECENT studies showed that by replacing less reliable expendable rockets, the space shuttle would have eliminated 78 launch-related failures of unmanned spacecraft on past agency missions.

Another 53 spacecraft that were erratic or inoperable after being placed in orbit could have been returned to the launch site by the shuttle for repairs and modifications.

Day said the shuttle is being designed so that if it should fail during its climb into space it will return to Earth intact with its crew and payload unharmed.

The space agency's Orbiting Astronomical Observatory (OAO) project was cited as an example of how the shuttle could do away with the risk of failure.

Three of the expensive stargazers have been launched. The first failed shortly after reaching orbit because of a faulty battery charger. The shuttle could have retrieved the big spacecraft and brought it back for repairs.

The second OAO worked perfectly, but the third was lost in 1970 when its nose cone failed to come off during the launch phase and dragged the $3 million craft back to a fiery death in the Earth's atmosphere.

"The shroud jettison problem that prevented the third OAO from attaining orbit could have been avoided if the shuttle had been the launch vehicle," Day said.

When it comes to holiday celebrations, February is a big month . . . one that can be especially fun when you serve foods to match the specific holidays.

First comes Lincoln's Birthday. Now be honest, what could be a more appropriate dessert than Lincoln Log Alaska? It's a wonderful treat that can be made with a golden cake base, your favorite ice cream flavor combination, and a sweet meringue frosting.

Sweet and colorful Kooky-Pops are the perfect tribute for February 14 — St. Valentine's Day. Both the young and the young-at-heart will love these heart-shaped cookies. They're made on wooden skewers for easy-eating and decorated with colored sugar or frosting . . . just for fun and flavor. Names can be added for all your special "sweethearts."

Washington Cherry Tree Cake is a delicious way to celebrate February 21. It's a buttery cake with a cherry-pineapple filling and a whipped cream frosting. All this sweetness is assembled to look like a cherry tree.

for February 14

Kooky-Pops

- 1/4 cup (1 1/2 sticks) butter
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons milk
- Colored sugar

In a mixing bowl cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; gradually add to creamed mixture. Blend in milk. Chill for ease in handling. On lightly floured surface, roll dough to 1/4-inch thickness. Working quickly, cut with floured cookie cutters; place on baking sheets. (If necessary, refrigerate remaining dough before re-rolling and cutting.) Insert a wooden skewer and reshape slightly. Decorate with colored sugar if desired or frost after baked. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 10-12 minutes. Allow to stand a few minutes before removing to wire rack to cool. Yield: 2 dozen.

Variation: Use smaller heart shaped cookie decorated with colored sugar and press it on to larger frosted heart.

for February 12

Lincoln Log Alaska

- 1 pint pistachio ice cream, softened
- 1 pint coffee ice cream, softened
- 1 pint cherry vanilla ice cream, softened
- 1 prepared pound cake (12 oz.) or 1/2 sponge cake, split in half crosswise
- 6 egg whites
- 3/4 cup sugar

In a 1-pound coffee can scoop ice cream in alternating flavors, packing solid. On a wooden board place the cake layers together, lengthwise, end to end. To unmold ice cream, dip in warm water and turn out. Cut molded ice cream in half lengthwise and place on cake layers. Trim cake to 1-inch longer than ice cream mold. Return to freezer to harden. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add sugar gradually and continue beating until stiff peaks form. Remove cake and ice cream from freezer, spread meringue over all, sealing carefully to the board. Bake in a preheated 500 degree oven 3-5 minutes. Using two large spatulas transfer to serving platter and serve immediately.

Note: For a variation try other ice cream combinations such as chocolate, vanilla and strawberry or lemon custard, butter pecan and burgundy cherry.

Washington Cherry Tree Cake

CAKE:

- 2 cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
- 1 1/4 cups sugar
- 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, softened
- 1 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 egg

Filling, Topping and Frosting:

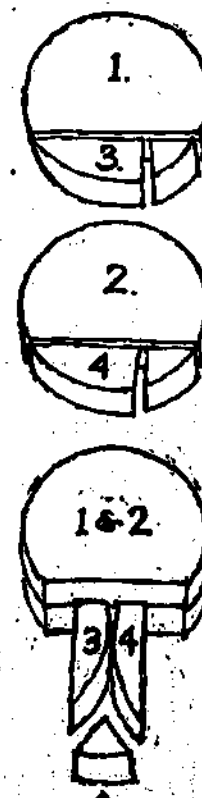

- 1 can (1 pound) red sour pitted cherries (water pack)
- 1 can (8 1/2 oz.) crushed pineapple
- 3/4 cup cherry juice
- 1/4 cup pineapple syrup
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 1/4 cup cornstarch
- 1/2 teaspoon red food coloring
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 1/4 cup confectioners sugar
- 2-3 drops red food coloring (optional)
- Chocolate decorettes

To make Cake: Generously butter bottoms of 2 round 8-inch cake pans and dust with flour. Into a large mixing bowl sift together flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add butter, 1/2 cup milk and vanilla. Beat two minutes on medium speed of electric mixer. Add egg and 1/2 cup milk. Beat 2 minutes more on medium speed. Divide batter evenly into pans. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven 30 minutes. Cool in pans on wire racks 5 minutes. Turn onto racks and cool completely.

To prepare Filling: Drain cherries reserving 1/4 cup juice; drain pineapple reserving 1/4 cup syrup. In a 2-quart saucepan combine sugar and cornstarch; gradually add cherry juice and pineapple syrup. Add cherries, pineapple and food coloring. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cook two additional minutes. Set aside 1 1/2 cups of cherry mixture for top of cake. Mash cherries slightly in remaining sauce. Cool slightly.

To form tree and trunk shapes: Cut off 1-inch piece from each layer of the cake (#1 and #2). These two pieces will form the trunk. Measure one inch from either pointed end and cut both pieces again (#3 and #4). Place these trunk pieces together with rounded edges touching. Matching the flat side of the tree and the flat side of the trunk pieces. Insert one of the two left-over cake triangles into the bottom of the two trunk pieces.

Fill the first layer of the tree with chopped cherries; then add the second layer and fill with the whole cherry mixture. Just before serving, in a chilled bowl with chilled beaters, beat cream until almost stiff. Add sugar and food coloring if desired, beating until stiff. Use to frost sides and trunk of the tree. Sprinkle decorettes on trunk of tree.

Festive Chinese-American Fare

To start the Chinese New Year off right, home economists at La Choy Food Products have created several special dishes guaranteed to please the palates of both novice and experienced partaker of Chinese-American foods.

First of all, there's the appropriate Ping Pong Pie made with cheese and other dairy products and special vegetables. As a side dish, there's the ever-popular Oriental sweet-sour sauce, used for dipping cocktail meat balls, cooked ham cubes, egg rolls and cocktail wieners. For a dessert, try the La Choy-suggested Nutty Noodle Bars.

Served in combination, these are three specialties sure to start the New Year off right.

PING PONG PIE
1 9-inch unbaked pastry shell
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
2 medium tomatoes, peeled and cut in thin wedges
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
1 small onion, thinly sliced
1/4 cup thinly sliced green pepper
1 can (8 ounces) water chestnuts, drained and cut in wedges
3 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup dairy sour cream
1/4 cup heavy cream
1 tablespoon Oriental sauce
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of white pepper
Dash of Paprika
Place cheese and tomatoes in pastry shell. Melt butter in saucepan; add onion, green pepper and water chestnuts. Cook over medium heat for 2 minutes. Combine eggs, flour, sour cream, cream, Oriental sauce, salt and white pepper. Stir in vegetable mixture. Pour over tomato-cheese mixture. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake at 350 degrees for about 50 minutes or until a knife inserted near center comes out clean. Let stand about 15 minutes before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.
Note: A 9-inch quiche pan or pie pan may be used for pastry shell.

ORIENTAL SWEET SOUR SAUCE
1/4 cup catsup
2 tablespoons teriyaki sauce
3 tablespoons packed brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 clove garlic, crushed
1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
1/2 cup bottled sweet & sour sauce
Combine ingredients in a sauce pan, heat until hot. Use as a dipping sauce for cooked cocktail meatballs, cooked ham cubes, bite-size egg rolls and cocktail wieners. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

NUTTY NOODLE BARS
First Layer
1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1/4 cup packed light brown sugar
1/3 cup butter
Second Layer
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup packed light brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/4 cups crushed chow mein noodles
2/3 cup moist flaked coconut
2/3 cup chopped walnuts
Confectioners' sugar

For first layer: combine flour and brown sugar; cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse bread crumbs. Pat into bottom of buttered 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 5 minutes; cool on wire rack.

For second layer: Beat together eggs and brown sugar. Add vanilla, flour, salt and baking powder; beat until blended. Stir in remaining ingredients. Spread evenly over cooled first layer. Bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Cut into 30 bars while still warm. When cool sift confectioners' sugar over top.

Consumer Potpourri

Food manufacturers say the principal reason food additives are used is their stabilizing effect on food. For example, peanut butter does not separate and become oily or rancid because of additives.

Vegetables which steam well in the oven include green, Italian and lima beans; beets, carrots, onions, parsnips, squash and turnips.

Oven-cooked meats can be prepared ahead of time and frozen in glass-ceramic cookware that doubles as serving dishes.

Around The Kitchen

Turn handles of pots when cooking, especially if there are small children on the homefront. It's a way to avoid a scalding accident.

A pork loin with 12 ribs is needed to make a circle for a roast which usually weighs between five and seven pounds, says Ethel Diedrichsen, extension food and nutrition specialist, University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Traditional among the Pennsylvania Dutch is a dessert called "funny cake." Chocolate rises to the top of the cake during the baking.

For Chocolate-Lovers

UPI — The chocolate-lover in search of new ways to enjoy his favorite flavor should watch for chocolate-flavored chewing gum and other goodies seen at the National Fancy Food Show.

The munchables included a candy with a caramel-cheese center covered with a thick layer of chocolate. It melts to make a delectable chocolate fondue, reports the Chocolate Manufacturers Association of the U.S.A. And how about chocolate-pecan cakes, chocolate and freeze-dried strawberries in bar form.

In The Year 4670

With Chinese New Year fast approaching, it might be wise to start planning your celebration now!

The magic date is February 15, which officially marks the beginning of "Festival Year 4670" on the Oriental calendar. Thus, another "traditional" American celebration, Valentine's Day, also becomes New Year's Eve in 1972.

What better time to review your January 1st New Year's resolutions and make a new start?

This year celebrants bid adieu to the Year of the Boar and welcome the Year of the Rat. This follows the tradition of naming the years after animals in 12-year cycles: Boar, rat, tiger, ox, horse, ram, rooster, serpent, dragon, hare, dog, and monkey.

Even though the Chinese officially changed to the modern Gregorian calendar many years ago, as a people they have been reluctant to part with tradition, especially when that tradition is rich in legend and lore, ritual and rite. In the Chinese community, everyone claims a king-size share in the fun of the new year festival whether celebration takes the exuberant form of fireworks in the street, a night at the theater watching old legends re-told, or a family reunion.

Look for Chinese New Year anytime between late January and late February. The date changes each year. The first day of the new year always is the day of the second new moon after the winter solstice, that is, the shortest day of the year.

Whatever the year, the fete is an often-long, always-noisy one.

In days gone by, preparation began a month in advance of the big day and lasted the month: from new moon to full moon.

Villages bustled with housecleaning activity, both spiritual and material, since the 12th month was a time of exorcism. Men, masked and in warrior dress, appeared and symbolically chased pestilence out of the village. Later a villager garbed as a sorcerer with axe in hand, ran through the streets, driving out evil spirits.

Debts were to be settled during the last week of the old year.

With all evil spirits driven out, with creditors satisfied, the ancients could now divert their attention to pacifying the gods. Tradition holds that between the 24th day of the 12th month and New Year's day all gods go to Yu Huangti, the Jade emperor or highest of all heavenly gods. All that is, but the hearth god who spends the whole year with the family. An elaborate farewell dinner was given in this deity's honor, a dinner consisting solely of sweets so that this last-to-depart god would mouth only sweet reports when he reported to the jade emperor. After the sacrifice, the god — represented by small paper image seated on bamboo stalks — would be set afire; in flames he would then ride to heaven.

Parts of this old ceremonial are often enacted in the contemporary Chinese theatre as the old year draws to a close.

Today, in Chinese communities across the globe, fireworks will welcome Festival Year 4670 as they have the advent of all past new years. These will be set throughout the night, with different streets and quarters competing with one another.

The East resembles the West in many ways as the holiday comes to fruition. The last day of the old year finds crowds surging through the streets. These are the days when the traditional new year's gifts are purchased . . . flowers, trees and rare fruits.

Food is a welcome new year's gift; with oranges a special favorite. For members of one's own family, ornaments or textiles, especially silk, are preferred.

Elaborate decorations distinguish the main door during the festival. Adhering to tradition, the family puts up a screen, barring the entrance of evil spirits. For good measure, pictures of the "door gods," Yu-Ch'ih Kung and Ch'ien Ch'ung, can be hung on the main door.

The last day of the old year is one of hustle and bustle. The men of the family visit distant relatives and friends; the women busy themselves in the kitchen. All food preparation is done on this day since using any knife or sharp instrument on new year's day is thought to cut the coming year's good luck pattern. Red is used abundantly in decoration, as it represents luck.

The latter part of this 'day before' is devoted to the immediate family.

Ancestors are especially remembered in prayer and invocation on New Year's Eve; thoughts of the dead are believed to unite the living with their divine ancestors who lived hundreds of years ago and who founded the family unit.

At midnight, cries of "Gung Hoi Fat Toy" (happy new year) ring through the household as young and old alike exchange good wishes and welcome the good influences and power that comes on the heels of each new year.

This is the last occasion of the festival when fire crackers resound. In some areas, a special minor festival of lanterns is held where the community exhibit its colorful and elaborate lanterns . . . true works of art.

New Year's Day, and often the five days following it, are "Quiet Hours"; shops close, streets are empty, and the new year settles in for a long stay.

Why Should You Let A Store Tell You When To Shop?

Why indeed? By shopping some supermarkets' so called "effective dates" you may find that your inconvenience only saved you a few cents for your trouble. The "specials" on just a few items that an average shopper buys, don't add up to the kind of savings that Eagle offers every day. You can count on taking home considerable savings on your weekly food bill, whenever you shop Eagle!

Mrs. Robert Ruikka

Her Centerpiece Doubles As Dessert

by LOIS SEILER

A table decoration that doubles as dessert contributes to the festive atmosphere of Mrs. Robert M. Ruikka's delightful Italian dinners. The menu features Chicken Cacciatore, a favorite with her family and friends.

For her centerpiece, Patti Ruikka uses an empty wine bottle in a basket with a candle placed in the neck and surrounds it with an assortment of fresh fruits, nuts, crackers and cheese. These may be eaten alone or with tortoni for dessert.

When entertaining guests for this meal, Patti starts off with Hot Cheese Puffs for appetizers. These are made by preparing a cheese-flavored dough and wrapping it around pieces of browned Italian sausage.

"Stuffed green olives or water chestnuts may be substituted for the sausage," Patti said.

The puffs are baked until golden and then arranged on a tray along with black olives and marinated artichokes.

Her Chicken Cacciatore is made by browning chicken and cooking it in a tomato sauce well-seasoned with onion, green pepper, garlic, a few herbs and spices.

"Chianti wine is also used," Patti said, "and contributes to the distinctive flavor of the sauce. The chicken absorbs this savory flavor and becomes very tender and moist."

She serves the chicken cacciatore over wide noodles and it makes a big hit with her husband, Bob, and children Marty, 11, Randy, 9, Timmy, 8, and Tommy, 4.

As an accompaniment for this entree, Patti suggests a crisp salad of Romaine and leaf or iceberg lettuce mixed with scallions, radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers and carrots. She serves it with a tasty dressing she devised herself which simply consists of mayonnaise, tangy catsup, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce.

"THE DRESSING is also excellent for use on avocado halves stuffed with crabmeat," Patti said. "Garnished with hard-boiled eggs and olives, this is delightful luncheon fare."

With the chicken cacciatore she also serves French bread spread with butter and sprinkled with garlic salt and parmesan cheese. Chianti wine accompanies the meal.

To top off this appealing dinner, Patti suggests Coffee Tortoni, the popular frozen Italian dessert. Somewhat similar to ice cream, it is flavored with vanilla and almond extract and instant coffee powder. Toasted almonds are folded in.

This good cook freezes the tortoni mixture in paper cups placed in muffin tins.

Just before serving, it is garnished with whipped cream and additional toasted almonds.

"The tortoni may also be made in a pie crust," Patti explained.

Her favorite crust is one which she describes as "heavenly, because it is so quick and easy to prepare and so flakey it melts in your mouth."

"I got lazy one day and just patted the dough into the shell and found it works just as well as a rolled crust," Patti laughingly remarked. "However, it is very tender and crumbles easily when cut," she cautioned.

She freezes the tortoni mixture in the baked crust, and when serving garnishes the top with whipped cream, sprinkles it with toasted almonds and drizzles Hershey's Chocolate Syrup over all.

"The crust is also scrumptious for banana cream or lemon meringue pie," she commented.

Long interested in elegant cuisine, Patti's membership in gourmet groups is an integral part of her life. When her husband was in the Air Force, she belonged to a gourmet club in Grand Forks, N. D. for seven years. Since moving to Ivy Hill in Arlington Heights, she has become a member of a gourmet luncheon and dinner group.

Patti also belongs to an American Airlines Pilots Wives bridge group, the Arlington Countryside Chapel and is first vice president of Ivy Hill PTA.

- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- 1 large link mild Italian sausage

Mix together the cheese and butter. Stir in flour, salt and paprika. Mix well and form into a dough.

Cut up Italian sausage into pieces ¼-inch square. Saute them. Wrap one tablespoon cheese dough around each piece of sausage. (Stuffed olives or water chestnuts may be substituted.)

Bake on ungreased cookie sheet at 400 degrees for 15 minutes or until golden. Makes approximately two dozen. Serve on a large tray with black olives and marinated artichokes.

CHICKEN CACCIATORE

- 6 tablespoons salad oil
- 2 3-pound ready to cook frying chickens, cut up
- 1 cup minced onion is fork-tender. Serve over wide noodles. Serves 8. (If sauce cooks away too quickly, more tomatoes, tomato sauce or wine may be added.)

MY DRESSING

- 1 cup mayonnaise
- ½ cup Brook's Tangy Catsup
- Dash of lemon juice

Mix ingredients together. Serve in a bowl and let guests help themselves. Spoon over a tossed salad of Romaine and leaf or iceberg lettuce, scallions, radishes, tomatoes, cucumbers and sliced carrots.

COFFEE TORTONI

- 1 tablespoon instant coffee powder
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 cup heavy cream
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/8 teaspoon almond extract
- ¼ cup finely-chopped toasted almonds

Combine egg white with coffee powder and salt. Beat until stiff but not dry. Gradually add 2 tablespoons sugar; beat until stiff and satiny.

Beat cream, ¼ cup sugar and extracts until stiff. Fold with nuts into egg mixture.

Pour into 8 paper cups placed in muffin tins or into six sherbets. Freeze until ready to use. Serve garnished with whipped cream and additional toasted almonds.

The tortoni mixture can also be made in the following pie crust:

QUICK AND EASY PIE CRUST

- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup liquid shortening (Crisco Oil)
- 3 tablespoons water

Mix ingredients together with a spoon. Pat into a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a preheated 425 degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes. Cool before putting in tortoni mixture. Store in freezer.

Just before serving, garnish top with whipped cream and toasted almonds. Drizzle Hershey's Syrup over all.

This crust is also excellent for banana cream and lemon meringue pies.

ANTICIPATION OF A special Italian dinner brings smiles from Mrs. Robert Ruikka's children Timmy, Marty, Randy, and Tommy. Mrs. Ruikka serves Chicken Cacciatore over noodles, a crisp green salad and Coffee Tortoni. She makes an edible centerpiece by placing fresh fruit, cheese and nuts around a candle.

Blushing Heart Valentine Dessert

A meltingly-smooth cheese cake that "makes" in just one bowl and bakes with no worry about failure is a dessert to win the hearts of homemaker and hubby alike. Schedule its premiere on Valentine's Day as a special surprise for family or guests.

The "cake," if baked in a heart-shaped aluminum pan or mold, is a conversation piece as is. But, to give ours an appropriate touch, we've finished it off with a pink and peppy frosting that's made of flavored and thickened canned apple sauce. When both cake and topping are icy cold, froth lavishly, following the heart shape to within an inch of the edge. If you have only a square or round baking pan, trace the heart shape on top of the cake and fill in this outline with the spicily nipped apple sauce topping.

For one final bit of romantic whimsy, pierce the heart with a broken arrow. Make a card arrow. Tint it with food color or cover it with a bit of cream cheese or white frosting.

This is a love of a recipe that you can use time and time again. With cream cheese and apple sauce — both ready products and family favorites — you'll be tempted to make this year-long dessert specialty.

A MELTINGLY-SMOOTH cheese cake is the basis for the romantic Blushing Heart Valentine Dessert. Schedule its premiere on St. Valentine's Day as a special surprise for the family or favorite "sweetheart" guests.

BLUSHING HEART VALENTINE DESSERT

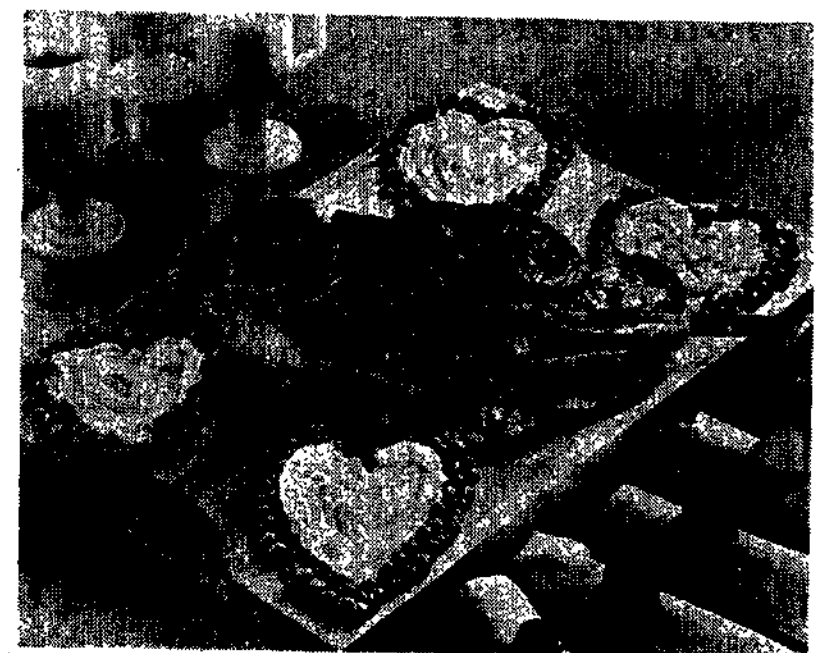

- 4 pounds cream cheese
- 3 cups sugar
- 8 eggs
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 1½ tablespoons grated lemon rind
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- ½ teaspoon almond extract
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons finely crushed cornflake crumbs

Let cheese stand in large bowl of electric mixer at room temperature to soften. At low speed, beat cheese, blending in sugar, ½ cup at a time. Add eggs, one at a time, continuing to beat. Add lemon juice, rind, vanilla, almond extract, and salt. Beat until the mixture is well blended and light. Sprinkle crumbs over bottom and sides of well-buttered heart-shaped aluminum mold (about 8-cup size). Pour in cream cheese mixture. Set mold in aluminum pan with hot water to a depth of one inch. Bake at 325 degrees for 2½ hours. Cool thoroughly. Loosen cake at edges with small spatula. Tip out onto serving platter. Finish with:

Blushing Heart Apple Sauce Topping

- 2 cups canned apple sauce

- 1 tablespoon red cinnamon candies (red dots)
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Red food coloring (optional)

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Simmer over low heat for 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Adjust color with a few drops of food color, if desired. Chill thoroughly. Makes 1½ cups.

Marinated Steak Aloha

Two Popular Standbys

What better time to splurge on a special family meal than on St. Valentine's Day? And what better choice for the menu than new versions of two old favorites — steak and mashed potatoes?

An intriguing combination of pineapple juice and brown gravy mix makes the marinade for Marinated Steak Aloha. Mashed potatoes made with mashed potato granules are combined with cream cheese for Heart's Delight Potatoes. Piped into heart shapes and surrounded by green peas, the dish is a tasty Valentine.

Top off the meal with a raspberry shortcake and glasses of milk and this menu is both satisfying and nutritious.

MARINATED STEAK ALOHA

- 1 envelope (¾-oz.) brown gravy mix
- ¼ cup pineapple juice
- ¼ cup water
- 1/8 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1½ to 2 pounds sirloin steak, cut 1-inch thick

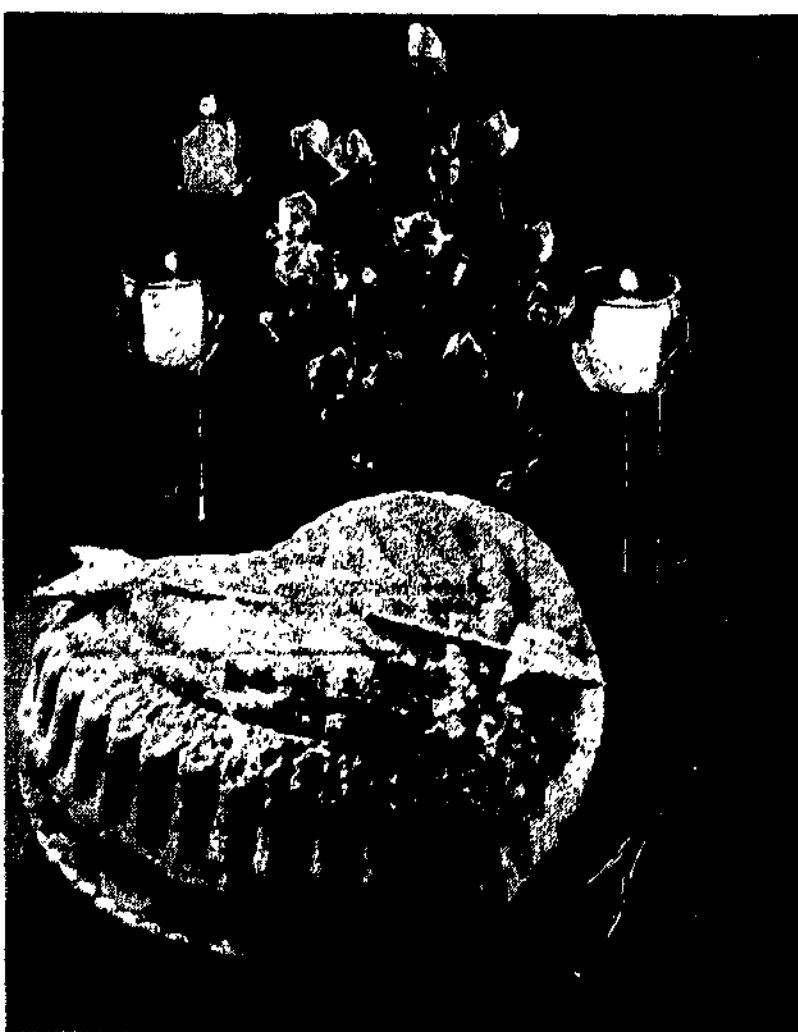

Stir together contents of envelope of gravy mix, pineapple juice, water, and garlic powder. Pour over steak in shallow dish; let stand 30 minutes. Broil steak 5 to 7-inches from heat until done, about 5 to 6 minutes on each side, brushing with gravy mixture frequently. Cut into ½-inch slices. 6 servings.

HEART'S DELIGHT POTATOES

- 1½ cups water
- ¼ cup milk
- 1 package (3-oz.) cream cheese, softened
- ½ teaspoon onion salt
- 1 envelope (5-servings) instant mashed potato granules
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted

Combine water, milk, cream cheese, and onion salt in medium-size saucepan; heat to boiling. Remove from heat; stir in contents of envelope of potato granules. Whip briskly until light and fluffy. Cool slightly; beat in egg. Force through pastry tube to form heart shapes or spoon into mounds on lightly greased baking sheet. Drizzle with melted butter. Broil 2 to 3-inches from heat for 2 to 3 minutes or until lightly browned. 4 to 6 servings.

Last fall the Department of Commerce warned citizens to be prepared for a rough winter. All Americans were urged to winterize their homes and cars.

The Department also warned everyone to get into good physical shape before the first storm hit. Storms play rough with unfortified bodies so a mid-winter tune-up is in store to correct those bland winter diets.

Nutritionists offer the following advice for building up the body's resistance to infection.

A good diet must include an adequate amount of meat (beef, pork, lamb, etc.), fish, poultry and cheese. These are all good protein foods.

In addition, a good diet will include a liberal amount of fruits and vegetables (don't forget potatoes), breakfast cereals, bread and rolls, macaroni products, cornbread and rice for essential energy.

Eat good and ample meals regularly but avoid stuffing yourself at mealtimes. Excess calories mean excess body fat, which is a form of malnutrition.

Don't allow too much time to elapse between meals. This will cause a depression of the body's functions. Therefore, two smaller meals are usually recommended over one big feast.

THE UNITED STATES truly is a "steak and potatoes" country, according to a recent survey made by Bonanza International, Inc., Dallas-based operator and franchiser of Bonanza Sirloin Pit family restaurants.

In 1971, the Bonanza chain of 228 restaurants served more than 13 million pounds of beef in the form of over 21.4 million steaks and almost 7 million portions of chopped sirloin and burgers. Bonanza reports that's enough beef to feed the entire adult population of the state of Alaska for one full year, figuring 110 pounds of meat per person.

Rib-eye steaks are the favorite of the country. The rib-eyes made up about half of the total amount of steaks served. Sirloin strip steaks ranked second and were followed by T-bones.

Frozen French fries make a crusty topper for chicken pie, a good idea while supplies of processed potato products and broiler-fryers are plentiful, says USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service. Team dried, cooked chicken, carrots and celery, plus cooked peas in a thick, well-seasoned sauce and portion into individual greased casseroles. Top with frozen French fries and bake at 425 degrees until browned.

Ground Beef Stroganoff

Stroganoff always has been a good dish to serve when entertaining four to six guests or more. A quick and flavorful one is Chive Ground Beef Stroganoff. This recipe, using ground beef, assures the hostess her guests won't face tough pieces of beef which does happen occasionally. Serve over noodles or rice and with a hearty salad.

CHIVE GROUND BEEF STROGANOFF

- 1½ pounds ground beef
- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1 (2½-oz.) jar sliced mushrooms
- 1 (6-oz.) can white sauce
- 2 tablespoons sherry or beef bouillon
- 1 cup dairy sour cream
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 3 tablespoons frozen or freeze-dried chopped chives

Saute onion in butter until golden. Add ground beef and saute, stirring frequently and cook until thoroughly browned. Add mushrooms and mushroom liquid. Mix with beef and onions. Add white sauce and blend thoroughly. Add sherry and blend. Salt and pepper to taste. Just before serving, stir in sour cream and chives. Serve over noodles or rice. Garnish with additional chives. Makes 4 servings.

The Food Dollar

UPI — The average American spends only 15 per cent of his takehome pay for food, compared with 26 per cent in 1950, according to the California Farm Bureau.

Consumers in England and Western Europe spend about 40 per cent of their net income for food, the bureau estimated. In Russia, and Eastern Europe generally, the report said, consumers "must pay 50 per cent or more for food products, yet their choice is not as great as here."

Valentine Of Flowers

A touch of spring flowers, plenty of hearts, ribbons and lace and you can have a colorful valentine party. You can enjoy the rewards of an attractive centerpiece for your party table if you take some time to plan ahead.

The trick for a party setting is to make your table resemble a living valentine. You can be just as frilly and quaint as you wish. Lacy things and beribboned hearts are as smart today as when grandmother was being coy in the front parlor.

You can create the "living" part of your valentine by making your own centerpiece and valentine favors. A centerpiece of fresh spring flowers, such as tulips, jonquils, iris, acacia and perhaps some carnations and daisies can make this a conversation piece for your table.

Assembling the centerpiece is a simple task. You will need a supply of flowers, ribbons, tape, wires and a block of water holding substance. These are available from your florist. You will also need a shallow dish, paring knife, scissors, paper doilies and greens.

Place the water soaked block of water-holding material in a shallow dish and outline the centerpiece with the jonquils, iris and tulips. Fill in and cover the block of holding material with greens of either podocarpus or leather leaf and acacia.

Fill in the arrangement with colorful daisies and carnations. Conceal the bare spots of your arrangement with more acacia for the lacy effect. Your centerpiece is ready for your party table. Remember to add water to your finished arrangement.

You are now ready to make the simple valentine carnation favors for your guests. Wire a carnation for stability and cover the stem with florists tape. Back dress the carnation with lacy doilies and finish it off with a ribboned bow.

Flowers for valentine party tables usually are white, pink or red with other harmonizing colors. Of course, the entire scheme of your party should be in step, including the refreshments. Heart-shaped sandwiches, salad molds, dainty petit-fours, pink and white nougats and fruit punch brighten with maraschino cherries... these will blend with the color motif.

Carrots With Ginger Glaze

Before refrigeration, root vegetables were squirreled away for winter eating because they are ordinarily good keepers. They're also some of the best subjects for imaginative spicing. Carrots, parsnips and sweet potatoes are sweet vegetables and very good with the so-called "sweet spices" — cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg, ginger and allspice. Cooks around the world also season them with herbs such as tarragon, marjoram, parsley or chervil. Easily prepared are Ginger Glazed Carrots, cooked with ginger and honey, Italian-style.

GINGER GLAZED CARROTS
6 large carrots
2 cups water
1 teaspoon ground ginger, divided

½ teaspoon salt, divided
¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup honey

Peel carrots; cut into 2-inch long by ½-inch wide strips. In a medium saucepan combine water, ½-teaspoon of the ginger and ½-teaspoon of the salt. Bring to boiling point. Add carrots and cook 8 to 10 minutes or until carrots are almost tender. Drain. In a medium skillet melt butter. Stir in honey, remaining ½-teaspoon ginger and remaining ¼-teaspoon of salt. Add carrots and cook, stirring frequently for 8 minutes or until carrots are tender and nicely glazed. Makes 6 portions.

Casseroles, in general, are not among my favorite dishes but occasionally one finds a blend of flavors that adds up to a tasty concoction using leftovers.

Just happened to have leftover ham available and so started with a generous cup of nice lean ham diced. I boiled two breasts of chicken until tender and after skinning and boning had a cup of diced white meat. These two measurements don't have to be right to the ounce and a little more meat never hurt a good casserole.

Allow an 8-ounce package of cream cheese to soften at room temperature, then gradually add 1 cup of milk and blend until the mixture is smooth.

Put into a skillet or sauce pan and heat, adding ½-teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon garlic salt. Now add ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese, the ham and chicken, ½ cup chopped celery and ¼ cup chopped green pepper. Mix well.

In another saucepan cook a small package (4 ounces) of noodles, then drain. Pour the meat and sauce over the noodles and toss lightly and add a small jar of mushroom caps, drained.

Place in a 1½-quart buttered casserole or baking dish. Sprinkle with ¼ cup of shredded swiss cheese and bake 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Serves 6.

AND, HERE'S AN unusual date pudding for dessert, an old Southern recipe. Beat together 2 eggs and 1 cup granulated sugar.

Sift in 2 tablespoons flour and 1 teaspoon baking powder. Add 1 cup chopped nuts, 1 cup chopped dates and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Butter, then flour an 8-inch cake pan. Pour in pudding mixture.

Place in a 350-degree oven and when pudding rises and begins to brown (in about 10 minutes) stir well and let settle. Continue baking for another 10 minutes. Don't overcook because pudding will be too dry. Yield 10 to 12 servings.

Good with either whipped cream or ice cream if you're not worried about calories.

THE ACCEPTED INFLUENCE IN THE NORTHWEST SUBURBS

3 Liquor Licenses Receive Tentative Approval

Tentative approval for three liquor licenses was indicated by the Schaumburg Village Board Tuesday night. One is for a new restaurant, while the other two are for packaged goods departments in Jewel Tea Co. stores.

Peter Greene, a resident of Aspen, Colo., told of his plans to construct a Cork and Cleaver restaurant on Algonquin Road, just east of the Sears Service Center building. Greene and his partner started in the restaurant business when they were college students, and opened a steak house in Scottsdale, Ariz., he said. It was highly successful, and they now operate 11 such facilities, he told the board. The chain is not a franchise operation, and the new Schaumburg restaurant would be operated by the owners, Greene said.

Thus far, said Greene, Cork and Cleaver owns restaurants in Arizona, Ohio, Nebraska, Colorado and North Dakota. The architecture is identical at each building, he said, with the exterior constructed of adobe brick imported from Mexico. Menus are printed on meat cleavers, and water glasses are made from wine bottles, cut in half. Greene said he and his partner were short on cash when they opened their first restaurant, and made the glasses and menus themselves to save money. They have since become part of the restaurant identity, he said.

Greene was not requesting a license Tuesday night, but only seeking an indication of whether the board would look favorably on such a request in the near future. There still are zoning problems to be resolved, he said, but once they are worked out the restaurant could be built in four months. The board indicated it did not object to his plans.

But Mayor Robert O. Atcher strongly suggested Greene find some way of varying the appearance of the restaurant from the others in the chain, saying the village wanted to preserve its own identity.

Schaumburg does not want a lot of restaurants that look exactly like others in communities across the country, said Atcher. Greene replied his firm had spent a great deal of time and money building its identity, and preferred to keep the same design for all buildings. The restaurant is of substantial design, he said, and will cost $190,000 to build.

The board also was asked for two liquor licenses by the Jewel Tea Co., represented by Atty. Roger Galassini, and tentatively approved them. The licenses would be for stores in Weathersfield Commons and the Turnstyle in Woodfield Commons Shopping Center, Golf and Meacham roads. The Weathersfield license would be for beer, wine and ale only, while the other license might also be for hard liquor, depending on which other stores lease space at the center, said Galassini.

The Turnstyle liquor department is to be located in an alcove of the store, but the one in the Weathersfield store will be in a partitioned area, said Galassini. In both stores, only persons aged 21 or older will be permitted to sell, package or shelve the liquors.

The board directed its attorney to prepare necessary papers to grant the Jewel licenses.

Fire, Police Needs To Be Viewed

Manpower and equipment needs for both the fire and police departments in Schaumburg will be the subject of long-range reports that were requested Saturday by the Schaumburg Fire and Police Committee. The reports are due June 1.

Schaumburg Trustee Ray Kessell requested the reports from village fire and police chiefs and asked that they cover all facets of police and fire operations for the next five years.

Kessell explained the projections will allow the village to plan ahead for the needs of both departments.

"This way we won't be shocked by large budget requests five years from now," Kessell said, adding the reports would be updated annually.

Kessell requested the chief of both departments to prepare the reports on plans for development that have been presented to the village.

Besides equipment and manpower, projected needs for fire station sites will be included in the reports.

THE COMMITTEE also discussed the use of the Jennings House by the police department after the park district moves into its new community center this month.

Police Chief Martin Conroy said he requires more space than his present facility in the basement of the Great Hall can provide. The house would be used temporarily until a permanent police building is built by the village.

He said that he would like to move the detective and youth bureaus, identification section and possibly the records section along with his own office into the Jennings House.

About $30,000 has been included in the village's budget for renovation of the building, which is now being used by the park district. The district will move into new quarters on Weathersfield Way later this month.

Park district officials have expressed a desire to retain use of a section of the building for programs after the move.

Conroy said he did not think it would be wise for the police and park district to use the same building.

A report on the matter will be made to the full village board by Kessell.

THE PARK district plans to use the building until its winter program schedule ends in March.

In another area related to development, Fire Chief Lloyd Abrahamsen requested the village develop an ordinance relating to the placement of fire hydrants.

Currently an ordinance requires hydrants to be 400 feet apart, but Abrahamsen voiced concern over some new buildings that are being placed long distances from streets in the village.

The chief said instances do exist where the hydrants are 400 feet apart, but they may be 500 feet from the building. He said this may limit the number of hoses that can be used in fighting a fire.

The committee recommended Abrahamsen meet with members of the plans commission to work out new guidelines to solve the problem.

witnesses as possible," according to Smith.

Meanwhile, the two suspects, who wore ski masks and brandished small caliber revolvers in the robbery, are still at large and are being sought by local and state police and federal agents.

Smith said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has assigned 15 agents to the case. He met with state police detectives for about an hour Wednesday morning to discuss the case with them.

After the meeting, Smith told the Herald most of the information and leads are sketchy and he is meeting with state and federal agents to "correlate our information so there is no duplication."

ACCORDING TO the police account of the robbery, the suspects entered the bank sometime before 2 p.m. when the bank closes all but the drive-up windows. When the robbery took place, shortly before 6:30 p.m., there were four persons in the bank — three tellers and one employee working downstairs.

Police believe the robbers first handcuffed the employee in the basement and then waited for each other to bring down the day's receipts from the cash drawers. The tellers normally come separately because they finish totaling their receipts at different times, Smith said.

As each teller came down, the robbers handcuffed them and placed the tellers out of view of the next employee coming down the stairs. After all the employees were in the basement, the robbers forced one teller to open the vault at gunpoint.

Reduced Criminal Charges Against Heidt Are Filed

by STEVE BROWN

Reduced criminal charges against a former Schaumburg policeman, William Heidt, were filed yesterday in Cook County Circuit Court, Niles.

The charges stem from the alleged theft last summer of over $1,100 in merchandise from a local department store.

The complaint, charging Heidt with theft, a misdemeanor, was filed by Archie Hignett, security officer for the Sears store in Woodfield. Heidt had been charged with grand theft in the same matter. If convicted on the new charge, Heidt could face up to a year in the Cook County Jail, a fine of up to $1,000 or a combination of both.

The case was also continued until Feb. 29 in Niles. The continuance was granted so Dan Miroballi, assistant state's attorney, could be present. He has conducted the state's case since July.

In December, Judge Peters ruled the evidence in case the merchandise allegedly stolen by Heidt was not admissible because it was taken in an illegal search. For the past two months the case has been continued and transferred from Niles to Schaumburg and back to Niles again.

The new complaint reads exactly the same as the one charging grand theft, only the charge differs.

Heidt is formally charged with the theft of only five items, three hand mixers and two .30 caliber rifles from the Sears store.

Judge Peters said yesterday he would give the case some study before it comes before him again. It is also expected that the original grand theft charge will be resolved at that time. No action was taken on the original charge yesterday and it still stands.

ASST. STATE'S ATTY. Jack Tatools, who presented the new complaint, had no comment after the brief hearing.

Judge Peters did not require that Heidt post another bond on the new complaint because he has already posted bond on the felony charge.

Heidt's attorney, Al Kleist, said only he will decide on filing motions on the new complaint before the hearing later this month.

He added no action has been taken in complaint he filed seeking a reversal of the Schaumburg Police and Fire Commission decision to dismiss Heidt on conduct unbecoming of a police officer. Kleist said the outcome of the criminal case would have a bearing on further action in the second matter.

"CHORAL CAPERS" to be presented by Schaumburg High School Students tonight at 8 p.m. is a mixture of popular music and excerpts from mu-

dler On The Roof." The production involves the four major choral groups and ensembles.

Police theorized Wednesday that the two men who robbed the Bank of Buffalo Grove and escaped with more than $100,000 were in the bank undetected for more than four hours before forcing a teller to open the vault after banking hours Tuesday evening.

It is possible that the two men, described by witnesses as under 25 years of age and wearing long hair, could have been familiar to bank employees and thus would not have been considered suspicious.

Sworn In After 10 Minutes

Justen Seated As Trustee

by NANCY COWGER

The oath of office was administered to Peter J. Justen, and he was seated as the newest trustee of the Village of Schaumburg, a few minutes prematurely Tuesday night.

Due to an oversight, Justen's appointment was not officially ratified by the board of trustees until after he had been sitting as a member of that board about 10 minutes. Mayor Robert O. Atcher explained the board was accustomed to welcoming new trustees after village elections. When a trustee is elected, the board does not ratify his selection.

In Justen's case, he was appointed by the mayor, but legally the board must ratify the appointment.

Peter Justen

As Clerk Sandy Carsello joked, Justen could have held the shortest term in office in history, had the board chosen to deny the appointment. As expected, ratification came by a unanimous vote.

Justen cast his first vote as a trustee in favor of waiving the fee for a liquor license for a Schaumburg Women's Club function Feb. 12. The measure passed.

After the board meeting, Justen said he had first learned he would be appointed Saturday morning.

Justen was not assigned to a village board committee Tuesday night. He later said he expected an assignment would be made shortly. He has no preference in a committee post, he said, adding he expects any area of village affairs to be interesting. Justen's predecessor, Gordon E. Mullins, chaired the village finance committee. Justen noted no appointment to that vacancy has been made yet.

He was nominated for the trusteeship by Schaumburg United Party, which screened candidates Saturday. Mullins resigned from the village board post in mid-January to accept a job in the Miami, Fla., area. He had been elected to his second term on the board last April.

While Mullins was elected for a 4-year term, Justen's appointment is effective only until the next general village election, which will be in April, 1973. He then will have the option of running for election to the remainder of the term.

Air Line Occupation Discussion Slated

Junior high school students in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 interested in airline occupations are having an opportunity this week to hear what jobs in that field demand. Extra training and jobs available for the unskilled, will be reviewed.

In line with the district's careers selection program the school administrators have arranged for Miss Mary Redfern of United Airlines to talk about airline occupations.

Hold Cop For Wounding Ex-Wife, Killing Friend

A Franklin Park policeman was being held by Cook County Sheriff's Police yesterday after he allegedly shot and seriously wounded his ex-wife and then shot her male companion to death.

Criminal charges were pending yesterday against Patrolman Peter DiVenere, 38, of 3306 Lincoln St., Franklin Park, after he was arrested by sheriff's police in a trailer court in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

DiVenere allegedly shot his ex-wife, Laurel, 23, twice, and then shot and killed her companion, Charles McConnell, 23, after he burst into her Hanover Park apartment about 3 a.m. yesterday. Mrs. DiVenere told police her ex-husband shot her twice with a .38 caliber revolver and then shot McConnell once in the back and once in the chest.

Mrs. DiVenere was in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday with gunshot wounds of the back, right arm and abdomen. McConnell, who lived in an apartment at the same address, was dead on arrival at the Cook County morgue.

MANOVER PARK police issued an all-points bulletin for DiVenere's arrest shortly after 3 a.m., when they were called to the apartment by an ambulance driver.

Less than four hours later sheriff's police arrested the suspect at his brother's trailer in the Oasis Mobile Home Court, 7500 N. Elmhurst Rd. DiVenere was arrested without resistance after his car was spotted outside his brother's trailer, police said.

DiVenere has been a member of the Franklin Park force for nine years.

Report On Choice For Hospital Study Feb. 22

A report, and perhaps a recommendation, will be made Feb. 22 on who is to conduct a local study to determine if a hospital is needed to service the greater Schaumburg Township area.

William Silverman, chairman of the greater Schaumburg Township area ad hoc hospital study committee, said a specially appointed subcommittee is interviewing potential consulting firms to determine which is the most qualified to conduct the estimated $20,000 study.

The five-member subcommittee, appointed by Silverman, spent yesterday interviewing prospective firms. The field, Silverman reports, has been narrowed to eight.

Silverman said the subcommittee, in its report to the full committee, will probably narrow the field to the three firms determined the most qualified. He doesn't expect a decision Feb. 22 but does expect a selection to be made shortly thereafter after the full committee studies the matter.

THE MEETING will begin at 3 p.m. at Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village.

The local ad hoc committee, formed seven months ago, is charged with determining if Schaumburg Township needs its own hospital facility and what specific type of facility is needed. The committee is comprised of representatives from the villages of Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Roselle and Hanover Park. Also participating are Alexian Brothers, Northwest Community Hospital and Elgin's St. Joseph and Sherman hospitals.

As proposed, the study's financing would come from the village coffers and the participating hospitals.

THE STUDY would spell out the health care needs in the greater Schaumburg Township area by scrutinizing existing health care facilities, present and projected population, transportation, commercial and industrial expansion possibilities and selected demographic and socio-economic characteristics.

The consultant subcommittee is comprised of Silverman, Brother Ferdinand, administrator of Alexian Brothers; Richard Regan, chairman of the Hoffman Estates Plan Commission; Sheldon Waldstein, executive director of the North Suburban Association for Health Resources and John Zacharias, planning specialist with the Chicago Hospital Council. Silverman is assistant director of the council.

Correction

The Dale House restaurant formerly was leased to Twinbrook Investment Inc., and a liquor license was issued to Dale House Inc., which operated the restaurant before its closing. Wednesday's edition of The Herald erroneously quoted Roy Whitehead, general supervisor of Multicon Corp., as saying Twinbrook Investment held the license. The Herald regrets the error.

A LITTLE CITY player looks for an open teammate in yesterday's game at the Samuel Kirk Developmental Training Center in Palatine. Handicapped

youths from both schools are competing in a newly-formed Northwest Athletic Association League and will compete in this spring's special Olympic games for the handicapped.

by DOUG RAY

For a few hours yesterday, they were no different than anyone else.

The boys raced up and down the gym floor as the coaches yelled "defense, defense, pass the ball." And the fans applauded their efforts as vigorously as if it were a professional basketball game.

For the teachers and parents of the players, the outcome of the game wasn't as important as the opportunity the youths were getting to participate.

The players are mentally handicapped and are learning a competitive spirit that only a few years ago seemed impossible to teach because few were willing to take the time.

The boys of both the Samuel Kirk Center and Little City in Palatine were being cheered by more than 150 spectators. "Go Kirk Go" boomed through the gym of the host team Pennants lined the walls of the basketball court.

"It has a great unifying effect on the students," said Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center. "They are beginning to feel a school spirit."

The inter-school competition began this year with the formation of the Northwest Athletic Association League. Kirk Center, Little City, Stratford Center in Highland Park and Malloy Center in Morton Grove are charter members in the conference which may expand to 10 teams next year.

"Quite frankly we didn't think we would ever be able to do it," Sterrett said. "But now look at it," he added pointing to the enthusiastic students, faculty and parents.

Kirk had its own cheerleaders dressed in green and white uniforms made by the wife of one of the teachers at the school. The student body voted on the school colors and the team mascot, the Cubs.

Basketball practice is held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at Kirk Center by coach Sam Burgdorff. The players learn discipline, but, more importantly the will to win, according to the coach.

Later this year, the teams in the newly-formed conference plan to compete in volleyball and a track and field meet. A basketball tournament is also being scheduled and at least one of the teams will vie in the Handicapped Olympics in May sponsored by the Joseph P. Kenedy Jr. Foundation.

After yesterday's game, which ended 28-17 in favor of Little City, the players shook hands as fans applauded. The handicapped children were learning things that their brothers and sisters have always known. There were no losers.

Chief Explains Stolen Check Situation Here

A number of stolen checks passed lately in Hoffman Estates were explained this week when Police Chief John O'Connell spoke to the Greater Woodfield Area Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

He warned merchants to ask for positive identification when cashing checks, adding, the checks have also been cashed recently in Schaumburg and Roselle.

The chief later said merchants who wished further information about the names on the stolen checks could contact the Hoffman Estates Police Department at 894-3171.

He said most of the checks have been cashed in television, men's and sports stores in the area. A warrant for the arrest of Neal Ray Olson has been issued in connection with the matter, he added.

O'Connell said the cashing of stolen checks is becoming a "bad situation all over."

He emphasized the need for merchants to exercise great care in cashing checks from strangers.

Strong Street Residents Seek Apartment Answers

More than 50 residents of Wheeling's Strong Street came to a village board meeting Monday to tell officials that they are worried about an apartment project proposed for their neighborhood.

A spokesman for the group which filed the board room, told the board that residents of the Strong Street area "Have decided its possible the new zoning would be in bad taste."

The spokesman, Kenneth S. Burns, explained that the residents were concerned that the proposed 47-apartment buildings would affect the welfare of their children, hamper traffic conditions and would aggravate existing drainage and sewage problems.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon repeatedly told the gathering that their objections should be presented at a Zoning Board of Appeals public hearing at 8 p.m. on March 14.

BURNS SAID the residents were not automatically opposed to the proposed six-flat building but that they wanted more information on the project.

He told Scanlon that the residents wanted to know the details of the development before the zoning hearing so that they can decide whether they want to oppose it. Scanlon said the village board does not know any of the details of the development, however. "We too are interested and we will find out the details at the zoning board hearing," he said.

The village president did indicate that the developers of the apartment buildings might be considering bringing sewers, water, and paved streets to the Strong Street area at no cost to the current residents.

"I don't know if they're going to put them in," he said, but he told the residents that if a developer would bring those utilities to the area it would be a "bargain" and that he thought residents of the area should be "gung ho" about the project.

"You can have your water," one of the area residents told the mayor.

Scanlon responded with an anecdote about a childless woman who gave birth to four children after she moved to the village and began drinking Wheeling water.

IN A MORE serious vein, the village president urged the residents to come to the public hearing held by the zoning board of appeals.

He said that legally the village board could have ignored the residents Monday and not allowed anyone to speak at the meeting. "Under due process of the law, recognizing anybody to be heard at this time is not ethical; however, we want to take the time to hear the voice of the area," he said.

The president emphasized, however, that the residents would be merely "spinning your wheels" to go into detailed objections to the project Monday night.

Several of the residents at the meeting told the Herald there had been a telephone campaign and a meeting Sunday to consolidate the Strong Street residents in their opposition to the apartments.

Approximately 40 residents attended the meeting Sunday afternoon at the Community Church building to talk about the proposal. Many of those same people then attended the village board meeting Monday night.

Maureen Pitt, who originally requested time for a spokesman to talk at the village board meeting, said the residents were considering retaining a lawyer to represent them at the zoning hearings.

2 'Ski Mask' Bandits In Bank 4 Hours

by CRAIG GAARE

Police theorized Wednesday that the two men who robbed the Bank of Buffalo Grove and escaped with more than $100,000 were in the bank undetected for more than four hours before forcing a teller to open the vault after banking hours Tuesday evening.

George Miller, the president of the bank, said yesterday between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken, but the exact amount still is not known.

It is possible that the two men, described by witnesses as under 25 years of age and wearing long hair, could have been familiar to bank employees and thus would not have been considered suspicious.

However Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said that theory is only speculation and added, "it is not necessarily that difficult to get downstairs," to hide near the vault where the robbery occurred.

Smith also said it is only speculation whether the robbery was carried out by local persons or if professionals were involved.

BUT HE DID say, "I have the feeling it is someone we know."

Police are compiling a list of possible suspects and are "talking to as many witnesses as possible," according to Smith.

Meanwhile, the two suspects, who wore ski masks and brandished small caliber revolvers in the robbery, are still at large and are being sought by local and state police and federal agents.

Smith said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has assigned 15 agents to the case. He met with state police detectives for about an hour Wednesday morning to discuss the case with them.

After the meeting, Smith told the Herald most of the information and leads are sketchy and he is meeting with state and federal agents to "correlate our information so there is no duplication."

ACCORDING TO the police account of the robbery, the suspects entered the bank sometime before 2 p.m. when the bank closes all but the drive-up windows. When the robbery took place, shortly before 6:30 p.m., there were four persons in the bank — three tellers and one employee working downstairs.

Police believe the robbers first handcuffed the employee in the basement and then waited for each teller to bring down the day's receipts from the cash drawers. The tellers normally come separately because they finish totaling their receipts at different times, Smith said.

As each teller came down, the robbers handcuffed them and placed the tellers out of view of the next employee coming down the stairs. After all the employees were in the basement, the robbers forced one teller to open the vault at gunpoint.

The suspects fled on foot out the west door of the bank carrying the money in a green duffel bag.

Smith said he did not know the exact amount that was taken.

SMITH SAID NO shots were fired and no one was injured. The only physical violence consisted of the tellers being handcuffed.

Strong Street Developers Ask 'Larger' Project

The developers of the Strong Street apartment project want to build bigger buildings on their lots than now allowed under village ordinances.

That request was included, along with a request to change the zoning of the area from single-family to apartment zoning, in a petition presented to the Wheeling Village Board Monday.

The village zoning board of appeals will hold hearings on the rezoning of the property as well as on the variation request.

The request does not say whether the developers want the village to lower the requirement that the area of each lot be 3250 square feet or the requirement that each lot be 65 feet wide.

Although few of the details of the proposed development are known yet, officials of the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank have indicated they think all 47 buildings are part of a single development.

The local bank holds the property proposed for rezoning in four land trusts. The names of the actual owners of the land are hidden in those trusts.

The petition says all of the lots proposed for the rezoning are currently vacant.

Residents of the area told the Herald that three homes are completely surrounded by the proposed apartment building sites.

The lots in the development are not all contiguous.

The rezoning request asks for simple multiple-family zoning on the lots rather than the planned development zoning the village has granted on many apartment developments recently.

Plan Commission To Meet Tonight

The Wheeling Plan Commission will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. to consider final plans for three proposed developments.

Items to be discussed include the final plan for the five apartment buildings being built on the south side of Manchester Drive west of Milwaukee Avenue.

The commission will also consider dividing the Wickes furniture store property on Dundee Road into two separate parcels of land.

Plans for the Lakeside Villas town house-complex Unit 2, are also on the agenda. The townhouse development is being built on Hintz Road by the Zale Construction Co.

The commission meeting is in the council chambers of the village municipal building at 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Urge Youth Unit Use Of Building

Wheeling's zoning board of appeals has unanimously recommended the village allow the Youth Services Bureau to use the building at 516 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, as its headquarters.

However, zoning board members stipulated their recommendations were contingent on the bureau repairing the building so there are no building or fire code violations.

Commissioner Douglas Cargill pointed to code violations in the building. He said because the building would be used by youngsters the village should require strict compliance with building codes.

William Bieber, village director of building and zoning, said yesterday the building owner, George Wilson was notified in mid-January that certain repair work was necessary before the building could be rented for any use.

BIEBER SAID THE work included reversing doors to open outward, electrical work, structural repairs to the porch and blacktopping the parking lot.

In addition, Bieber said there will be more stringent building code requirements for the building to meet because it is now classified as a place of assembly under village building codes.

Bieber said Wilson applied for a permit to begin work on the building, but he said because the permit application was incomplete the permit has not been issued.

Various representatives of the Wheeling Youth Commission, the Torch Mental Health Clinic and Project HELP, Inc. spoke at the zoning board hearing in support of the youth bureau's request Tuesday evening. A group of youngsters who were interested in the project were also present.

THE HEARING was necessary because Wheeling ordinances require the organizations obtain a special use permit in order to operate a non-profit center of this type.

The zoning board of appeals recommendations will now be forwarded to the Wheeling Village Board which will make a final decision on whether to issue the special use permit.

Representatives of the Youth Services Bureau will also attend the Dist. 21 School Board meeting tonight at 8:15 to report on bureau plans. The meeting will be held in the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd.

Krinsky To Run For Reelection

"I feel I can do a good job on the school board and I enjoy the job," said Alan Krinsky, 2027 Rosehill Dr., Arlington Heights, in announcing his candidacy for reelection to the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board.

Krinsky, who has lived in the district 6½ years, will complete one three-year term on the board in April.

So far Krinsky is the only announced contender and it's still uncertain whether there will be a caucus to endorse candidates for three seats on the board up for election April 8.

Frank McClung, who was selected to head the caucus by the group last year, said Wednesday letters were being sent to presidents of organizations represented last year to see if there is an interest in another caucus.

MEL LACE, board president, said he would like to see a caucus in action this year. "The caucus is a very valuable tool, especially for a school district that comprises so many different areas."

Supt. Edward Grodzky said Wednesday no petitions had been picked up. The first day for filing petitions is Feb. 23. Candidates will have until March 17 to file.

Board members John Stull and Robert LeForge, whose terms also expire, have indicated they are considering running for another term but have not come to a decision.

Others contemplating running for the school board include Bruce Wallace, 1211 N. Highland, and Louis Herdegen, 204 Lonsdale, both of Prospect Heights.

Budget Planning Next Week

Planning for next year's village budget will get under way in earnest the first part of next week, according to Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

Larson has set Feb. 15 as the deadline for all village department heads to give him "source documents" and projected budget figures for the next fiscal year which begins May 1.

Larson said he plans to submit a budget to the village board by the end of March or the first part of April.

THE VILLAGE manager said he could not make any predictions on the total budget because he does not have the figures from the department heads or revenue projections from property taxes.

The property tax receipt projections come from the county assessor's office and should be available by the middle of March, according to Larson.

Although the budget has not been approved, Larson did list some things he believes "deserve attention in the budget."

They were what he described as the "incineration problem," completion of the master plan, the repair of Arlington Heights Road and sanitary sewer improvements.

Last year's budget was approximately $2 million.

A LITTLE CITY player looks for an open teammate in yesterday's game at the Samuel Kirk Developmental Training Center in Palatine. Handicapped youths from both schools are competing in a newly-formed Northwest Athletic Association League and will compete in this spring's special Olympic games for the handicapped.

Wheeling Wins

'Arlington' Fight

Wheeling officials have won in their battle to have a local developer stop referring to his Wheeling development as being in "the Arlington Heights area."

The village received a letter from Lew Sanders, a public relations consultant who has been writing press releases and advertising for the Lakeside Villas development.

Sanders apologized for the error and said in the future he would refer to the project as being "in the Wheeling area."

The townhouse project, being built on Hintz Road near Buffalo Grove Road, is within the Wheeling Village boundaries. Zale Construction Co. is building the development.

Wheeling officials had complained at recent meetings about the use of the Arlington Heights name on the Wheeling development.

An official at the public relations firm for the project told the Herald several months ago they chose to describe the development as being "in the Arlington Heights area" because "it sounds good."

Cooper Jazz Band

Is Declared 'Best'

The James Fenimore Cooper Jr. High School Jazz Band was named the outstanding Junior High School band at the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival last weekend.

The band was awarded a trophy for "Best Band to Participate" and "Best in Class." Band members include students from Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights.

The Wheeling High School Jazz Band was awarded a "Superior Rating" for their participation in the Class AA division.

More than 90 bands participated in the 13th annual competition, known as the greatest jazz festival in the State of Illinois.

Bank Money Was Insured

The president of the Bank of Buffalo Grove said yesterday the money taken in Tuesday's armed robbery will not result in any loss to persons who have accounts with the bank.

"We're completely covered," George Miller said yesterday following the Tuesday night robbery in which between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken at gunpoint from four bank employees after closing hours.

Miller said the bank is protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and an additional policy the bank has with a private insurance company.

He said the bank will have the money from the insurance companies by next Tuesday.

THE BANK, located at the corner of Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, was chartered in July, 1966 and opened about a year later in August, 1969.

The bank opened with holdings worth $750,000. The bank has grown steadily over the last two years and listed assets totaling $7,376,591 as of Sept. 30, 1971.

The Village of Buffalo Grove has most of its money in the bank and the park district invested the proceeds from its $1,250,000 bond issue with the bank.

Ex-Wife Shot, Friend Slain; Cop Is Held

A Franklin Park policeman was being held by Cook County Sheriff's Police yesterday after he allegedly shot and seriously wounded his ex-wife and then shot her male companion to death.

Criminal charges were pending yesterday against Patrolman Peter DiVenere, 38, of 3306 Lincoln St., Franklin Park, after he was arrested by sheriff's police in a trailer court in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

DiVenere allegedly shot his ex-wife, Laurel, 23, twice, and then shot and killed her companion, Charles McConnell, 23, after he burst into her Hanover Park apartment about 3 a.m. yesterday. Mrs. DiVenere told police her ex-husband shot her twice with a .38 caliber revolver and then shot McConnell once in the back and once in the chest.

Mrs. DiVenere was in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday with gunshot wounds of the back, right arm and abdomen. McConnell, who lived in an apartment at the same address, was dead on arrival at the Cook County morgue.

HANOVER PARK police issued an all-points bulletin for DiVenere's arrest shortly after 3 a.m., when they were called to the apartment by an ambulance driver.

Less than four hours later sheriff's police arrested the suspect at his brother's trailer in the Oasis Mobile Home Court, 7500 N. Elmhurst Rd. DiVenere was arrested without resistance after his car was spotted outside his brother's trailer, police said.

DiVenere has been a member of the Franklin Park force for nine years.

Hanover Park police late yesterday afternoon said no charges had been filed yet, pending word from the state attorney's office.

150 Spectators Yelled-'Go Kirk Go'

by DOUG RAY

For a few hours yesterday, they were no different than anyone else.

The boys raced up and down the gym floor as the coaches yelled "defense, defense... pass the ball." And the fans applauded their efforts as vigorously as if it were a professional basketball game.

For the teachers and parents of the players, the outcome of the game wasn't as important as the opportunity the youths were getting to participate.

The players are mentally handicapped and are learning a competitive spirit that only a few years ago seemed impossible to teach because few were willing to take the time.

The boys of both the Samuel Kirk Center and Little City in Palatine were being cheered by more than 150 spectators. "Go Kirk Go" boomed through the gym of the host team. Pennants lined the walls of the basketball court.

"It has a great unifying effect on the students," said Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center. "They are beginning to feel a school spirit."

The inter-school competition began this year with the formation of the Northwest Athletic Association League. Kirk Center, Little City, Stratford Center in Highland Park and Malloy Center in Morton Grove are charter members in the conference which may expand to 10 teams next year.

"Quite frankly we didn't think we would ever be able to do it," Sterrett said. "But now look at it," he added, pointing to the enthusiastic students, faculty and parents.

Kirk had its own cheerleaders dressed in green and white uniforms made by the wife of one of the teachers at the school. The student body voted on the school colors and the team mascot, the Cubs.

Basketball practice is held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at Kirk Center by coach Sam Burgdorff. The players learn discipline, but, more importantly the will to win, according to the coach.

Later this year, the teams in the newly-formed conference plan to compete in volleyball and a track and field meet. A basketball tournament is also being scheduled and at least one of the teams will vie in the Handicapped Olympics in May sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

After yesterday's game, which ended 28-17 in favor of Little City, the players shook hands as fans applauded. The handicapped children were learning things that their brothers and sisters have always known. There were no losers.

Mahoney Attacks The British 'Brutality'

Buffalo Grove Trustee Thomas Mahoney has attacked what he termed the "brutality" and "terror" of British rule in Northern Ireland and urged citizens to "let our government know of our feelings."

Writing in the St. Mary's Catholic Church bulletin, Mahoney said, "I urge every member of this parish who senses the moral horror of British repression of the Irish people to write to the President, Senators Percy and Stevenson and Congressmen Crane or McClory, and urge their support for measures already pending in the Congress calling for an end to British military occupation of Ireland."

Mahoney also urged parishioners to contribute "to any of the several relief funds which have been established to aid Irish refugees" and singled out Mayor Daley's Irish relief fund, "which has probably done more to alleviate suffering there than any other single source in America."

CMCC Blasts Sherwood On Defeat Of Housing Study

by LEON SHURE

A Des Plaines spokesman for a low-income housing group has accused Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd) of using "demagoguery" in asking city council Monday night to vote against low and moderate-income housing.

The Rev. John Petersen of the Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC), accused Ald. Sherwood of "lack of leadership" and a "demagogic approach to politics." The council vote will not stop CMCC efforts to bring low and moderate-income housing to Des Plaines, he said.

Sherwood, a candidate for a Republican nomination in the 5th district state representative race, told the Herald he will not comment on Rev. Petersen's accusations. "I don't believe in answering the radical element," he said.

Joseph Botte, chairman of the Des Plaines Residents Opposed to Low and Moderate Income Housing, praised Sherwood and the council for "listening to the will of the people."

Ald. Robert Michaels (8th) who was defeated in his attempt to authorize a study of low and moderate-income housing by the new housing commission, said the council's vote has "crippled the commission" and made an effective study of city housing problems impossible.

Rev. Petersen said Sherwood's plea to the council to reject the housing study because the "overwhelming majority of Des Plaines residents are against it" was a "demagogic" appeal.

THE JOB OF an elected official is not to hold a referendum on every issue, but to do what must be done to solve the problems of the community, Rev. Petersen said.

"The government raises the taxes, even though they know that everyone is against it." They do it because it is necessary, he said.

Although no official stand by the CMCC will be made until the group meets next week, Rev. Petersen indicated that his group may again be bringing proposals before the council, as it did last summer, sparking almost eight months of debate.

Ald. Michaels was wrong when he said the CMCC would be back in a year if the issue isn't faced. "We'll be back in much less than a year," he said.

Rev. Petersen also repeated his charge that city actions against low and moderate-income housing have threatened federal funding of the proposed senior citizen apartment building. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) is now considering a fund application for this building from the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA).

"Some smart American Civil Liberties Union lawyer could make a case now for blocking funding. It's been done in other cities," he said.

Botte said Sherwood "has shown leadership, and he has listened to the will of the people. This is what a politician is elected to do, to represent the people."

Botte said members of his group had been considering a "recall move" or efforts to defeat in elections the aldermen who were for the low and moderate-income housing study.

FOUR ALDERMEN, Michaels, Alan Abrams (8th), Lois Czubakowski (5th) and Arthur Erbach (6th) voted for the amendment to authorize a housing study.

However, Botte said, these aldermen later voted to create the new commission to study only substandard housing, possible senior citizen housing sites, and the need for a city housing authority. So political moves against the dissident aldermen will not be necessary, Botte said.

He said the new commission has received a mandate not to study low and moderate-income housing.

Michaels agreed that the commission has been forbidden to study low and moderate-income housing, and added that he does not think the new commission can study city housing problems with such a mandate.

Michaels, who has stated he is not endorsing low and moderate-income housing, said that without investigating government subsidies, the commission can only recommend building code enforcement as a way of solving substandard housing problems.

Since senior citizen housing is federally subsidized low and moderate-income housing for the elderly, the commission cannot study this topic, he said.

And a housing authority's sole job is to funnel governmental funds to local housing, so the commission cannot study this without studying low and moderate-income housing, Michaels said.

The term "low and moderate-income housing" also means privately owned and developed housing, Michaels pointed out. It could mean local efforts to finance or make marketable low or moderate rent housing, but this has been ruled out by forbidding the study, he said.

Mrs. Sue D'Hondt, president of the League of Women Voters, said her group will meet Feb. 17 to decide what steps it will take on the housing issue. The league had urged that the commission study low and moderate housing.

Mrs. D'Hondt and Rev. Petersen both noted that Sherwood had referred to several reports — from the League, the Cook County Housing Authority, the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission — have stated there is a need for low and moderate-income housing in Des Plaines.

A total of 468 of Oakton's students are receiving some kind of financial aid for their study program, compared with 393 last year at this time. The majority of those receiving aid are military veterans.

A total of 1,857 of Oakton's students are single and 475 are married. The remaining students are either widowed, divorced or separated from their spouses.

About 73 per cent of Oakton's students attend all their classes during the day, while 27 per cent attend only evening classes.

by CRAIG GAARE

Police theorized Wednesday that the two men who robbed the Bank of Buffalo Grove and escaped with more than $100,000 were in the bank undetected for more than four hours before forcing a teller to open the vault after banking hours Tuesday evening.

George Miller, the president of the bank, said yesterday between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken, but the exact amount still is not known.

It is possible that the two men, described by witnesses as under 25 years of age and wearing long hair, could have been familiar to bank employees and thus would not have been considered suspicious.

However Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said that theory is only speculation and added, "it is not necessarily that difficult to get downstairs," to hide near the vault where the robbery occurred.

Smith also said it is only speculation whether the robbery was carried out by local persons or if professionals were involved.

BUT HE DID say, "I have the feeling it is someone we know."

Police are compiling a list of possible suspects and are "talking to as many witnesses as possible," according to

Smith.

Meanwhile, the two suspects, who wore ski masks and brandished small caliber revolvers in the robbery, are still at large and are being sought by local and state police and federal agents.

Smith said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has assigned 15 agents to the case. He met with state police detectives for about an hour Wednesday morning to discuss the case with them.

After the meeting, Smith told the Herald most of the information and leads are sketchy and he is meeting with state and federal agents to "correlate our information so there is no duplication."

ACCORDING TO the police account of the robbery, the suspects entered the bank sometime before 2 p.m. when the bank closes all but the drive-up windows. When the robbery took place, shortly before 6:30 p.m., there were four persons in the bank — three tellers and one employee working downstairs.

Police believe the robbers first handcuffed the employee in the basement and then waited for each teller to bring down the day's receipts from the cash drawers. The tellers normally come separately because they finish totaling their receipts at different times, Smith said.

As each teller came down, the robbers handcuffed them and placed the tellers out of view of the next employee coming down the stairs. After all the employees were in the basement, the robbers forced one teller to open the vault at gunpoint.

The suspects fled on foot out the west door of the bank carrying the money in a green duffel bag.

Smith said he did not know the exact amount that was taken.

SMITH SAID NO shots were fired and no one was injured. The only physical violence consisted of the tellers being handcuffed.

The robbers narrowly missed being apprehended by village police, who as a normal security measure, patrol the bank parking lot at closing time. Patrolman Gary Wenckebach was in a police squad in the parking lot at 6:12 p.m., according to the police radio log. He stayed in the lot approximately six minutes. He told the Herald he did not observe anything suspicious, so he resumed his normal patrol at 6:18.

At 6:20, the robbery was reported.

JAMES WILSON, a resident of Buffalo Grove, language. Wilson is a member of the Summer Institute of Linguistics and was demonstrating his work for the eighth graders at Jack London School.

Bank Money Was Insured

The president of the Bank of Buffalo Grove said yesterday the money taken in Tuesday's armed robbery will not result in any loss to persons who have accounts with the bank.

"We're completely covered," George Miller said yesterday following the Tuesday night robbery in which between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken at gunpoint from four bank employees after closing hours.

Miller said the bank is protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and an additional policy the bank has with a private insurance company.

He said the bank will have the money from the insurance companies by next Tuesday.

THE BANK, located at the corner of Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, was chartered in July, 1968 and opened about a year later in August, 1969.

The bank opened with holdings worth $750,000. The bank has grown steadily over the last two years and listed assets totaling $7,876,591 as of Sept. 30, 1971.

The Village of Buffalo Grove has most of its money in the bank and the park district invested the proceeds from its $1,250,000 bond issue with the bank.

Foreign Languages Are Made Easy

"And I thought English was hard to understand."

That was the comment of one eighth grader at Jack London School after a linguistics demonstration by James Wilson. Wilson is a member of the Summer Institute of Linguistics, a world-wide program of the study of languages that are never written down.

"We are involved in 23 countries," said Wilson, "trying to give people a written form of communication." He said the Institute is hired by different governments to write the "mother tongue" of many backwoods tribes so the government can understand and communicate with them.

Just before the class Wilson, a Buffalo

Grove resident, was introduced to Augusta Contractor. Miss Contractor is originally from Gujarat, India, and is currently studying at Trinity Divinity School in Deerfield.

Wilson instructed Miss Contractor to speak no English during the demonstration. She was only allowed to speak in her native language, which Wilson had never heard or seen.

HE TOLD the class that since Miss Contractor understood English he would talk to her in Spanish. He said the demonstration would not be successful if either person understood the other.

"I am going to write down everything Augusta will say in phonetic script," Wilson said.

He explained the script would allow him to record the discussion so that he could look back and analyze his work.

The demonstration began when Wilson took a block of wood from a paper bag. He showed the wood to Miss Contractor and she responded with a word in her "mother tongue."

Wilson repeated the word several times and wrote it on the blackboard phonetically, with the English next to it. He reached into his "bag-of-tricks" again and showed her a smaller piece of wood. He explained to her, with gestures that he was seeking the word for smaller. Miss Contractor responded with an English translation.

WHEN HE had filled the blackboard with phonetic script and English definitions, Wilson started to analyze his work. He told the class he was looking for "common" phrases in the body of the words and showed them one example.

Many of Miss Contractor's words ended in "ee" Wilson said this meant "et"

Youth Unit's Use Of Building Urged

Wheeling's zoning board of appeals has unanimously recommended the village allow the Youth Services Bureau to use the building at 516 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, as its headquarters.

However, zoning board members stipulated their recommendations were contingent on the bureau repairing the building so there are no building or fire code violations.

Commissioner Douglas Cargill pointed to code violations in the building. He said because the building would be used by youngsters the village should require strict compliance with building codes.

William Bieber, village director of building and zoning, said yesterday the building owner, George Wilson was notified in mid-January that certain repair work was necessary before the building could be rented for any use.

BIEBER SAID THE work included reversing doors to open outward, electrical work, structural repairs to the porch and blacktopping the parking lot.

In addition, Bieber said there will be more stringent building code requirements for the building to meet because it is now classified as a place of assembly under village building codes.

Bieber said Wilson applied for a permit to begin work on the building, but he said because the permit application was incomplete the permit has not been issued.

Various representatives of the Wheeling Youth Commission, the Torch Mental Health Clinic and Project HELP, Inc. spoke at the zoning board hearing in support of the youth bureau's request Tuesday evening. A group of youngsters who were interested in the project were also present.

THE HEARING was necessary because Wheeling ordinances require the organizations obtain a special use permit in order to operate a non-profit center of this type.

The zoning board of appeals recommendations will now be forwarded to the Wheeling Village Board which will make a final decision on whether to issue the special use permit.

Representatives of the Youth Services Bureau will also attend the Dist. 21 School Board meeting tonight at 8:15 to report on bureau plans. The meeting will be held in the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd.

This Morning In Brief

The Nation

The House moved toward a vote on raising the national debt limit by $20 billion, with liberals serving notice that President Nixon won't get his second installment of $20 billion until he submits comprehensive tax reform proposals.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved the nomination of Robert Strauss-Hupe of Pennsylvania to be ambassador to Belgium, and of Albert W. Shriver Jr. of Illinois to be ambassador to Czechoslovakia.

President Nixon said his trip to China this month will be "a giant step toward the creation of a stable structure of world peace" because it will begin to thaw the icy Sino-American relations of the last 23 years.

James Meredith, the first black to enroll at the University of Mississippi announced he would oppose Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., in the 1972 elections.

The State

Cook County State's Attorney Edward V. Hanrahan has again asked that criminal charges against him be dropped, this time contending the charges are so unspecific he cannot prepare defense.

Fire gutted the United Cheese Co. warehouse causing an estimated $100,000 in damages. No injuries were reported.

An environmental task force for the East-West Gateway Coordinating Council has called for an investigation into the handling procedures and regulations controlling rail shipment of explosives as a result of last month's explosion in the Alton & Southern Railway yards.

A district court judge ruled that federal funds for the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program will be cut off for all Cook County public aid departments which fail to speed up processing of AFDC applications.

Krinsky To Run For Reelection

"I feel I can do a good job on the school board and I enjoy the job," said Alan Krinsky, 207 Rosehill Dr., Arlington Heights, in announcing his candidacy for reelection to the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board.

Krinsky, who has lived in the district 6½ years, will complete one three-year term on the board in April.

So far Krinsky is the only announced contender and it's still uncertain whether there will be a caucus to endorse candidates for three seats on the board up for election April 8.

Frank McClung, who was selected to head the caucus by the group last year, said Wednesday letters were being sent to presidents of organizations represented last year to see if there is an interest in another caucus.

MEL LACE, board president, said he would like to see a caucus in action this year: "The caucus is a very valuable tool, especially for a school district that comprises so many different areas."

Supt. Edward Grodsky said Wednesday no petitions had been picked up. The first day for filing petitions is Feb. 23. Candidates will have until March 17 to file.

Board members John Stull and Robert LeForge, whose terms also expire, have indicated they are considering running for another term but have not come to a decision.

Others contemplating running for the school board include Bruce Wallace, 1211 N. Highland, and Louis Herdegen, 204 Lonsdale, both of Prospect Heights.

Budget Planning Next Week

Planning for next year's village budget will get under way in earnest the first part of next week, according to Buffalo Grove Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

Larson has set Feb. 15 as the deadline for all village department heads to give him "source documents" and projected budget figures for the next fiscal year which begins May 1.

Larson said he plans to submit a budget to the village board by the end of March or the first part of April.

THE VILLAGE manager said he could not make any predictions on the total budget because he does not have the figures from the department heads or revenue projections from property taxes.

The property tax receipt projections come from the county assessor's office and should be available by the middle of March, according to Larson.

Although the budget has not been approved, Larson did list some things he believes "deserve attention in the budget."

They were what he described as the "incineration problem," completion of the master plan, the repair of Arlington Heights Road and sanitary sewer improvements.

Last year's budget was approximately $2 million.

Wheeling Wins

'Arlington' Fight

Wheeling officials have won in their battle to have a local developer stop referring to his Wheeling development as being in "the Arlington Heights area."

The village received a letter from Lew Sanders, a public relations consultant who has been writing press releases and advertising for the Lakeside Villas development.

Sanders apologized for the error and said in the future he would refer to the project as being "in the Wheeling area."

The townhouse project, being built on Hintz Road near Buffalo Grove Road, is within the Wheeling Village boundaries.

Zale Construction Co. is building the development.

Wheeling officials had complained at recent meetings about the use of the Arlington Heights name on the Wheeling development.

An official at the public relations firm for the project told the Herald several months ago they chose to describe the development as being "in the Arlington Heights area" because "it sounds good."

Cooper Jazz Band

Is Declared 'Best'

The James Fenimore Cooper Jr. High School Jazz Band was named the outstanding Junior High School band at the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival last weekend.

The band was awarded a trophy for "Best Band to Participate" and "Best in Class." Band members include students from Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights.

The Wheeling High School Jazz Band was awarded a "Superior Rating" for their participation in the Class AA division.

More than 90 bands participated in the 13th annual competition, known as the greatest jazz festival in the State of Illinois.

ther this is or it is" and discovered his findings were correct after talking with Miss Contractor.

The class, shocked by Wilson's quick understanding of the language, began to applaud him. "I have just scratched the surface here today. It would take months of work and study to make my findings complete," he said.

"Our linguists in the field work 24 hours a day on the language in their respective villages. After they learn the language and analyze it they try to get educational materials printed to teach everyone how to read and write.

We ultimately prepare them to read literature in their national language," he said.

"We try to make the people bilingual," said Wilson, "for you see, when a person only speaks one language he is a prisoner of that language."

Ex-Wife Shot, Friend Slain; Cop Is Held

A Franklin Park policeman was being held by Cook County Sheriff's Police yesterday after he allegedly shot and seriously wounded his ex-wife and then shot her male companion to death.

Criminal charges were pending yesterday against Patrolman Peter DiVenere, 38, of 3306 Lincoln St., Franklin Park, after he was arrested by sheriff's police in a trailer court in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

DiVenere allegedly shot his ex-wife, Laurel, 23, twice, and then shot and killed her companion, Charles McConnell, 23, after he burst into her Hanover Park apartment about 3 a.m. yesterday. Mrs. DiVenere told police her ex-husband shot her twice with a .38 caliber revolver and then shot McConnell once in the back and once in the chest.

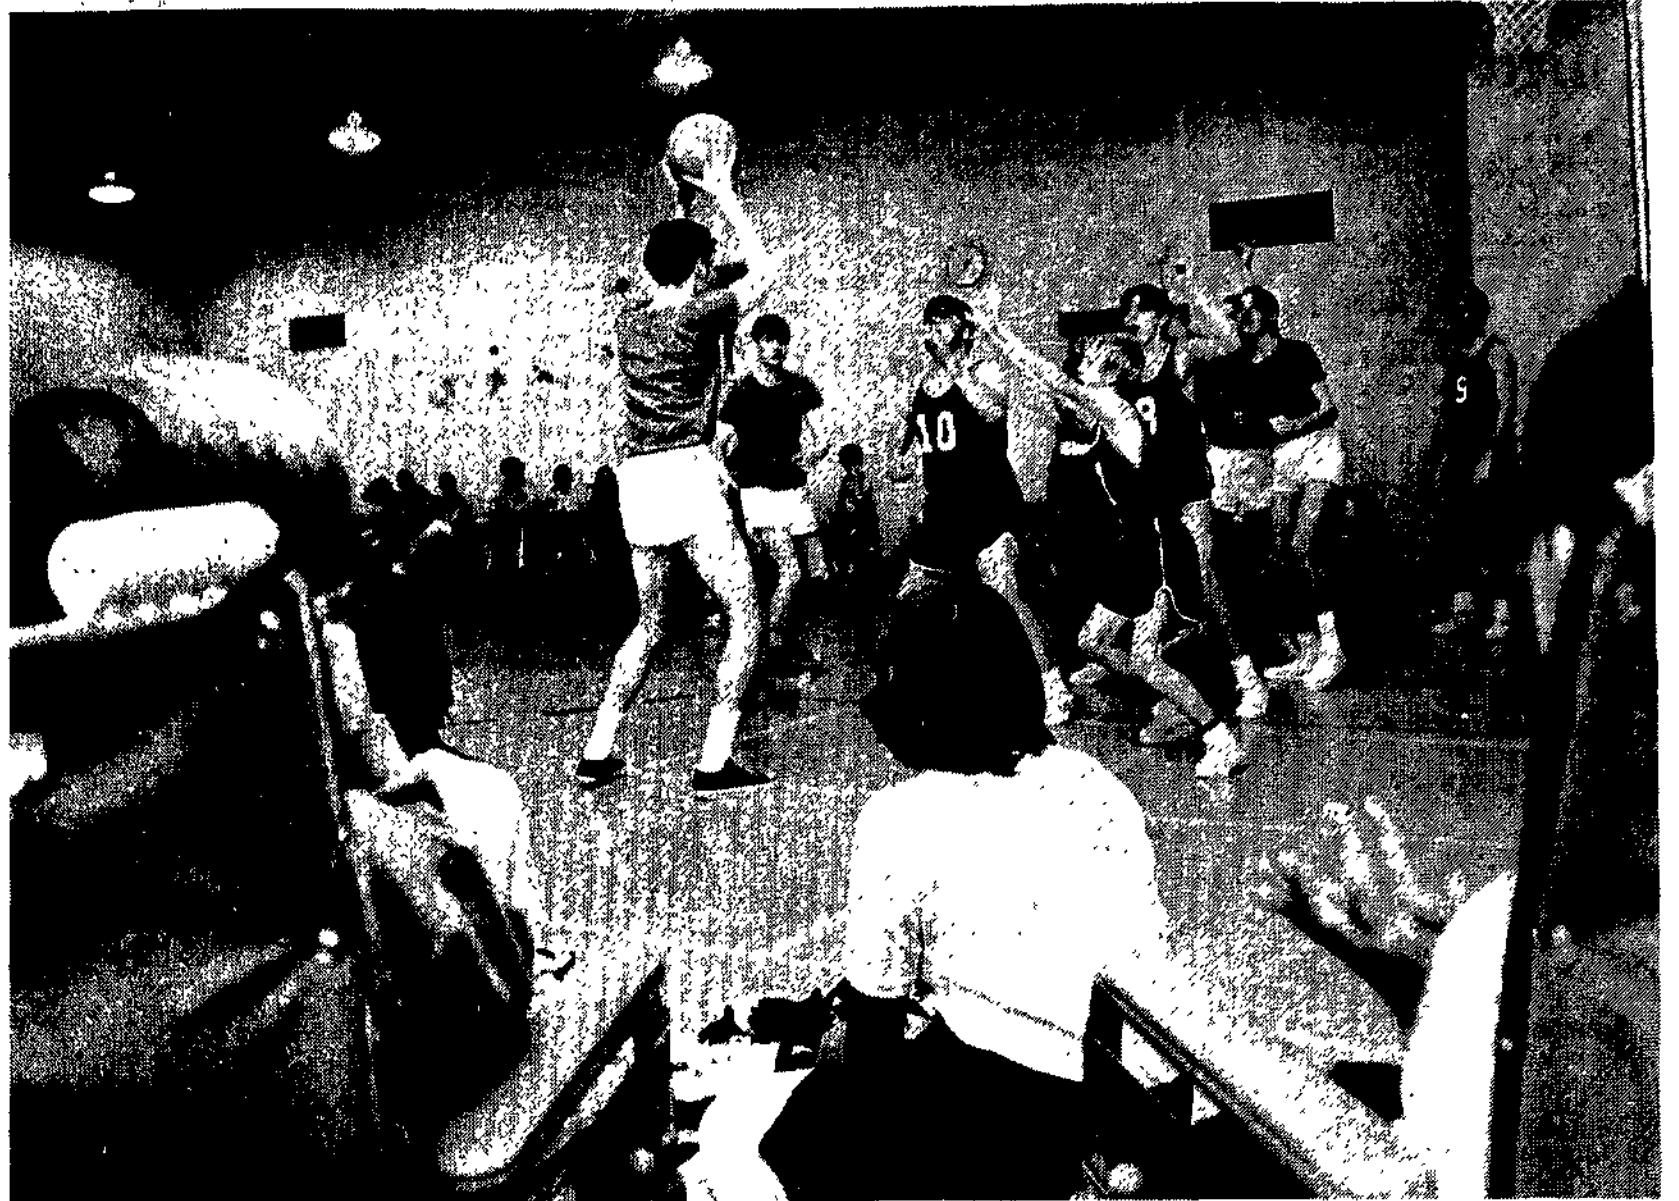

Mrs. DiVenere was in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday with gunshot wounds of the back, right arm and abdomen. McConnell, who lived in an apartment at the same address, was dead on arrival at the Cook County morgue.

HANOVER PARK police issued an all-points bulletin for DiVenere's arrest shortly after 3 a.m., when they were called to the apartment by an ambulance driver.

Less than four hours later sheriff's police arrested the suspect at his brother's trailer in the Oasis Mobile Home Court, 7500 N. Elmhurst Rd. DiVenere was arrested without resistance after his car was spotted outside his brother's trailer, police said.

DiVenere has been a member of the Franklin Park force for nine years.

Hanover Park police late yesterday afternoon said no charges had been filed yet, pending word from the state attorney's office.

A LITTLE CITY player looks for an open teammate in yesterday's game at the Samuel Kirk Developmental Training Center in Palatine. Handicapped youths from both schools are competing in a newly-formed Northwest Athletic Association League and will compete in this spring's special Olympic games for the handicapped.

For a few hours yesterday, they were no different than anyone else.

The boys raced up and down the gym floor as the coaches yelled "defense, defense . . . pass the ball." And the fans applauded their efforts as vigorously as if it were a professional basketball game.

For the teachers and parents of the players, the outcome of the game wasn't as important as the opportunity the youths were getting to participate.

The players are mentally handicapped and are learning a competitive spirit that only a few years ago seemed impossible to teach because few were willing to take the time.

The boys of both the Samuel Kirk Center and Little City in Palatine were being cheered by more than 150 spectators. "Go Kirk Go" boomed through the gym of the host team. Pennants lined the walls of the basketball court.

"It has a great unifying effect on the students," said Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center. "They are beginning to feel a school spirit."

The inter-school competition began this year with the formation of the Northwest Athletic Association League. Kirk Center, Little City, Strafford Center in Highland Park and Malloy Center in Morton Grove are charter members in the conference which may expand to 10 teams next year.

"Quite frankly we didn't think we would ever be able to do it," Sterrett said. "But now look at it," he added pointing to the enthusiastic students, faculty and parents.

Kirk had its own cheerleaders dressed in green and white uniforms made by the wife of one of the teachers at the school. The student body voted on the school colors and the team mascot, the Cubs.

Basketball practice is held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at Kirk Center by coach Sam Burgdorff. The players learn discipline, but, more importantly the will to win, according to the coach.

Later this year, the teams in the newly-formed conference plan to compete in volleyball and a track and field meet. A basketball tournament is also being scheduled and at least one of the teams will vie in the Handicapped Olympics in May sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

After yesterday's game, which ended 28-17 in favor of Little City, the players shook hands as fans applauded. The handicapped children were learning things that their brothers and sisters have always known. There were no losers.

Mahoney Attacks The British 'Brutality'

Buffalo Grove Trustee Thomas Mahoney has attacked what he termed the "brutality" and "terror" of British rule in Northern Ireland and urged citizens to "let our government know of our feelings."

Writing in the St. Mary's Catholic Church bulletin, Mahoney said, "I urge every member of this parish who senses the moral horror of British repression of the Irish people to write to the President, Senators Percy and Stevenson and Congressmen Crane or McClory, and urge their support for measures already pending in the Congress calling for an end to British military occupation of Ireland."

Mahoney also urged parishioners to contribute "to any of the several relief funds which have been established to aid Irish refugees" and singled out Mayor Daley's Irish relief fund, "which has probably done more to alleviate suffering there than any other single source in America."

Here are the names of the students who won honors in the second quarter.

4 New Taxi Laws In Effect To Curb Differences

Increasing conflicts between the two taxicab firms operating in Palatine have caused the Palatine Village Board to establish four new taxicab regulations in an effort to resolve the differences.

Over the past few months, complaints have been lodged with the village over improper fares and overcharging, cabs carrying more than one passenger, hours of operation and unattended taxis at the railroad station.

The four additional regulations were discussed Monday by the village board committee of the whole with representatives of Palatine Cab Co. and A-1 Cab Co. The new rules will be prepared as an amendment to the existing Taxicab Ordinance for a final vote at the next board meeting.

Recommendations made by Village Mgr. Berton Braun were:

—Requiring each cab firm to keep a log in individual cabs showing the time and place of passengers entering and leaving the cab and the fare charged;

—Prohibition against leaving a cab unattended in a cab loading zone;

—Establishment of a standard for a prescribed number of hours of operation each day for each licensed cab;

—Creating a system of zone fares rather than metered fares for cab trips beginning or ending at the Palatine train station.

BRAUN TOLD THE board members he and Police Chief Robert Centner had met with owners of the cab companies to discuss the problems which provided a basis for his recommendations.

He said a main cause of the problems resulted from the opening last fall of the new railroad depot and transportation center at Smith and Collax streets.

The requirement for keeping a log would allow the village police to spot check the fares charged by the cabs, especially those with more than one passenger.

Braun said he had received a written complaint from a resident saying he had been improperly charged with two people in the cab. He said the complaint was checked out and found to be true.

The existing village ordinance requires the last person leaving the cab to pay the fare. However, in some cases each passenger was being charged for the full meter amount when each left the cab.

Braun said the zone plan for fares would solve this problem, allowing a flat rate to be charged to all passengers. The rate would be posted in clear view on the cab and only would apply to persons needing transportation to and from the train station, generally at rush hours.

The prohibition against unattended cars in a loading zone would also eliminate the problem of cabs taking up space and not using it.

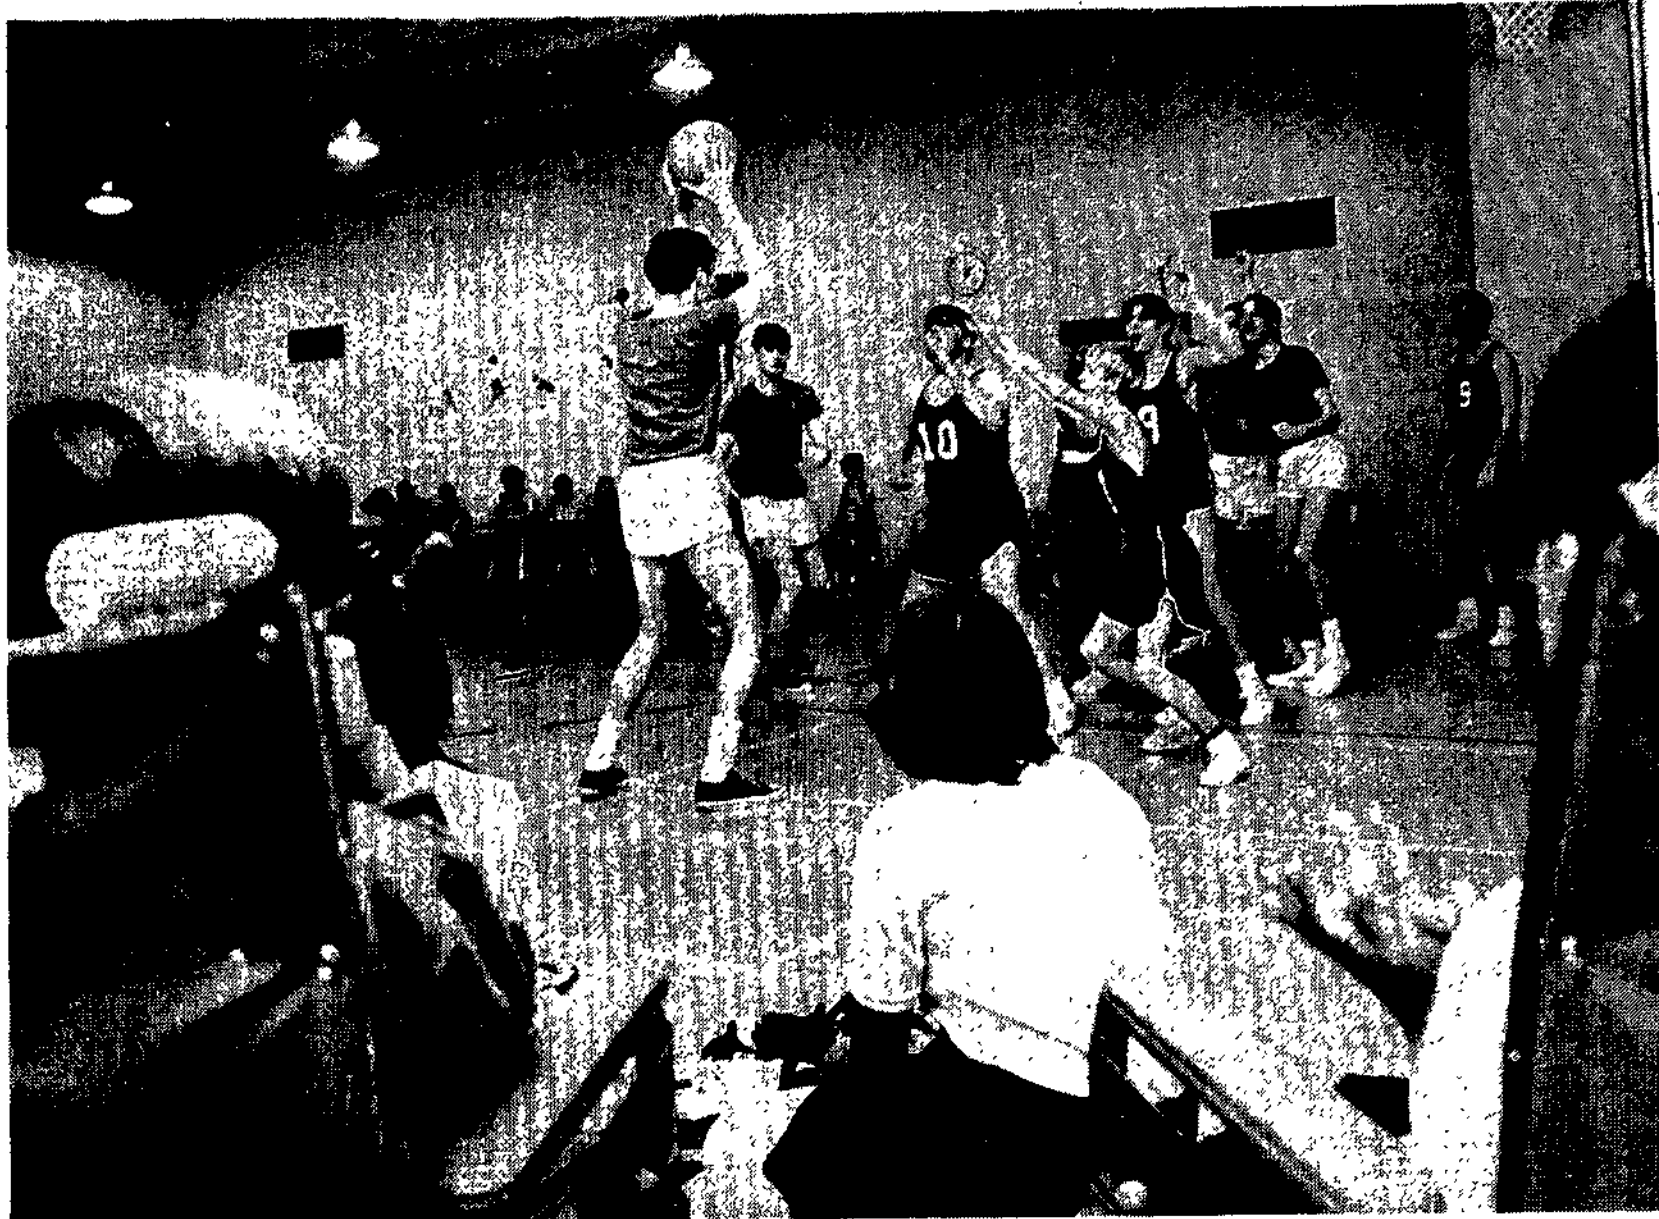

"It's not proper to use a cab loading zone as storage space," Braun said.

BRAUN SUGGESTED setting certain hours for operation of the cabs because there is "something wrong when you want a cab at 2:30 in the afternoon and you can't get one."

Herman Philippe, owner of A-1 Cab, explained he takes his three cabs off the roads at 5 p.m., but answers any calls and provides service after that time.

Philippe also asked the board for permission to place an A-1 dispatcher in the train depot as Palatine Cab is currently allowed. He complained he was losing fares because commuters leaving trains placed reservations with Palatine Cab at the depot and could not see the loading zone where A-1 cabs wait for fares.

The proposed zone system for cab fares to and from the depot reverts to a system used in Palatine prior to establishment of meters in June, 1969. At that time, meters became required in cabs at the insistence of the cab companies to end a potential "cab war" over the flat rates they had charged to passengers.

A LITTLE CITY player looks for an open teammate in yesterday's game at the Samuel Kirk Developmental Training Center in Palatine. Handicapped

Park District To Discuss Bike Trails

The Palatine Park District will hold a public meeting Monday night to discuss development of the Palatine Trail.

As proposed, the 4 1/2-mile bicycle and hiking trail would begin in the Winston Park subdivision and would go along Salt Creek through the park district's recreation area in Palatine Hills. It would end in the vicinity of the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

At a recent meeting, park district director Fred P. Hall recommended appropriating $155,000 toward construction of the trail, including surfacing, bridges and shelters.

The park board decided to seek community input on the plans for the trail, in addition to other proposals totaling an estimated $1.1 million.

Monday's meeting, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the Winston Park School, will be the first of several meetings to ascertain public opinion on the various aspects of the park district's improvement program, Hall said.

'Cabaret' At High School This Weekend

"Cabaret," the annual variety show at Palatine High School, will be presented this weekend.

Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. Friday and 2 and 8 p.m. Saturday in Cutting Hall at the school.

Director of the show is Lawrence Peterson, chairman of the social sciences department. Assistants are Tom Primborn, band; David Reiser, vocal; and JoAnn Enburg, dance.

The show includes skits, music, the Pit Band and magic acts.

Admission is $1.50 per person for the evening performances and $1 for the matinee.

The inter-school competition began this year with the formation of the Northwest Athletic Association League. Kirk Center, Little City, Stratford Center in Highland Park and Malloy Center in Morton Grove are charter members in the conference which may expand to 10 teams next year.

"Quite frankly we didn't think we would ever be able to do it," Sterrett said. "But now look at it," he added pointing to the enthusiastic students, faculty and parents.

Kirk had its own cheerleaders dressed in green and white uniforms made by the wife of one of the teachers at the school. The student body voted on the school colors and the team mascot, the Cubs.

Basketball practice is held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at Kirk Center by coach Sam Burgdorff. The players learn discipline, but, more importantly the will to win, according to the coach.

Later this year, the teams in the newly-formed conference plan to compete in volleyball and a track and field meet. A basketball tournament is also being scheduled and at least one of the teams will vie in the Handicapped Olympics in May sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

After yesterday's game, which ended 28-17 in favor of Little City, the players shook hands as fans applauded. The handicapped children were learning things that their brothers and sisters have always known. There were no losers.

Students Will Tee Off

Students at Winston Park School in Palatine will be teeing off this spring.

Golf is being introduced into the physical education curriculum for the first time in an attempt to offer more individual sport instruction.

The course will be offered over a 15-week period. Instruction will start inside and move outside as the weather permits.

Approximately 400 students are expected to enroll in the coeducational course. The course will be taught by four teachers.

The course is being funded by a $400 instructional improvement grant from the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

Donald Stipes, principal of Winston Park School explained that each year every school in the district submits an application for an instructional improvement grant not to exceed $400. An administrative committee reviews the applications and the grants are awarded on merit.

WINSTON PARK'S proposal to offer golf in the physical education program was so well received, the school was awarded the entire $400 to implement the program.

The money has been used to purchase two and four woods; three, five and nine irons; putters and wiffle balls.

At the end of the 15-week period the teachers will evaluate the course and submit their evaluation to the central administration. If the program turns out to be successful it could be expanded into other schools in the district.

120-Day Deadline Set For Repairs At Meadow Trace

A letter setting a 120-day deadline for completion of major structural improvements at the Meadow Trace apartment complex has been sent to the Kassuba Development Corp. offices in Oak Brook and Florida by Rolling Meadows City Mgr. James Watson.

The letter, in effect, demands that Kassuba start and complete within four months structural repairs that were promised by Kassuba representatives seven months ago. It also states, according to Watson and Mayor Roland Meyer, the city will take Kassuba to court if the repairs are not completed at the deadline.

The major improvements the city is seeking are basement exits in several buildings that have none and improved ventilation in the basements of all the buildings in the Arbor Drive complex.

Without these structural features, the buildings are in violation of the city's fire code.

The substance of the city's letter is that Kassuba has 30 days to submit a plan for structural renovation to the city's building and zoning office for approval. Subsequent to approval of the plan, Kassuba will have 90 days to complete the work.

WATSON SAID if Kassuba does not comply with the city's terms the city could take the matter to court in an attempt to "force them to make the structural improvements if they continue to use Meadow Trace for a dwelling place."

Meyer said emphatically if no progress is made in 120 days, the City Council "will ask the city attorney to take them to court." But, he added, "if they (Kassuba) are showing a sincere effort on their part" to make the corrections and slip slightly past the deadline, the city may not resort to a suit.

Last week a meeting was held by city and fire officials with John Blyth, Meadow Trace manager. After the meeting Watson announced the city's plans to put Kassuba on a timetable for repairs and hold them to it.

Watson said Blyth has been "very cooperative and we are pleased with his efforts in improving the maintenance, housekeeping and decorating at the complex. But nothing has been done about the structural corrections that were promised."

BLYTH, WATSON said, does not have the authority to promise structural improvements. That decision is made at the Kassuba offices in Oak Brook or Palm Beach, Fla.

In addition to the two major improvements, without which the basements of some of the buildings could be fire traps, according to Fire Chief Tom Fogarty, officials said some doors have not been hung and dry wall construction has not been completed in some buildings.

Collette Placek Is City 'Miss'

Collette L. Placek will represent Rolling Meadows in the Miss Illinois Teenager Pageant this summer.

Collette, 13, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Placek of 3806 Jay.

A student at Carl Sandburg School, Collette has been commended by the principal for her scholastic performance. She is on the staff of the school yearbook and paper, sings in the school chorus group and is a school usherette. Collette also plays the guitar for church services and teaches handicapped people to swim. She takes both guitar and baton lessons.

The pageant is open to girls aged 13 through 17. The girls are judged for their scholastic achievements, civic contributions, poise, personality and appearance.

Winners from the 46 states which conduct the pageant will compete in National Finals in Atlanta, Ga. on Aug. 23, 24.

Preschool Class Registrations On

Registrations are now being taken for the last two sessions of the Rolling Meadows Park District preschool classes.

Session VI will run from March 13 to April 21. No classes will be held from April 3 through April 7 because of spring vacation.

Session VII begins on April 24 and ends May 26.

The classes for children 4 years old to school age are on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m.

Classes for children 3 and 4 years old will be held at the same times in a different room.

The fee for Tuesday and Thursday classes is $12.50 and the fee for Monday, Wednesday and Friday classes is $18. Registration must be made at the administrative office, 1 Park Meadow Place. For further information call 392-4380.

Student-Faculty Basketball Set

Rolling Meadows High School will have its first student-faculty basketball game on March 2.

A preliminary game between the Hersey Boosters and Rolling Meadows Boosters will start at 7 p.m. This game will be followed by members of the Lettermen's Club at Rolling Meadows playing faculty members.

Admission to the game, which is being sponsored by the Lettermen's Club is 50 cents for children under 12, 75 cents for students and $1 for adults. Tickets will be available at the door or from a member of the Lettermen's Club.

150 Spectators Yelled-'Go Kirk Go'

by DOUG RAY

For a few hours yesterday, they were no different than anyone else.

The boys raced up and down the gym floor as the coaches yelled "defense, defense . . . pass the ball." And the fans applauded their efforts as vigorously as if it were a professional basketball game.

For the teachers and parents of the players, the outcome of the game wasn't as important as the opportunity the youths were getting to participate.

to teach because few were willing to take the time.

The boys of both the Samuel Kirk Center and Little City in Palatine were being cheered by more than 150 spectators. "Go Kirk Go" boomed through the gym of the host team. Pennants lined the walls of the basketball court.

"It has a great unifying effect on the students," said Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center. "They are beginning to feel a school spirit."

The inter-school competition began this year with the formation of the Northwest Athletic Association League. Kirk Center, Little City, Stratford Center in Highland Park and Malloy Center in Morton Grove are charter members in the conference which may expand to 10 teams next year.

"Quite frankly we didn't think we would ever be able to do it," Sterrett said. "But now look at it," he added pointing to the enthusiastic students, faculty and parents.

Earn Tree By Recycling

An incentive program to encourage Rolling Meadows residents to participate in the city's monthly ecology days will be launched in March, according to Ald. Dan Weber, chairman of the Recycling, Environment and Beautification (REB) committee.

The committee will purchase and distribute hardwood trees to residents who participate during a four-month period in the city's recycling program.

Weber said the preliminary part of the program will begin next month, but the first trees won't be distributed until June. He said he expects the program to add 500 to 1,000 trees to the city landscape in a year.

In order to get a tree, a resident will have to participate in three consecutive monthly recycling days, and bring glass, paper and cans to the city garage recycling dropoff.

Each month he will receive a token. After three tokens are collected, they can be exchanged for a potted, three-foot tree on a subsequent recycling day.

Weber said the incentive program is only for city residents, and trees will be distributed probably twice a year, in June and October. Directions for planting and care of the trees will be included.

The REB committee will purchase the trees with its share of the revenue from recycling the trash. The committee keeps one share of the revenue for its own use and distributes three shares to youth groups that assist on the recycling days.

The ecology days are held on the first Saturday of each month, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Appropriate Share Of Cost

Inverness Joins Heart Unit

Inverness has joined other area communities in the formation of a mobile heart care unit.

The village board, meeting Tuesday night, unanimously endorsed the concept of the program and appropriated the village's share of the cost.

An Inverness resident, Mrs. Janet Schwettman, outlined the plan which, she said, is designed to stabilize the condition of a heart attack victim before his arrival at the hospital.

Most deaths attributed to heart attacks occur within minutes of the seizure.

Mrs. Schwettman said she expects to have a network based at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights by June. The hospital is expected to formally approve the program in a staff meeting Feb. 21.

INVERNESS IS THE third community to agree to participate in the program, though one village, Schaumburg, probably will go into a network being organized around Alexian Brothers Hospital in Elk Grove Village instead of the Arlington Heights unit.

Rolling Meadows also has approved the plan, and Palatine is expected to at its meeting next week. The Mount Prospect village board has not yet considered the plan, but it has been given a favorable recommendation by the village fire department. Arlington Heights is expected to take action after the hospital gives its endorsement of the program.

Inverness' share of the mobile heart care unit is estimated at $3,300. The village board has appropriated up to $3,500 from its civil defense fund.

An equal amount will be paid by the Palatine Rural Fire District, which services Inverness. The remaining $6,000 would be paid by Palatine.

Villages requiring one unit would pay about $6,000. Those requiring two, because the towns are divided by railroad tracks, would pay the full $13,000.

The system consists of a machine which applies an electrical shock to restore the victim's heart beat. It would be operated by fire department officials but instructions regarding the patient's treatment would come directly from doctors at the nearest participating hospital.

New Filtration System For Pool

A new filtration system will be installed in the Palatine Park District swimming pool at Community Park in time for the 1972 season.

The park district's board of commissioners decided Tuesday night to replace the present system, at an approximate cost of $11,000, rather than repair it, at a cost of $2,500.

If repaired, the system would allow continued use of the pool for one or two years.

The present filtration system was installed in 1954. Director Fred P. Hall said most such systems have a lifetime of 15 to 20 years.

The cost of a new system is expected to be handled through a loan to be retired in three annual installments.

Hall said the work should be completed in time for the opening of the swimming season in mid-June.

Parent Information Night Set Tuesday

A Parent Information Night will be held at Rolling Meadows High School Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for the parents of juniors.

This is the second of three information nights designed to give parents information about various aspects of colleges. Tuesday's topics will include college selection, college admissions, and college testing.

The final information night is scheduled for March 16 at 8 p.m.

Seek Disannexation From Village Of Inverness

A suit will be filed this week to disannex a large parcel of land from the Village of Inverness, possibly for development of multi-family dwellings or commercial enterprise.

The 40-acre tract is on the southeastern portion of the village, near Harper College and the Little City Foundation.

Atty. William J. Moore said the owners of the property are seeking disannexation from Inverness because its zoning classifications permit only single-family residential development.

"Inverness does not like apartments and I don't criticize them for it," he said. "It's a high class and enviable residential area."

"What we're concerned about is the loss of flexibility which is inherent in the Inverness zoning code and the Inverness attitude."

Moore appeared before the Inverness village board Tuesday night to request the disannexation. The matter was referred to the board's plan commission.

The attorney then told the village trustees he would probably initiate a suit in Cook County Circuit Court, rather than wait for the village to reach a decision.

"It's not a matter of malice; it's a matter of self-preservation," he said.

Moore said the owners of the property, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lonze, 1120 S. Roselle Rd., Inverness, have not yet decided what to do with the land.

He acknowledged that the area is large enough for an apartment complex or shopping center to serve nearby Harper College.

The land currently contains only the Lonzes' home and a barn. The rest of the tract is undeveloped.

Camp-Fire Dance Is Scheduled

The Camp Fire father and daughter square dance will be held Saturday from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex.

Blue Birds, Camp Fire, junior high and the Horizon Girls will be participating. Fathers and daughters will be wearing Country-Western attire. There will be decorations in western setting. Wally Paulsen of Rolling Meadows will be the caller. A square dance group called the Bucks and Does will perform.

Refreshments will be served.

C&NW Rate Hike Proposal

Village Considers Protest

Palatine village officials are considering presenting formal objections at Illinois Commerce Commission ICC hearings on the proposed 7 per cent rate hike of the Chicago and North Western Ry.

Trustees at the village board committee of the whole meeting Monday generally were in favor of appearing before the ICC to object to the increase, although no final decision was made.

The C & NW must justify a rate increase at full public ICC hearings before the ICC will give approval for the hike.

"As a commuter of 10 years standing and a resident of Palatine, I feel as a board we ought to take some stand of opposition to the increase," Trustee Fred Zajonc told the rest of the board.

"Phase II guidelines place a 5 1/2 per cent limit on increases. The railroad is asking for seven per cent," Zajonc said. "We should protest it vigorously."

VILLAGE MGR. Berton Braun cautioned the board, saying, "If you're going to object to the rate, you have to be prepared to analyze the increase and the railroad's accounts. It's not appropriate for a village to object just because you don't want a rate increase."

Braun said there is one significant difference in this year's petition of the C & NW requesting a rate increase from previous years — a substantial decline in the ridership on the system last year, "particularly the Northwest line."

Zajonc, however, disagreed that the decline of ridership should warrant an increase.

"I don't believe for a minute that ridership will go down. If anything, it will go up," he said, pointing out the potential increase in the number of commuters from construction of large downtown Chicago office structures, such as the proposed Sears Roebuck building.

Three Palatine residents and commuters were in the audience and asked the village board to take a position against the rate increase and be heard at the ICC.

They presented a four-page leaflet which the C & NW had distributed on commuter trains Friday and Monday to explain the railroad's rationale for the rate hike.

ZAJONC OBJECTED the the railroad's description in the leaflet of the new transportation in Palatine, saying "They're taking credit for something we did." Over $350,000 in village funds has been used to finance construction of the new center and depot at Smith and Colfax Street, while the C & NW financed smaller items, such as construction of a new platform.

"This (the C & NW leaflet) is a PR play to get their CMATS idea going," Trustee Tom Ahern said. He referred to the proposal to create a Chicago Metropolitan Area Transportation System (CMATS) out of existing transportation facilities within a six-county area in order to more equitably distribute state and federal funds.

The Chicago and North Western has been the main advocate of the CMATS idea, which would provide the C & NW with more funds.

"They (the railroad) are not interested in mass transit, they're interested in the Chicago and North Western," Trustee Clayton Brown said, emphasizing that the C & NW has opposed plans of the Chicago Transit Authority to extend one of its lines to serve O'Hare Airport.

Because the rate increase would affect more commuters in the area than just those in Palatine, Trustee Terry Leighty suggested any formal objection to the rate hike be handled by the Northwest Municipal Conference, a regional organization of officials in 14 Northwest suburban towns.

The village board is expected to continue discussion on an objection to the rate hike and make a decision at the next village board meeting Monday.

Industrial Park Building Gets 1st OK

A development that will add about 55,000 square feet of commercial and office space to Rolling Meadows' south industrial park has received preliminary approval from the city council.

The plans, submitted by Roy Bergeson of Babbins & Assoc., Chicago, call for three buildings to be built on Newport Drive between the Northwest Tollroad and Algonquin Road.

A two-story office building and two single-story multi-use incubated buildings are the core of the 177,000 square foot development.

Following Tuesday night's council decision, the plans will be resubmitted to the city's plan commission for their approval and then brought back to the council for a final vote.

The plan commission has already given preliminary conditional approval to the proposal. The development conforms to the M-1 commercial zoning on Newport Drive, so no special use permit was requested.

BERGESON EXPLAINED that "there is a demand for this kind of space in this area because nobody has seen fit to develop multi-use buildings."

Space in the multi-use buildings, which he described as "essentially light manufacturing or warehousing facilities," will be divided and rented in small units.

Babbins has built similar projects in Mount Prospect and Des Plaines. Bergeson said their tenants range from firms operating a sub-assembly of electronic parts for radios and televisions to a computer firm selling computer time.

He said Babbins has built a dozen similar projects north and west of Chicago in the past 10 years.

He explained that the development differs from normal industrial complexes because the steel and masonry buildings "will be all front, there will be no appearance of flat, dull brick warehouse walls, there will be no loud signs."

2 'Ski Mask' Bandits In Bank 4 Hours

by CRAIG GAARE

Police theorized Wednesday that the two men who robbed the Bank of Buffalo Grove and escaped with more than $100,000 were in the bank undetected for more than four hours before forcing a teller to open the vault after banking hours Tuesday evening.

George Miller, the president of the bank, said yesterday between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken, but the exact amount still is not known.

It is possible that the two men, described by witnesses as under 25 years of age and wearing long hair, could have been familiar to bank employees and thus would not have been considered suspicious.

However Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said that theory is "only speculation and added, "it is not necessarily that difficult to get downstairs," to hide near the vault where the robbery occurred.

Smith also said it is only speculation whether the robbery was carried out by local persons or if professionals were involved.

BUT HE DID say, "I have the feeling it is someone we know."

Police are compiling a list of possible suspects and are "talking to as many witnesses as possible," according to Smith.

Meanwhile, the two suspects, who were ski masks and brandished small caliber revolvers in the robbery, are still at large and are being sought by local and state police and federal agents.

Smith said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has assigned 15 agents to the case. He met with state police detectives for about an hour Wednesday morning to discuss the case with them.

After the meeting, Smith told the Herald most of the information and leads are sketchy and he is meeting with state and federal agents to "correlate our information so there is no duplication."

ACCORDING TO the police account of the robbery, the suspects entered the bank sometime before 2 p.m. when the bank closes all but the drive-up windows. When the robbery took place, shortly before 6:30 p.m., there were four persons in the bank — three tellers and one employee working downstairs.

Police believe the robbers first handcuffed the employee in the basement and then waited for each teller to bring down the day's receipts from the cash drawers. The tellers normally come separately because they finish totaling their receipts at different times, Smith said.

As each teller came down, the robbers handcuffed them and placed the tellers out of view of the next employee coming down the stairs. After all the employees were in the basement, the robbers forced one teller to open the vault at gunpoint.

The suspects fled on foot out the west door of the bank carrying the money in a green duffel bag.

Smith said he did not know the exact amount that was taken.

SMITH SAID NO shots were fired and no one was injured. The only physical violence consisted of the tellers being handcuffed.

The robbers narrowly missed being apprehended by village police, who as a normal security measure, patrol the bank parking lot at closing time. Patrolman Gary Wenckebach was in a police squad in the parking lot at 6:12 p.m., according to the police radio log. He stayed in the lot approximately six minutes. He told the Herald he did not observe anything suspicious, so he resumed his normal patrol at 6:18.

At 6:20, the robbery was reported.

Changes Would Give Village's Budget Flexibility

A new budget system is being considered by the Village of Mount Prospect. The proposed changes, approved Monday night by the village board finance committee, are aimed at providing more flexibility in the village's operational budget.

Trustee Donald B. Furst, chairman of the finance committee, said his committee is "going to recommend that the Village of Mount Prospect amend the present appropriations ordinance and incorporate into the present ordinance the Optional Municipal Budget Act of 1967, as amended." He said the board will vote on the matter at Tuesday's board meeting.

THE 1967 state act allows a budget officer to be appointed and be given certain duties. The legislation also established that the passage of the budget appropriations ordinance as called for elsewhere in the state statutes.

Currently, to comply with state law, Mount Prospect passes an appropriations ordinance and then a budget. Usually, the appropriation ordinance includes a 10 per cent increase on budgeted amounts to cover cost increases and other unforeseen expenses.

Furst feels the alternative "gives the board more control, places more responsibility on the specific department heads to live within their budget and gives the board more flexibility."

The new budget officer, who most likely would be Richard Jesse, the present finance director, would have the responsibility of taking the budget prepared by the manager and placing it in a form suitable for publication and presentation

Board Approves Pleasant Run Complex

The Wheeling Village Board Monday approved a final plat for the Pleasant Run planned development near John Muir School.

The board approved legally splitting the property of the development from adjoining property on Elmhurst Road which will be developed as a shopping center.

The Wheeling Village Board action will enable Pleasant Run developer John Girosio and Associates to obtain building permits and begin work on the apartment development.

However problems with a drainage easement needed for the development are not yet solved.

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt said Monday the developers have not yet reached an agreement with School Dist. 23 officials about the easements needed for the drainage of the development.

The developers have asked the School Dist. 23 Board for three easements — land for a sanitary sewer across the west end of the school property, land for a storm sewer to run across the south end of the property, and land to relocate a dry basin to the southeast corner of the school property.

School officials have indicated they do not favor building the basin on school property because of potential danger to school children. But the board has not officially acted on the developers' request yet.

Plans for the project call for 145 apartments in 10 buildings.

Each of the buildings would be two stories tall.

There would be a total of 25 one-bedroom apartments, 115 two-bedroom apartments, and five three-bedroom apartments.

to the village board, according to Furst.

Another important function of the budget director, Furst said, will be "full responsibility for the execution of the budget once it is passed."

OTHER CHANGES are allowed by the 1967 act. These include the ability to set aside 10 per cent of the total budget as a contingency fund and to establish a capital improvements fund equal to one-half of one per cent of the village's assessed valuation.

Furst said that capital improvement funds, something the village does not now have, can be carried from year to year as long as they are specifically earmarked for a project or projects. He used the example that if the village should want to buy a $60,000 fire engine in three years, $20,000 could be set aside for each of the three upcoming years in the capital improvements fund.

Under the new plan the budget would have to be approved before May 1 each year. Currently, the budget can be approved after the fiscal year begins.

EGHS Jazz Band Is 'Best'

The Elk Grove High School Jazz Band was named outstanding band at the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival held last weekend.

The band received a trophy as "outstanding band of the day" and also placed first in Class AA, for bands from high schools with enrollment of more than 1,500.

The Prospect High School band was one of three other finalists competing for the Class AA award and earned a superior rating from the judges. Other participants from High School Dist. 214 were Wheeling High School, which received a superior rating, and Forest View High School, which received an excellent rating.

More than 90 bands participated in the 13th annual competition, known as the most prestigious jazz band contest in the state, according to Doug Peterson, Elk Grove's band director for the last four years.

"The seniors on the band have had this win as their dream for the last four years," Peterson said. He added that the high school's lab band, consisting of younger students, also played at Oak Lawn under the direction of Gary Parker, assistant band director, but did not compete.

Soloists for the winning band were seniors Larry Friedrichs, Dave Krikorian, Scott Bentall, Tony Seda, Jim Callahan, Vern Wennerstrom, Don Reilly and Tom Stewart.

AFS Pupil Graduates Again

Debbie Shafer, 1837 N. Chestnut, Arlington Heights, graduated from high school for the second time last month.

The first time was in December in Rosario, Argentina, where she was attending school as a foreign exchange student sponsored by the American Field Service.

On return to the United States in January she graduated from Hersey High School in Arlington Heights where she previously attended classes. Miss Shafer currently is a freshman at Harper College in Palatine.

During her 10½-month stay in South America, Miss Shafer said she lived with the Rotania family in Rosario where she attended a public school.

She said all conversations with friends and lessons in school were in Spanish. "My 3½ years of Spanish in high school were not sufficient to speak the language automatically, but I picked it up very quickly out of necessity," she said.

There were no clubs or dances sponsored by the school during the year. But at graduation time there was a dinner, prom and a going-away party for the seniors, Miss Shafer said.

"I found the people so warm and friendly that I felt at home in Argentina," she said. "It was really a beautiful experience."

Money to send Miss Shafer to Argentina was raised by the Hersey Student Council through a variety show, pizza sale and dances.

Board To Request 39-Cent Hike In Education Tax

The Mount Prospect Dist. 57 School Board will ask voters to approve a 39-cent hike in the educational fund tax rate March 25.

Passage of a referendum would raise the current educational fund tax to $2.06 per $100 assessed valuation. That would mean a taxpayer with a house assessed at $10,000 would pay $206 to the Dist. 57 education fund, an increase of $39 over this year.

Approval of a referendum came Tuesday night after the board had adopted two alternative 1972-73 staffing plans. More than 300 persons filled the gym at Lincoln Junior High School to voice their opinions and object to some of the board's proposals. The meeting, at many times heated, lasted for nearly six hours.

One staffing plan, called Revision I, would be put into effect if a referendum fails and the district has to operate under an estimated $110,000 1972-73 deficit. The other, called Revision II, would be used if a referendum passes. Both call for cuts in current staffing.

"WE'RE NOT THREATENING you. We're telling you the truth," said Board Pres. Harrison Hanson. "I don't see any way to restore the district to a paying basis and eliminate the deficit. It would take more money than we could pass a referendum for."

The first plan includes elimination of seven classroom teachers and 16 special teachers. Two learning disabilities, two art, two vocal music teachers and one of two band teachers would be cut. One nurse, a typing teacher, two practical arts teachers, one speech correctionist and one social worker would also be eliminated. Included in the elimination is the foreign language program at Lincoln Junior High School. At the same time one resource center teacher will be added, however.

The second plan, which would be followed if the tax hike is approved, would restore vocal music, band, typing and practical arts teachers. The foreign language program would be retained and three resource center teachers added. However, five classroom teachers would still be eliminated.

In both plans, the position of director of pupils services is eliminated. The director, who currently receives $14,500 coordinates the district's special education and testing programs. He also serves as summer school director.

THE TWO PLANS were approved 6 to 1 by the board. Leo Floros, who proposed his own staffing plan, voted against the proposals. A move to accept his plan, which is similar to the board's second plan but would be adopted even if a referendum failed, was defeated 6 to 1.

"What I recommended, I think, is something I feel we could live with if a referendum fails," Floros said. "If we cut too deeply here tonight and a referendum fails, we will have a very unsatisfactory educational program." Floros' proposal also included postponement for at least one year a proposed expansion of Fairview School, 300 N. Fairview St.

Many of the teachers and residents at the meeting protested the board's proposals. Some parents felt no learning disabilities teachers should be eliminated.

Dale Heilman, president of the Mount Prospect Education Association (MPEA), asked the board why teachers weren't polled before the plans were drawn up. "The ultimate responsibility lies with the board of education," Supt. Eric Sahlberg said. "The plans were a management decision."

MANY OF THE nearly 300 parents, teachers and residents at the Mount Prospect Dist. 57 school board meeting Tuesday night voiced protests to the board's staffing plans. Board Pres. Harrison Hanson said he would limit audience discussion to 30 minutes, but residents talked for nearly an hour.

Charge Board Fails Open Meeting Test

A Monday night closed-door session of the Dist. 57 School Board has led to charges that the board did not conform with the Illinois Open Meeting Law.

The board met with Supt. Eric Sahlberg and Asst. Supt. J. C. Busenhart for nearly five hours Monday. At Tuesday night's board meeting, the board presented and approved two revised staffing plans to the public and called for a referendum on a 39-cent tax hike in the district's educational fund rate.

According to board members Robert Novy and Peter Dudrow, at the closed meeting the board discussed staffing, negotiations, employment of a negotiator and the proposed tax hike.

A notice of the closed meeting sent to the Herald last week indicated the meeting was held to discuss personnel. Under the open meeting law, a public body can hold a closed session "to consider information regarding appointment, employment or dismissal of an employee or officer."

THE BOARD CAN also call a closed session to consider acquisition of property, negotiations and pending court proceedings.

"The meeting was obviously held to come up with a staffing plan and since that involved personnel it was a legal meeting," said Board Pres. Harrison Hanson. "A part of the staffing plan leads to discussion, of course, of what we're going to do to try and get Revision II (an alternate staffing plan with less staff cutbacks). And as far as we're concerned the referendum was really part of that staffing plan."

Former Dist. 57 board member Jack Ronchetto, said he felt the meeting violated the open meeting law.

"The intent of the law was to have all business except certain specific areas conducted in public. While the vote was taken in public, several decisions were apparently made in private," he said. "This whole revised staffing program, seen by the public the first time it was handed out — it was devised at this meeting. People were led to believe they were coming in Tuesday night and could state their case. I think that is a violation of spirit of the law."

Discuss License Issue

Businessmen Object To Fee Proposal

MOUNT PROSPECT Dist. 57 Board Pres. Harrison Hanson looks at petition submitted by the Citizens Committee for Quality Education, endorsing the group's staffing plan.

Members of the Mount Prospect business community objected to the business license forms and fees at a meeting with the village board's finance committee Tuesday night.

Matt Pryan, executive secretary of the Mount Prospect Chamber of Commerce, said he had discussed the business license issue with many businessmen over the last few months. "The fees were one thing (they objected to). The other was the lengthy application. The third was that there were certain businesses in town that weren't being licensed," he said.

Trustee Donald B. Furst, chairman of the finance committee and the man responsible for the "brain-storming" session, told the four businessmen present "we'll look at this as objectively as we can." He added the village was conducting a cost-study analysis on the village's out-of-pocket costs for business licenses.

Most of the businessmen's objections centered on the license application form. They ranged from dismay at the length of the application to a number of what the businessmen considered pointless questions.

Pryan said many businessmen did not want the village asking personal questions on the form, such as the question on whether the applicant has ever been convicted of a felony.

THE QUESTION on the form that asks for the names, addresses, birthdates and social security numbers of all officers and directors, if a corporation, was particularly singled out for attack by Ray Johnston, newly installed Chamber president.

"This is too much information (to ask for)," Johnston said. "Personally, I had more complaints about the form than the fee. Does this information serve any purpose?"

Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann said the business applications were reviewed before licenses were issued. He also said if a person lies on the application, the village can revoke the license. "We don't want the club (the ability to revoke), but it's there," he said.

Furst questioned whether the village could deny a license, even if the applicant was a wanted criminal. He admitted there was a question as to how much information the village should require.

AGAIN REFERRING to questions he had been asked, Pryan said most comments were that "the fees are too high for the services rendered." Speaking for himself, Pryan said, "I think you should be more equitable and the equity should be at the minimum."

Furst agreed some work had to be done by his committee in the area of equity of fee charges. "We shouldn't be making a profit on the licenses," he said. "But I assume we should be recouping our out-of-pocket expenses. What I hear (at this meeting) is that there should be a minimum fee established."

The committee chairman, in "off the head" figures, said 550 Mount Prospect businesses generated about $24,000 in license fees. But the costs to the village for processing, material and inspections comes to about $30,000 a year.

Also present at the meeting were Louis Velasco and Charles Bartmann, both local businessmen and Trustee Errol F. Richardson.

Drug Use — What Is Parent Role?

by TOM VON MALDER

Everyone knows that drugs have reached the Northwest suburbs. It is no longer unusual to hear that a high school student or a young adult is using marijuana or speed, even LSD or heroin on occasion.

But it takes an incident such as Tuesday's to bring that point home. And what is a parent to do if he suspects his child of using drugs?

Shortly after 9 p.m. Tuesday, a father called the Mount Prospect police to report he had found a plastic bag containing "a suspicious crushed green plant" in his son's coat pocket.

The 15-year-old youth was charged with possession of marijuana and processed as a juvenile offender by the police youth division.

EACH TOLD THE police his side of the story. The father went first. He said he first grew suspicious Sunday night when he found some cigaret papers in his son's room. Then he found the marijuana on Tuesday, less than 90 minutes after the "lid" of marijuana had been purchased.

The son's tale went like this. Contact was made Monday in a local pool hall and delivery was promised for the next day. For $15, the purchase was made from a former classmate at Maine West High School. It wasn't his first such purchase, either.

The pressure here was on the father. He felt he had to act. He chose to go to the police for help.

As a parent, what course would you choose if you found yourself in a similar situation? With drugs becoming more and more prevalent in the suburbs, your chances of finding yourself in such a predicament are increasing constantly.

AND IT REALLY has very little to do with the manner in which a child is brought up. Part of today's new youth culture is the use of drugs such as marijuana. The laws at present make such use a criminal offense.

Perhaps the laws need to be changed — there are arguments for both sides. But they haven't been changed yet, so the potential situation, the potential decision still exists for most parents. And it isn't an easy one.

The Mount Prospect youth in this week's incident now has a record with the police department. It's not too good a gift for his 16th birthday, which was yesterday. But it does give both him and his father something to live with — the decision and its results — for the rest of their lives.

Ski Mask Bandits Lurked 4 Hours

by CRAIG GAARE

Police theorized Wednesday that the two men who robbed the Bank of Buffalo Grove and escaped with more than $100,000 were in the bank undetected for more than four hours before forcing a teller to open the vault after banking hours Tuesday evening.

George Miller, the president of the bank, said yesterday between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken, but the exact amount still is not known.

It is possible that the two men, described by witnesses as under 25 years of age and wearing long hair, could have been familiar to bank employees and thus would not have been considered suspicious.

However Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said that theory is only speculation and added, "it is not necessarily that difficult to get downstairs," to hide near the vault where the robbery occurred.

Smith also said it is only speculation whether the robbery was carried out by local persons or if professionals were involved.

BUT HE DID say, "I have the feeling it is someone we know."

Police are compiling a list of possible suspects and are "talking to as many witnesses as possible," according to Smith.

Meanwhile, the two suspects, who wore ski masks and brandished small caliber revolvers in the robbery, are still at large and are being sought by local and state police and federal agents.

Smith said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has assigned 15 agents to the case. He met with state police detectives for about an hour Wednesday morning to discuss the case with them.

After the meeting, Smith told the Herald most of the information and leads are sketchy and he is meeting with state and federal agents to "correlate our information so there is no duplication."

ACCORDING TO the police account of the robbery, the suspects entered the bank sometime before 2 p.m. when the bank closes all but the drive-up windows. When the robbery took place, shortly before 6:30 p.m., there were four persons in the bank — three tellers and one employee working downstairs.

Police believe the robbers first handcuffed the employee in the basement and then waited for each teller to bring down the day's receipts from the cash drawers. The tellers normally come separately because they finish totaling their receipts at different times, Smith said.

As each teller came down, the robbers handcuffed them and placed the tellers out of view of the next employee coming down the stairs. After all the employees were in the basement, the robbers forced one teller to open the vault at gunpoint.

The suspects fled on foot out the west door of the bank carrying the money in a green duffel bag.

Smith said he did not know the exact amount that was taken.

SMITH SAID NO shots were fired and no one was injured. The only physical violence consisted of the tellers being handcuffed.

The robbers narrowly missed being apprehended by village police, who as a normal security measure, patrol the bank parking lot at closing time. Patrolman Gary Wenckebach was in a police squad in the parking lot at 6:12 p.m., according to the police radio log. He stayed in the lot approximately six minutes. He told the Herald he did not observe anything suspicious, so he resumed his normal patrol at 6:18.

At 6:20, the robbery was reported.

Bank Money Was Insured

The president of the Bank of Buffalo Grove said yesterday the money taken in Tuesday's armed robbery will not result in any loss to persons who have accounts with the bank.

"We're completely covered," George Miller said yesterday following the Tuesday night robbery in which between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken at gunpoint from four bank employees after closing hours.

Miller said the bank is protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and an additional policy the bank has with a private insurance company.

He said the bank will have the money from the insurance companies by next Tuesday.

THE BANK, located at the corner of Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, was chartered in July, 1968 and opened about a year later in August, 1969.

The bank opened with holdings worth $750,000. The bank has grown steadily over the last two years and listed assets totaling $7,876,581 as of Sept. 30, 1971.

The Village of Buffalo Grove has most of its money in the bank and the park district invested the proceeds from its $1,250,000 bond issue with the bank.

Domanico Back In School Board Race

Albert Domanico is back in the race for the board of education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Domanico, of 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village, said yesterday he will be a candidate for election to the board in the April 8 elections. He was defeated last year by Erwin Poklacki in a race for the board.

"I'm tempted to say I'm running out of habit," Domanico said. He served on the board for 16 months during 1969 and 1970, but did not seek reelection in 1970 because he was expecting to be transferred out of the area.

He said yesterday he expects to campaign on the basis of his long acquaintance with the district, and added, "During the last year when I attended board meetings I have found myself continuously voting with the minority on many issues."

HE SPECIFICALLY criticized the board decision last summer to close the school buildings to all after-school use following defeat of a tax rate referendum. The decision was made at the first meeting after the defeat by a vote of 5-2 with Poklacki and Harry Peterson voting against the action.

"I found myself agreeing with Harry Peterson that they shouldn't have taken that action in isolation and should have looked at the budget as a whole. I think the board has been too quick to respond in some cases," Domanico said.

The board later reversed its position on building closure when more funds became available when the Illinois Supreme Court restored personal property tax.

However, Domanico had praise for Paul Neuhauser and Harold Harvey, the two incumbent board members who have announced they will not seek reelection. "I feel we are going to feel the loss of Mr. Neuhauser and Mr. Harvey because they have contributed a lot to the board," he said.

Domanico has lived in Elk Grove Village for eight years. He has four children and is assistant regional sales marketing manager for General Instrument Corporation in Lincolnwood.

Filing of petitions for the board election will begin Feb. 23 at the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Board To Ask 39-Cent Tax Rate Increase bear the brunt of the first plan," said Frances Black, teacher at Fairview School. "Art is another thing for the classroom teacher to teach, and you are eliminating classroom teachers anyway. You expect more of us and give us less time to do it."

BEFORE DISCUSSING staffing, Hanson told the audience the board has reviewed all staffing proposals submitted. Citizens for Quality Education, a group of about 40 parents, last night presented the board with a petition endorsing their plan.

The MPEA presented the board with a plan that increases the number of current special teachers. Board member Peter Dudrow, chairman of the negotiating team, called the MPEA plan "irresponsible" in light of the current financial situation. Dist. 57 has been operating on a deficit budget for the past two years.

The 39-cent hike would not guarantee the board would operate in the red for the next several years, according to board members. "We broke this down and felt that to break even next year we would need about 26 cents," said Board Member Bob Novy. "But we asked how much we could go for and still have some surplus. Then we got into the psychology of this — should it be 39 or 40 cents."

Hold Cop For Wounding Ex-Wife, Killing Friend

A Franklin Park policeman was being held by Cook County Sheriff's Police yesterday after he allegedly shot and seriously wounded his ex-wife and then shot her male companion to death.

Criminal charges were pending yesterday against Patrolman Peter DiVenere, 38, of 3306 Lincoln St., Franklin Park, after he was arrested by sheriff's police in a trailer court in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

DiVenere allegedly shot his ex-wife,

Laurel, 23, twice, and then shot and killed her companion, Charles McConnell, 23, after he burst into her Hanover Park apartment about 3 a.m. yesterday. Mrs. DiVenere told police her ex-husband shot her twice with a .38 caliber revolver and then shot McConnell once in the back and once in the chest.

Mrs. DiVenere was in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday with gunshot wounds of the back, right arm and abdomen. McConnell, who lived in an apartment at the same address, was dead on arrival at the Cook County morgue.

HANOVER PARK police issued an all-points bulletin for DiVenere's arrest shortly after 3 a.m., when they were called to the apartment by an ambulance driver.

Less than four hours later sheriff's police arrested the suspect at his brother's trailer in the Oasis Mobile Home Court, 7500 N. Elmhurst Rd. DiVenere was arrested without resistance after his car was spotted outside his brother's trailer, police said.

DiVenere has been a member of the Franklin Park force for nine years.

Hanover Park police late yesterday afternoon said no charges had been filed yet, pending word from the state attorney's office.

Police Step Up Checks In Area Of McGuire's Pub

Mount Prospect police have stepped up their patrols and spot checks in the area of Butch McGuire's pub in Mount Prospect.

The pub, at 300 E. Rand Rd., is owned by the same McGuire who operates a Butch McGuire's on Chicago's near North Side. The Chicago property has been the object of a series of attacks in the last month.

Mount Prospect police said there have been no reported attempts on the local pub. They said the increased patrolling has been ordered to prevent incidents like those in Chicago.

McGuire's tavern at 20 W. Division St., Chicago, has been the target of three attacks. A fourth attack occurred on property McGuire owns nearby at 1213 N. Dearborn St.

Members of the Chicago police bomb and arson squad have confirmed that a Molotov cocktail or similar device was thrown at the 1213 N. Dearborn building on Jan. 17.

Two days before, the building housing McGuire's tavern sustained $10,000 damage in a fire believed to have been set by arsonists. That same building sustained $2,000 damage on its second floor Thursday after two men were seen spilling a suspected flammable liquid in the office area.

McGuire is currently in Europe. Friends and employees have told Chicago police they know of no reason why anyone would be trying to damage McGuire's property.

Ship Captain Release Eyed By Lindstrom

The Rev. Paul Lindstrom, pastor of the Church of Christian Liberty in Prospect Heights, announced Wednesday steps were being taken to secure the release of an American ship captain imprisoned in Cuba.

Lindstrom made the announcement on his return from Toronto, where he said he met with four members of the Canadian government and three "influential non-Canadian citizens" whom he would not identify.

Attempts are being made to free Capt. Jose Villa, an American citizen who was taken prisoner Nov. 15, 1971 after his freighter, "The Johnny Express," was fired on and seized by a Cuban gunboat, Lindstrom said.

He refused to specify what plans were made but he said they were similar to the steps taken to secure the 1970 release from Red China of Roman Catholic Bishop James Walsh, who was imprisoned in 1958.

Lindstrom said the U. S. State Department was doing nothing to free the American sea captain.

He accused President Nixon of "making our country look like the international 'chicken of the sea' by his personally demanding the release of the captain, giving Mrs. Villa a set of gold cufflinks to give her husband upon release and then allowing the captain to rot and perhaps die in a communist prison cell."

"I FOUND LITTLE concern for the plight of Villa in Washington," he said. "I guess it's because the incident involves only one American citizen."

He added there are about eight other crew members who are not U. S. citizens also being held. Lindstrom said he felt that if the captain is released, the others will be set free as well.

Pancakes Planned

Pancakes will be served by Boy Scout Troop 262 from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday at the Prospect Heights Community Church, 400 N. Elmhurst Rd.

Adult tickets are being sold for $1, and children's tickets are 50 cents.

Mrs. Stiller Seeks Post

Lillian Stiller, incumbent member of the Dist. 21 School Board, has told the Dist. 21 General Caucus she plans to run for reelection.

Mrs. Stiller joins two other incumbents, Mary Joan Reid and Jack Lane, in seeking the caucus nomination. Mrs. Reid and Lane announced their plans for reelection last week.

Joe Cieslewicz, chairman of the caucus, said eight or nine other individuals, aside from the incumbents, have come forward seeking caucus nomination to the election. However, he refused to name the other possible candidates.

"We cannot release the names of these individuals because our procedural rules prohibit it," said Cieslewicz.

The caucus nominating committee is currently screening applicants at half hour interviews. During the session the committee seeks the legal and general qualifications of the individual.

Following the interview the committee discusses the applicants' qualifications and reviews the entire interview. They then determine if the applicant should appear before the general caucus Tuesday night.

The general caucus will have a question-and-answer session with the nominees and elect those they will endorse for the April 8 school board election.

Cieslewicz said, "We will release the names of the individuals going before the general caucus Monday morning. The general public is invited to attend our Tuesday meeting and find out who we will endorse."

The meeting will be held in the Jack London School library at 8 p.m.

Township Youth Committee Names Rago As Director

by MARCIA KRAMER
Donald C. Rago, a youth worker in the Chicago area for four years, has been named executive director of the Palatine Township Youth Committee.

The township's board of auditors approved the appointment, effective Monday, at its meeting last night.

Rago, 32, succeeds Emerson E. Thomas, who died Nov. 9.

Rago said Thomas "was a good friend of mine and I know he did a great job here. It will be a challenge and privilege to follow him."

The youth committee serves residents throughout Palatine Township, including Palatine, Rolling Meadows and Inverness.

In addition, the committee oversees the operation of The Bridge, a youth services bureau which provides assistance to residents of those communities as well as Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Barrington.

THE BRIDGE was recently awarded a $24,000 grant from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, which set up the bureau last year as a pilot program in the state.

Rago has been on the staff of the Metropolitan YMCA of Chicago Metro Northwest Youth Outreach program since 1968, and has been its central unit director for two years.

Other activities include membership in the board of the North River Commission, task force of the Lutheran Welfare Service unit on mental health, the Metropolitan Chicago Youth Resource Center network council and the advisory board of St. Pascal's School.

Rago, a graduate of Roosevelt University, also served as a consultant on juvenile research for the Illinois Department of Mental Health in 1971.

HE WAS NOMINATED for the Palatine Township post by a five-member selection committee which also interviewed three other candidates. Fifteen persons applied for the position.

A resolution of appreciation to John Root, director of the Metro, and Charles McClellan, head of the Northwest YMCA District, for their assistance in narrowing the search was adopted by the township board last night.

Rago will remain a YMCA employee, eligible for benefits accorded YMCA workers. The township will reimburse the Metro for his salary.
Rago and his wife, Susan, and daughter, Angela, live in Oak Park.

Domanico Back In School Board Race

Albert Domanico is back in the race for the board of education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Domanico, of 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village, said yesterday he will be a candidate for election to the board in the April 8 elections. He was defeated last year by Erwin Poklacki in a race for the board.

"I'm tempted to say I'm running out of habit," Domanico said. He served on the board for 16 months during 1969 and 1970, but did not seek reelection in 1970 because he was expecting to be transferred out of the area.

He said yesterday he expects to campaign on the basis of his long acquaintance with the district, and added, "During the last year when I attended board meetings I have found myself continuously voting with the minority on many issues."

HE SPECIFICALLY criticized the board decision last summer to close the school buildings to all after-school use following defeat of a tax rate referendum. The decision was made at the first meeting after the defeat by a vote of 5-2 with Poklacki and Harry Peterson voting against the action.

"I found myself agreeing with Harry Peterson that they shouldn't have taken that action in isolation and should have looked at the budget as a whole. I think the board has been too quick to respond in some cases," Domanico said.

The board later reversed its position on building closure when more funds became available when the Illinois Supreme Court restored personal property tax.

However, Domanico had praise for Paul Neuhouser and Harold Harvey, the two incumbent board members who have announced they will not seek reelection. "I feel we are going to feel the loss of Mr. Neuhouser and Mr. Harvey because they have contributed a lot to the board," he said.

Domanico has lived in Elk Grove Village for eight years. He has four children and is assistant regional sales marketing manager for General Instrument Corporation in Lincolnwood.

Filing of petitions for the board election will begin Feb. 23 at the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Hold Cop For Wounding Ex-Wife, Killing Friend

A Franklin Park policeman was being held by Cook County Sheriff's Police yesterday after he allegedly shot and seriously wounded his ex-wife and then shot her male companion to death.

Criminal charges were pending yesterday against Patrolman Peter DiVenere, 38, of 3306 Lincoln St., Franklin Park, after he was arrested by sheriff's police in a trailer court in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

DiVenere allegedly shot his ex-wife, Laurel, 23, twice, and then shot and killed her companion, Charles McConnell, 23, after he burst into her Hanover Park apartment about 3 a.m. yesterday. Mrs. DiVenere told police her ex-husband shot her twice with a .38 caliber revolver and then shot McConnell once in the back and once in the chest.

Mrs. DiVenere was in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday with gunshot wounds of the back, right arm and abdomen. McConnell, who lived in an apartment at the same address, was dead on arrival at the Cook County morgue.

HANOVER PARK police issued an all-points bulletin for DiVenere's arrest shortly after 3 a.m., when they were called to the apartment by an ambulance driver.

Less than four hours later sheriff's police arrested the suspect at his brother's trailer in the Oasis Mobile Home Court, 7500 N. Elmhurst Rd. DiVenere was arrested without resistance after his car was spotted outside his brother's trailer, police said.

DiVenere has been a member of the Franklin Park force for nine years.

Hanover Park police late yesterday afternoon said no charges had been filed yet, pending word from the state attorney's office.

Krinsky To Run For Reelection

"I feel I can do a good job on the school board and I enjoy the job," said Alan Krinsky, 2027 Roschill Dr., Arlington Heights, in announcing his candidacy for reelection to the Prospect Heights Dist. 23 School Board.

Krinsky, who has lived in the district 5 1/2 years, will complete one three-year term on the board in April.

So far Krinsky is the only announced contender and it's still uncertain whether there will be a caucus to endorse candidates for three seats on the board up for election April 8.

Frank McClung, who was selected to head the caucus by the group last year, said Wednesday letters were being sent to presidents of organizations represented last year to see if there is an interest in another caucus.

MEL LACE, board president, said he would like to see a caucus in action this year: "The caucus is a very valuable tool, especially for a school district that comprises so many different areas."

Supt. Edward Grodsky said Wednesday no petitions had been picked up. The first day for filing petitions is Feb. 23. Candidates will have until March 17 to file.

Board members John Stull and Robert LeForge, whose terms also expire, have indicated they are considering running for another term but have not come to a decision.

Others contemplating running for the school board include Bruce Wallace, 1211 N. Highland, and Louis Herdegen, 204 Lonsdale, both of Prospect Heights.

Extend Library Hours

Despite the snowstorm last Sunday, 20 people were waiting outside the Arlington Heights Memorial Library for the doors to open at 1 p.m., to add an hour to their study or reading time.

New Sunday hours at the library are 1 to 5 p.m., they were previously 2 to 5 p.m. The extra hour is only experimental, and subject to review in May.

By adding the extra Sunday hour, the Arlington Heights Library increases their hours open per week to 77, which is four hours more than any other library in the state.

Youth Unit Representatives Sworn-In

Six high school students from Arlington Heights were sworn in by the Arlington Heights board of trustees Monday as student representatives to the Youth Council.

The students spend a year on the committee, then others are elected or appointed to take their place from area high schools.

Sworn in were Susan Ashbrook from Prospect High School, Pete Casey from Forest View High School, Dennis Fitzpatrick from Hersey High School, Steve O'Neill from St. Viator High School, Scott Staines from Arlington High School and Thomas Sulla from Rolling Meadows High School.

Two other Youth Council members, Richard Hammerl and Thomas Martin were also officially sworn in, which brings the total number of members on the council to seven, not including the student representatives.

"We have one space open, but aren't actively searching for anyone," said Jack Martin, chairman of the council. "We want someone who's really interested in working on the council, not just someone who's roped into it."

Wheeling Wins 'Arlington' Fight

Wheeling officials have won in their battle to have a local developer stop referring to his Wheeling development as being in "the Arlington Heights area."

The village received a letter from Lew Sanders, a public relations consultant who has been writing press releases and advertising for the Lakeside Villas development.

Sanders apologized for the error and said in the future he would refer to the project as being "in the Wheeling area."

The townhouse project, being built on Hintz Road near Buffalo Grove Road, is within the Wheeling Village boundaries. Zale Construction Co. is building the development.

Wheeling officials had complained at recent meetings about the use of the Arlington Heights name on the Wheeling development.

An official at the public relations firm for the project told the Herald several months ago they chose to describe the development as being "in the Arlington Heights area" because "it sounds good."

Parent-Teacher League To Meet

The Parent-Teacher League of St. Peter Lutheran School in Arlington Heights is sponsoring a fun fair Saturday at the school cafeteria, 111 W. Olive. The event is from 1 to 4 p.m. featuring games and prizes.

Women's Softball League Is Forming

Women who are interested in playing softball in Arlington Heights are welcome to join the Arlington Heights Park District women's 16-inch softball league which is now forming.

The league would consist of seven teams, and play on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. A $90 entry fee per team would include umpires, bases and awards.

Women who wish to sign up to be on a team should call Richard Sedowski at Olympic Park, 253-0820.

Hersey High School Music Concert Set

The Hersey High School band music department will present its winter concert at 8 p.m. Sunday in the school auditorium, 1900 E. Thomas Rd., Arlington Heights.

The stage band, concert band and symphonic winds will perform under the direction of Donald Caneva and Robert Rogers.

Mark McDunn, composer and conductor, and drummer Bobby Christian, will appear with the symphonic winds and the stage band. Ernest Caneva, Caneva's father and band director at Lockport High School in Will County, will be a guest conductor.

Tickets may be purchased at $1 each the night of the performance.

Olympic Pool Use At 5-Month High

Over 3,000 people swam at Arlington Heights Park District's Olympic Pool during January, which is the highest total for the past five months.

Ronald Dodd, superintendent of recreation, attributes the rise in attendance to the increased popularity of adult nights, and the recent promotion of "two swims for the price of one" nights. The one-time free passes to scouts and adult clubs has also helped increase the popularity of the pool, he said.

Total receipts from Olympic pool last month were $498.25. December's total was $284.00.

Dist. 25 Caucus Slates Nicholas Raino, Richard Soby

Nicholas J. Raino and Richard A. Soby were slated last night by the School District 25 caucus nominating committee for election in April to the two positions to be open on the school board.

Raino, a former teacher at Arlington High School, is vice president of Financial Advertising, Chicago. He has lived in the district 3½ years, and has three children.

Soby, a self-employed decorating contractor, has been active in the Olive PTA and has lived in the district for 11 years.

Six ballots were needed to slate the pair. Raino was slated on the third ballot and Soby on the sixth.

Delegates to the caucus voted for each of their candidates separately on paper ballots. Both candidates received a majority of votes before being slated.

OUT OF 76 POSSIBLE voting delegates to the nominating caucus, only 63 were present at the meeting.

Before the balloting began, each of the eight candidates had five minutes to discuss his qualifications.

Raino, presently in Scottsdale, Ariz., at a business convention, talked to delegates via videotape. A videotape was also used three years ago but the candidate was not slated.

During his videotape presentation, Raino emphasized that business trips would be few and far between so that he would have time to serve on the board. He also stressed his educational and financial background.

"Besides giving the board the advantage of my educational background, I have given close scrutiny to cost planning and budgets in my present job," Raino said, "which I think could be of help to the board also."

Soby, who was a delegate to the caucus this year before being nominated as a possible candidate, stressed that the school board must become involved with the community.

MRS. MARGARET FORD, nurse at Arlington High School checks the throat of Cathy Henze as one of many duties she performs daily. About 20 students visit her office each day with some ailment or bruise.

Housing Study Committee Aiming Toward Deadline

Aiming toward a March 6 completion deadline, the Arlington Heights low and moderate-income housing study committee Tuesday night worked through nearly 20 pages of its prospective 40-page final report.

During its three hour meeting, the committee read carefully through a revised draft of a section of the report that attempts to supply objective answers to frequently-voiced opinions on both sides of the controversial issue.

The report answers questions on the effect low and moderate-income housing might have on taxes, individual incentive, crime, property values and other domestic conditions.

Also reviewed Tuesday night was a section dealing with persons now living within Arlington Heights who may have a need for low and moderate-income housing.

THE REPORT cites the elderly, low-salaried service employees, low-income industrial workers, Mexican-American nursery and truck farmers, young single persons and newly marrieds as persons likely to be eligible for low and moderate-income housing in Arlington Heights. Last October the committee agreed on the need for lower income housing in the village and set preliminary requirements at 50 units of low-income housing and 150 to 200 units of moderate-income housing.

The conclusions were based on the testimony of numerous witnesses and a residential survey conducted by the village planning staff.

Committee member Dave Patterson Tuesday night brought up the question of including the need for a housing code, now being prepared by the village administration, in the report.

He said he felt such a code would have to be adopted before any low or moderate-income housing is built in the village and he asked the committee to consider including such a recommendation at its next meeting.

The next meeting of the low and moderate-income housing committee will be 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Jeff Johnson, James Wright and Doug Kalahar earned their citizen awards and Eddie Hayman, Lee Schmidt, Lucas Orals, Andy Orals, Mike Binder, John Barnes, Randy Johnson, Chris Neyfeldt and Jeff Bourn received gold and silver arrows.

Cub Carnival on Feb. 23 will be the next pack activity.

No Fibs Convince This School Nurse

by CINDY TEW

Most students at Arlington High School know better than to go to Margaret Ford, school nurse, just because they don't feel like going to a class.

"They know I give them the third degree," Mrs. Ford said. "Every time a student comes in here, I know he wants something, and I make it my business to find out exactly what it is."

Most students also know that Mrs. Ford isn't the person to go to for an aspirin or cold pill.

"A nurse cannot diagnose or prescribe medications, it's part of the oath of our profession," Mrs. Ford said. "The only medications I give out are ones doctors have prescribed and students can't carry around, like in the case of an asthmatic."

About 20 students visit the nurse's office each day except during the recent rash of flu cases when about 35 students per day came to the nurse.

Students who have had an accident in school or have become sick during the day know what pains Mrs. Ford takes to make sure they're taken care of properly.

Recently a boy injured his arm during a gym class, and was carried to the nurses office. Mrs. Ford put the arm in a sling and called an ambulance to take the boy to the hospital of the doctor's choice.

"By the pale look of the boy and the pain, it was apparently a broken arm," Mrs. Ford said. She was right.

In the case of sickness, Mrs. Ford feels her responsibility toward the students very strongly. No one goes home without the parent's knowledge, is her motto.

"If a student is ill, and there's no one home, they're much better off staying with me than going to an empty house," she said. "I couldn't live with myself if something happened to a student on the way home or at home in the absence of a parent."

The nurse's quarters includes two resting rooms, one for boys and one for girls.

Occasionally students get upset with Mrs. Ford's protectiveness and insist they are old enough to take care of themselves. According to Mrs. Ford, however, they are her responsibility if she lets them out of the building without parental consent.

Most of the nurse's work revolves around physical education courses, since most accidents in the school happen in gym. Mrs. Ford also schedules physical education classes for students who can't take certain courses because of allergies and injuries.

"I have a very close working relation with the physical education department in working out schedules for students," Mrs. Ford said. "There are only about 12 students in the entire school who can't take any gym at all."

During the past few summers Mrs. Ford has been the nurse on student tours, and has traveled to Mexico, Spain and France. This spring she plans to go to Italy with a student group.

"Some students think it's silly to have a nurse along on a student tour," she said. "While we were in France, however, several students changed their mind when 32 out of the group of 75 got food poisoning."

Mrs. Ford knew what to do for them—let them empty their stomachs, then go to bed with some medication prescribed by a doctor. A doctor prescribed certain medicines to be used in various situations, including food poisoning, before the trip started.

Mrs. Ford lives in Des Plaines with her husband Robert, and two daughters. Her two sons are college students and her oldest daughter is a nurse in Columbus. Robert Ford works for the department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"We're a family dedicated to health," Mrs. Ford said.

Bank Bandits Lurked 4 Hours

by CRAIG GAARE

Police theorized Wednesday that the two men who robbed the Bank of Buffalo Grove and escaped with more than $100,000 were in the bank undetected for more than four hours before forcing a teller to open the vault after banking hours Tuesday evening.

George Miller, the president of the bank, said yesterday between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken, but the exact amount still is not known.

It is possible that the two men, described by witnesses as under 25 years of age and wearing long hair, could have been familiar to bank employees and thus would not have been considered suspicious.

However Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said that theory is only speculation and added, "it is not necessarily that difficult to get downstairs," to hide near the vault where the robbery occurred.

Smith also said it is only speculation whether the robbery was carried out by local persons or if professionals were involved.

BUT HE DID say, "I have the feeling it is someone we know."

Police are compiling a list of possible suspects and are "talking to as many witnesses as possible," according to Smith.

Meanwhile, the two suspects, who wore ski masks and brandished small caliber revolvers in the robbery, are still at large and are being sought by local and state police and federal agents.

Smith said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has assigned 15 agents to the case. He met with state police detectives for about an hour Wednesday morning to discuss the case with them.

After the meeting, Smith told the Herald most of the information and leads are sketchy and he is meeting with state and federal agents to "correlate our information so there is no duplication."

ACCORDING to the police account of the robbery, the suspects entered the bank sometime before 2 p.m. when the bank closes all but the drive-up windows. When the robbery took place, shortly before 6:30 p.m., there were four persons in the bank — three tellers and one employee working downstairs.

Police believe the robbers first handcuffed the employee in the basement and then waited for each teller to bring down the day's receipts from the cash drawers. The tellers normally come separately because they finish totaling their

by CINDY TEW

The Arlington Heights Cultural Commission came out of mothballs Monday night to wrestle with the economic problems of building what Commission Chairman Joe Weber termed "an impossible dream."

The commission needs money to prepare a feasibility study and model of their ultimate goal — a cultural center. After a grant was denied last year, the commission went into hibernation.

Step one in the commission's plan is to ask the board of trustees to grant $25,000 for a plan that can be shown to prospective contributors. The denial of a $10,000 grant by the board 10 months ago ended the commission's year and a half of work with a touch of bitterness.

"Nothing's really changed, except that the trustees aren't in the middle of a campaign," said Sidney Rosenfeld, secretary of the commission.

Along with the request for $10,000, the commission presented the board with a 100-plus page report on the commission's activities and recommendations. After the presentation, the consensus of the commission was that the request for $10,000 would pass unanimously. They were bitterly disappointed.

Going to the board now for $25,000, even over a two or three-year period, is like giving the trustees an ultimatum — either they give the commission the money or the members will take their report and go home.

On the other hand, what can the commission do without some financial backing? And if the village board won't back it, what good is an Arlington Heights Cultural Commission?

Weber might be on the right track when he suggested that the commission be a standing committee, just in case someone dies and leaves money for a cultural center. It worked in Milwaukee and Peoria.

Should the $25,000 be granted, however, there are many tangents the commission could take off on. Suggestions Monday night were to:

—Build a smaller center, then go to businesses and homes for contributions.

—Try to pass a referendum.

—Try for a regionalization of the commission for a broader tax base.

—Have the plans drawn up, then wait until someone comes up with a huge contribution.

The first alternative seemed to be the only viable one to several commission members Monday night. Others questioned if funds could be raised even for a smaller facility at the present time.

A referendum approach to the problem seems to be off in left field since the trend of referendums these days is to go down in defeat.

The idea of regionalization would provide a broader tax base, but would have to be set up by the state legislature, since there is no provision for a regional cultural commission in the state constitution. On the other hand, who would support a cultural center based in downtown Arlington Heights besides village residents?

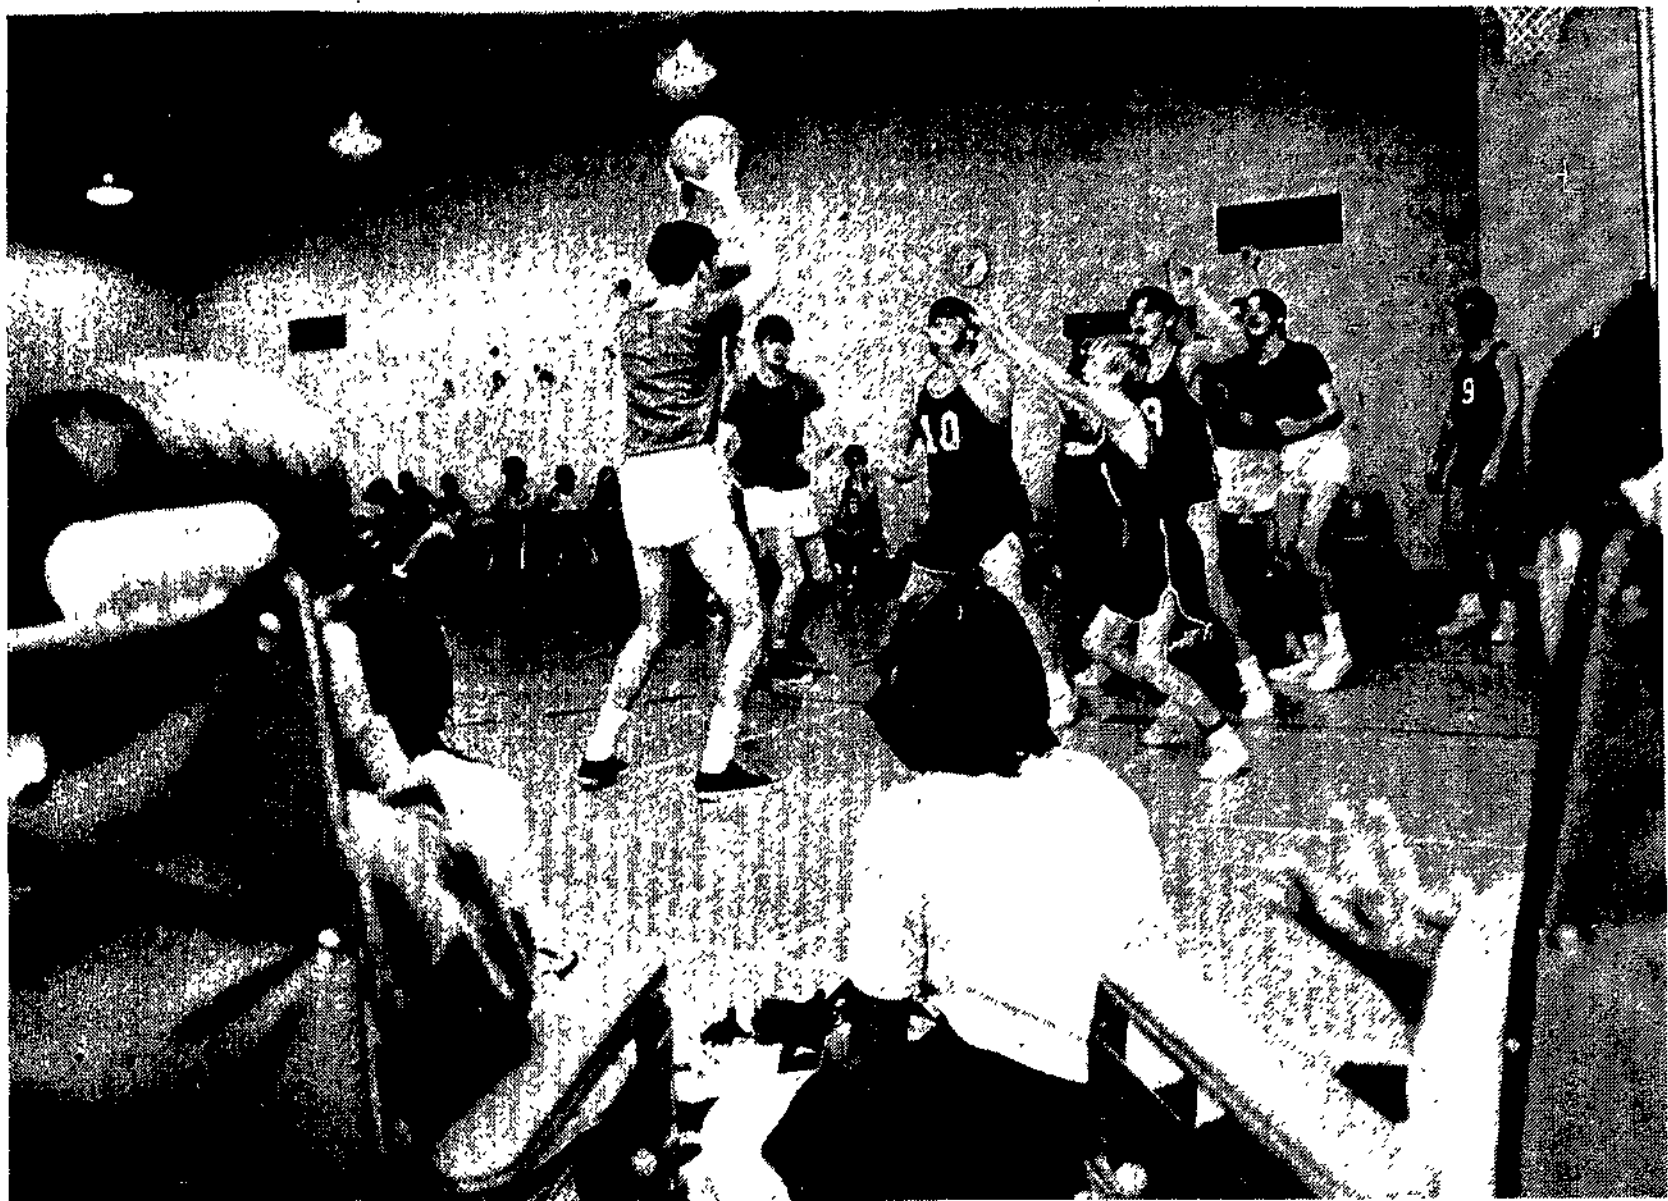

The idea of drawing up plans, then waiting for a pot of gold may be a waste of planning time since plans go out of date rapidly. If the commission decides to wait for a contribution, they may as well do it without investing $25,000 at the present time.

Should the trustees turn down the $25,000 request, which would eliminate the commission for all practical purposes, there is still hope for a theater in Arlington Heights.

Robert Hawley, cultural commission member, went to the Arlington Heights Park District last night to discuss the possibility of a theater on park property, financed by the Village Theater, Inc., of which Hawley is president.

Plans for this type of facility have been discussed in the past, and have been received enthusiastically by the park district. Though Hawley voted along with other cultural commission members Monday night to go to the board to request $25,000 he wants to make sure the communications with the park district aren't cut off — just in case.

Should the Cultural Commission collapse, the one white elephant that will remain is the square block of land bounded by Dunton and rail avenues and St. James and Fremont streets. The land was acquired by the village in Jan. 1970 for a cultural center. It is now a parking lot.

A LITTLE CITY player looks for an open teammate in yesterday's game at the Samuel Kirk Developmental Training Center in Palatine. Handicapped youths from both schools are competing in a newly-formed Northwest Athletic Association League and will compete in this spring's special Olympic games for the handicapped.

by DOUG RAY

For a few hours yesterday, they were no different than anyone else.

The boys raced up and down the gym floor as the coaches yelled "defense, defense... pass the ball." And the fans applauded their efforts as vigorously as if it were a professional basketball game.

For the teachers and parents of the players, the outcome of the game wasn't as important as the opportunity the youths were getting to participate.

The players are mentally handicapped and are learning a competitive spirit that only a few years ago seemed impossible to teach because few were willing to take the time.

The boys of both the Samuel Kirk Center and Little City in Palatine were being cheered by more than 150 spectators. "Go Kirk Go" boomed through the gym of the host team. Pennants lined the walls of the basketball court.

"It has a great unifying effect on the students," said Ron Sterrett, principal of Kirk Center. "They are beginning to feel a school spirit."

The inter-school competition began this year with the formation of the Northwest Athletic Association League. Kirk Center, Little City, Stratford Center in Highland Park and Malloy Center in Morton Grove are charter members in the conference which may expand to 10 teams next year.

"Quite frankly we didn't think we would ever be able to do it," Sterrett said. "But now look at it," he added pointing to the enthusiastic students, faculty and parents.

Kirk had its own cheerleaders dressed in green and white uniforms made by the wife of one of the teachers at the school. The student body voted on the school colors and the team mascot, the Cubs.

Basketball practice is held every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at Kirk Center by coach Sam Burgdorff. The players learn discipline, but, more importantly the will to win, according to the coach.

Later this year, the teams in the newly-formed conference plan to compete in volleyball and a track and field meet. A basketball tournament is also being scheduled and at least one of the teams will vie in the Handicapped Olympics in May sponsored by the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. Foundation.

After yesterday's game, which ended 28-17 in favor of Little City, the players shook hands as fans applauded. The handicapped children were learning things that their brothers and sisters have always known. There were no losers.

Form Committee On Zunker Land

The Arlington Heights Village Board has created a special four-member committee to investigate future development of the so-called Zunker property at 1105 W. Rand Rd.

The motion to create the committee was approved Monday night after an earlier motion to deny rezoning of the property was voted down.

William J. Moore, attorney for the property's owner, Clyde Zunker, told the trustees the Zunker land could be combined with two lots lying directly south along Greenwood Court for development as a boat storage area.

He said this development plan would allow Zunker to use a now vacant building which sits on the site.

In creating the special committee, which will consist of Trustees Ralph Clabour, James T. Ryan, Alice Harms and Frank Palmatier, the board concurred with a request by Moore that the village assist in the development of the land along Rand Road.

"DON'T JUST TURN us down and send us packing, but give us some guidance," Moore told the board.

The request for rezoning of the property from single-family to general business use was unanimously denied by the plan commission Jan. 26.

The plan commission went through several continued hearings on the property before voting to recommend denial of the rezoning petition.

The abandoned building which now sits on the Zunker land is the subject of a legal action brought by the village which is seeking to have the structure torn down.

The building was begun, allegedly without a building permit, when the property lay outside Arlington Heights municipal boundaries in unincorporated Cook County. It has been called an eyesore by some neighboring residents who live along Greenwood Court.

The committee said it would meet with these residents as well as Zunker and the owners of neighboring properties to come up with a unified development plan for the area.

In other action, the trustees approved a local $10 tax on the sale of new automobiles within Arlington Heights designed to preempt an identical tax put into effect Jan. 1 by the Cook County Board.

Attorney Moore told the board that he had been asked to represent the nine new car dealers now located in Arlington Heights and convey their concerns about the tax.

MOORE SAID THE dealers were concerned because the village, in passing the preemptive ordinance, was "plowing a new furrow with their money."

He added the dealers faced a "real dilemma" on whether to pay the tax money to the county or to the village.

Village Pres. Jack Walsh said the village would take on full responsibility for collecting the tax.

The intent of the car sales tax is not to establish a new tax, Walsh said, but to redirect money which Arlington Heights car dealers are now paying to the county back to the village.

The preemption move is possible under home rule provisions of the new state constitution, according to Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel.

The Palatine Village Board is expected to pass a similar preemption tax at its next regular meeting Monday night. The Evanston City Council approved the measure last week.

Bank Money Was Insured

The president of the Bank of Buffalo Grove said yesterday the money taken in Tuesday's armed robbery will not result in any loss to persons who have accounts with the bank.

"We're completely covered," George Miller said yesterday following the Tuesday night robbery in which between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken at gunpoint from four bank employees after closing hours.

Miller said the bank is protected by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and an additional policy the bank has with a private insurance company.

He said the bank will have the money from the insurance companies by next Tuesday.

THE BANK, located at the corner of Buffalo Grove and Dundee roads, was chartered in July, 1968 and opened about a year later in August, 1969.

The bank opened with holdings worth $750,000. The bank has grown steadily over the last two years and listed assets totaling $7,876,591 as of Sept. 30, 1971.

The Village of Buffalo Grove has most of its money in the bank and the park district invested the proceeds from its $1,250,000 bond issue with the bank.

receipts at different times, Smith said.

As each teller came down, the robbers handcuffed them and placed the tellers out of view of the next employee coming down the stairs. After all the employees were in the basement, the robbers forced one teller to open the vault at gunpoint.

The suspects fled on foot out the west door of the bank carrying the money in a green duffel bag.

Smith said he did not know the exact amount that was taken.

SMITH SAID NO shots were fired and no one was injured. The only physical violence consisted of the tellers being handcuffed.

The robbers narrowly missed being apprehended by village police, who as a normal security measure, patrol the bank parking lot at closing time. Patrolman Gary Wencelbach was in a police squad in the parking lot at 6:12 p.m., according to the police radio log. He stayed in the lot approximately six minutes. He told the Herald he did not observe anything suspicious, so he resumed his normal patrol at 6:18.

At 6:20, the robbery was reported.

Reporter Is On Top Of The News — Witness To Robbery

EDITOR'S NOTE: Herald reporter Vicki Hamende, always on top of the news, was a little closer to it last night than she cares to be. She was an eyewitness to an armed robbery and a participant in the drama. Her personal account follows.

by VICKI HAMENDE
I was standing at the counter of the Cumberland Pharmacy in Des Plaines, waiting for my prescription to be filled and wondering how awful the medicine would taste, when a young man walked in and started pacing in the aisle next to me.

Being a young woman, I noticed him right away, but decided not to give him a second glance because he was: A — too short for me; — all covered up with a ski mask, long coat and bell-bottoms; and C — obviously a nervous wreck, judging from his rapid movements.

A young girl and her father walked into the pharmacy and I looked at them for awhile. Still waiting for my prescription, I started fidgeting with some of the goodies on the counter.

The next thing I knew, there was a long, shiny knife pointed at my stomach. Holding the knife was the nervous young man.

"Just do what I say and you won't be hurt," he said. Then he herded me and the father and daughter at knife-point behind the counter and told us to go down into the basement through a nearby door.

I LITERALLY ran down the stairs, arriving long before my fellow hostages. The glint of the long knife and the sensation of its point left on my coat were still vivid in my mind. The three of us huddled at the bottom of the stairs. I didn't feel afraid, only stunned. I somehow trusted that the nervous young man wouldn't hurt us, but for a moment I wasn't sure.

"Stay right there," he said. "I won't hurt you." I said "Okay," nudged my fellow hostages, "Say OK," I said and they did.

There we stood, or rather froze. Thoughts of gangster movies raced through my mind.

"This guy really needs it," the father said. I clutched my purse, hoping the robber wouldn't take the

Robber Got $60, Drugs

A knife-wielding bandit last night terrorized several customers including a Herald reporter at a north side Des Plaines pharmacy before escaping with $60 in cash and an unknown quantity of narcotics and other drugs.

According to Des Plaines police, the robber walked into Cumberland Pharmacy, 87 N. Broadway, about 6:30 p.m. and herded several customers, including reporter Vicki Hamende, into the drug store basement at knife-point. The man, whose face was hidden by a ski mask, then demanded cash and several specific kinds of drugs from pharmacist Frank Almaier.

Almaier told police he filled a green cloth bag with $60 and provided the thief with about 20 bottles of several drugs, including morphine, seconal and nembutal, while the man threatened him with a long knife. During the course of the robbery, several customers walked into the store and were also threatened and forced into the basement by the bandit.

The man, described as in his early 20's and about five feet nine inches tall, then forced Almaier into the basement, warned the customers not to come upstairs and left. The customers rushed upstairs and saw the bandit and an accomplice driving east on Golf Road in a dark-colored 1963 or 1964 Chevrolet, according to the police report.

time to rob me. I knew I had only 89 cents in change but I was afraid that would make him angry enough to poke me with his knife.

We could hear him talking to the pharmacist, asking for the money in the cash register and various kinds of drugs. He came to the top of the stairs several times to check on us. "Just stay there, stay there," he ordered. "Ok, Ok," I said.

I WAS PERFECTLY content to do so but not my fellow hostages. "See that shovel along the wall — I bet I could bust him with that," the father said. "I could help you, Dad," the daughter said. "Let's don't get carried away," I said. "Let's don't try to get hurt," I was really starting to panic.

The daughter started fiddling with the light switch, perhaps hoping to trigger an alarm or cause a blackout. I panicked again. She suggested tapping on the pipes to signal people in the medical center next door. "One tap and we're all goners," I said.

The robber flashed his head through the door again and temporarily quieted my adventurous companions. All of a sudden he herded a few more persons down the stairs. I felt a little safer. Then he pushed the pharmacist in and slammed the door shut from the outside and I waited for an explosion that never came.

Realizing that the robbery had been completed, we rushed up the stairs, poked our heads through the door and managed to catch a glimpse of a car pulling away. The pharmacist immediately called the police while we hostages stood around comparing thoughts.

Police and detectives arrived, witness reports were filled out and details of the event grew taller and taller as people gathered to hear our personal accounts.

I turned to the pharmacist. "Has this ever happened before?" I asked him. "Never, not in more than 20 years," he said. I started to leave. "Oh, how about that prescription," I said, "and add a few tranquilizers."

Stand On Housing Endangers Future Grants From HUD

by BOB CASEY
Des Plaines officials apparently have jeopardized any future grants to the city from the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) by refusing to look at low-income housing needs here.

The city's current HUD-funded project, an apartment building for low-income senior citizens, has been approved by the federal agency and is in the development stage, an aide to HUD Area Director John Waner said yesterday.

However, the aide told the Herald, any additional applications won't be looked on favorably because of the city's decision not to consider housing needs of low-income families.

The city council Monday night, in adopting a resolution setting up a special housing commission, defeated a move asking the commission to study housing needs, in effect prohibiting it from doing so.

Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd), who led the opposition to an amendment calling for the inquiry into housing needs, said the question should not be examined because of the "overwhelming opposition" of Des Plaines residents to low-income housing.

"We would expect that Des Plaines' next application would be for family housing. The elderly housing is going through. It's being processed, the site has been approved and . . . they're home free," the HUD aide said.

However, the aide said, "if they apply for something else, it won't be looked upon favorably because once again, we have limited funds and we want to put all of it to its best use. Its best use would be to provide housing opportunities for all people."

The city council's action apparently has endangered its chances of getting any more elderly housing projects approved by the federal government.

The city originally intended to seek funds for a 250-unit elderly apartment building after determining that a sizable demand exists here for such a facility.

Because of the shortage of HUD funds, the request was trimmed to 125 units but city officials mentioned at the time that they might seek additional elderly housing funds from HUD in the future.

If the city does come back to HUD with a request, the aide said, "our reaction would probably be to ask some questions about what the city has done to fulfill some of its other needs and in what way has the city sought to open up housing opportunities for everyone, not just the elderly."

"If they can't answer affirmatively to that, we would be more willing to spend our money in a city where they have answered affirmatively," the aide said.

"For instance, if a community is both fulfilling the needs of low-income families and would like to fulfill the housing needs for the elderly, that we would look upon more favorably," said the aide.

A spokesman for the Concerned Metropolitan Citizens Committee (CMCC), which originally asked the city to adopt measures encouraging development of new low-income housing, this week accused Sherwood of "demagoguery" for his role in the housing study amendment's defeat.

Sherwood's health and welfare committee held a hearing in November on the CMCC measures. The council later followed the panel's recommendation and rejected the proposals.

The CMCC spokesman, Rev. John Petersen, has also charged that the council's attitude toward housing for low-income families is endangering the already-approved elderly housing project. That contention apparently was refuted yesterday when the HUD aide said the project is "home free."

FOR YEARS, CHILDREN have been bused to the Des Plaines Christian School from the Northwest suburbs and the West Side of Chicago. The parents of the 50 black and white students who attend the school at 1485 Whitcomb Ave. have found that a long bus trip is a small price to pay for a Christian education for their children. And the students have found they can learn and pray together and can even make jokes about their differences in skin color.

School Here Proves Busing Works

by VICKI HAMENDE
There is a school in Des Plaines that has been proving for years that racial integration and busing can work.

It has an enrollment of about 50 students in kindergarten through eighth grade. Sixty per cent are black, 40 per cent are white and 94 per cent are bused.

Most of the students are bused 52 miles round trip daily from the Lawndale and Garfield neighborhoods on the West Side of Chicago. Others are bused from throughout the Northwest suburbs as far west as Hoffman Estates.

They all come to the little Des Plaines Christian School, 1485 Whitcomb Ave., a private school run by a board of directors elected from among their parents.

THEY ARE THE children of parents who practice the Christian Reformed religion or of parents who are members of other "Bible-believing" churches, according to Mark Van Gilst, school principal.

They are the children of parents who believe in the doctrine that it is the duty of parents, not the state or church, to train their children, Van Gilst said.

For the white children, the Des Plaines Christian School is the closest Christian school to their homes. In addition to paying $500 a year for tuition, their parents also pay $50 a year to have them bused to Des Plaines. Some of the parents drive the buses.

For the black children, the Des Plaines Christian School is the closest Christian school to their homes that they have been allowed to enter.

Timothy Christian School in Cicero only a few miles from Lawndale, has refused to let black students in since they first requested admission in 1965. The school was recently sold to the City of Cicero and will operate as a public school beginning this fall. The black children from Lawndale and Garfield will continue to be bused to Des Plaines for their Christian education.

To pay the tuition for the black children to come to Des Plaines, their parents pledge as much money as they can afford. The rest comes from fund-raising events sponsored by the Christian education committee of the Lawndale and Gar-

Data Processing Eyed—Hint NEC Withdrawal

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school officials will look into alternate ways to get data processing services in preparation for a possible withdrawal from the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC).

The district is now buying data processing services through a cooperative run by NEC, an organization of 10 Northwest suburban school districts. Dist. 59 has in the past been highly critical of NEC.

Members of the board of education agreed Tuesday night to look into private sources during the next few weeks for the data processing service which provides payroll and student records. The district wants to see if the services would be cheaper than continuing them through NEC.

NEC is now discussing whether to continue buying computer services from Harper College or to purchase its own computer. A special meeting of the governing board will be held Saturday to recommend action on one of the two alternatives.

BOARD MEMBER Judith Zanca said, "I see advantages to the co-op, but I'd like to rid ourselves of some of the distasteful parts of NEC."

Other board members agreed they would be favorable to withdrawing from the co-op if services elsewhere would be less expensive. This year data processing services from the co-op cost the district about $23,000, according to Asst. Supt. Arthur Perry.

In addition, Supt. James Erviti told the board it may now be possible for the district to withdraw from NEC while remaining a member of the data processing co-op, something that has not been possible in the past.

Recently the NEC governing board agreed to allow districts outside of NEC to join the co-op without becoming a member of the NEC board. The action came after Des Plaines Dist. 62 asked if it could join the co-op. Dist. 62 has not yet decided to join.

"AN IMPORTANT question is how serious they are about that action," Erviti said. "I don't know if they realized that because of what they did, one district could pull out of NEC and still stay in the co-op."

Board Member Sharrie Hildebrandt, the Dist. 59 representative on the NEC governing board, said NEC did understand that possibility because "I told them it was possible."

Board Pres. Harold Harvey agreed with that idea, saying, "If we join the data processing co-op without being a member of NEC, it would make more sense than belonging to NEC and getting involved with its other problems."

He added that the district could then compare the costs of outside data processing service with the cost of data processing from the co-op without figuring in NEC administrative overhead. This year, in addition to the $23,000 for data processing, the district is paying $1,000 plus 41 cents per student for the administrative costs of NEC.

HARVEY SAID the district could make a decision on whether to remain in NEC, withdraw from NEC and buy services from the co-op, or buy services from outside sources once cost figures for all alternatives are in.

Currently eight districts belong to the data processing co-op. NEC members High School Dist. 211 and Arlington Heights Dist. 25 do not belong to the co-op.

'Safe' Burglars Hit At West School Here

Burglars broke into the West School, 1021 Thacker St. in Des Plaines, sometime Sunday night and removed an undetermined amount of cash and other items from an office safe.

Police said the thieves entered the school through a basement window and broke a window in a door to enter the office. They wheeled the safe to basement stairwell and pushed it down the stairs into the basement, police said.

The thieves then apparently pried open the safe with tools taken from a shop located in the basement, police said.

Dorothy Oliver

I'm a "new leaver." Every two months or so I decide it's time to turn over a new leaf and create this wonderful self.

This month's new leaf has lasted since last month when it started around Jan. 18. Kind of a Jan. 18th Day resolution.

Besides being kind and adorable, sincere and hardworking my new leaf tenets include reincarnating that long lost physical fitness.

After my first son was born I became a faithful watcher of a 45-year-old, perfectly proportioned mother of six known as Gloria. Gloria conducted a half-hour, morning exercise session five days a week and smiled, gabbed and encouraged her way through healthful calisthenics.

GLORIA COULD have easily passed for 30 and her body would put many 18-year-olds to shame. I set my goals and struggled through a year and a half of exercises before quitting.

The whole trick to exercising is knowing what to do to cure what bulge and how often to do it. I can thank Gloria for my knowledge. My 12 exercises are aimed at 12 separate bulges and I'm doing them daily.

If you exercise every day you take off inches. If you exercise every other day you build muscles. Or at least I think that's how it goes. At least I hope that's how it goes.

It's also very beneficial to use books while exercising. I used to do one where you laid on your back on the floor with a two-pound book in each hand — arms out even with your shoulders. Step one was to bring your arms up straight over your head; step two, you brought them back down to the floor but over your head; step three, back up and step four, back to normal position.

I TRIED THAT again this time but the cat kept jumping on the book on the way up and it's really difficult to lift up a two-pound book with a nine-pound cat perched on top batting at your wrists.

After exercising with Gloria for so long I've found it very lonesome to do it alone. The kids laugh a lot so I don't bother to begin until they're in bed. The cat, as I mentioned, insists on getting into the act so he is banished to the bathroom. Actually it's Dick Cavett who keeps me company during my nightly half-hour. I'm being entertained and beautified at the same time.

The pain that hits you the day after you begin exercising is a lot like labor pains — you never remember it being as bad as it is until you feel it again.

So far there have been no miraculous results. As I remember it takes a few months to really see a difference. By the time it gets around to working I'll probably be turning over another new leaf anyway.

ONE MORE THING: Last week's column on "Ms." magazine provoked some interesting responses. I received several calls from females who were dying to relate what happened to them after buying a copy of "Ms." Some of the more liberated, liberal males I know leafed through my copy and decided they "didn't care for the tone" of the magazine. Oh yes, I also got about 12 "sworn to secrecy" phone calls from males who asked if I could figure out their male hormone cycles.

Herald Writer Wins Scher Award

Herald Staff Writer Leon Shure has been named the recipient of the Jacob Scher Award for outstanding investigative reporting.

Announcement of the award came yesterday from the Chicago Chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, National Professional Society for Women in Journalism and Communications.

Shure was named the recipient of the award in the community newspaper category of the contest for his expose of the misuse of Cook County Office of Opportunity funds in Des Plaines. Beginning last summer, Shure and Des Plaines Herald

Leon Shure

City Editor Robert Casey undertook an investigation of OEO-salaried jobs in Des Plaines. Their investigation revealed that some jobs aimed at poverty-level youth were being held by sons and daughters of city officials.

The series of articles promoted an investigation by the City of Des Plaines, Cook County OEO and finally, the Better Government Association. The BGA's investigation held that there was no malfeasance on the part of city officials.

The award for investigative reporting is given in honor of the late Jacob Scher, Northwestern University journalism professor, newspaperman and authority on press law and freedom of information. The awards will be given at a dinner Thursday, Feb. 17 in Chicago.

Entries for the awards were in four categories. Shure and Casey's award was given in the Community Newspaper category. Chicago Today will receive an award in the Metropolitan Newspaper category and no awards will be given in the radio and television categories.

City Weighs 'Serious Financial Problems'

The Des Plaines City Council met last night to discuss "serious financial problems" concerning construction of a new city hall.

The meeting, which was not open to the public or press, was called by Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel after the city received a report which indicated a financing plan, backed by some aldermen, may not be the least expensive way of building a new civic center building.

The financing plan, which provides for combined city and private ownership of an eight story building in downtown Des Plaines, was found to be more expensive than if the city owned the entire building itself.

City officials had hoped to begin construction in May. The meeting, called to discuss financial problems, is the first public indication that plans have not been developing smoothly.

The report, from Holmes and Fox architects, was requested by aldermen who wanted more information to determine whether the proposed public and private ownership would actually bring the financial benefits its advocates have predicted.

DES PLAINE'S Mayor Herbert Behrel, at his weekly press conference Tuesday, indicated the Holmes and Fox report would be discussed at the closed executive meeting.

The only reason he would give for the closed meeting was that "We've got some serious financial problems we just don't want to let out in the open yet."

Such a reason, however, apparently does not justify a closed session under provisions of the Illinois Open Meetings Act, which generally requires public bodies to hold public meetings.

Behrel also indicated that city employee salary negotiations, which he said are almost completed, will also be discussed at the meeting. Illinois law would allow this section of the meeting to be closed to the public.

City officials released the Holmes and Fox study Monday night at city council meeting.

It presents four alternate plans, the first being city-ownership of four floors and private ownership of four floors on a condominium basis in an eight story building. The other plans call for completely city-owned buildings of eight, six or four stories.

With a 25 year mortgage, including expenses, the building would cost the city $87,120 yearly in the condominium plan, $60,537 a year to own the whole eight-story building and rent out unused space, $81,458 on the same basis with the six-story structure and $109,350 to build a four-floor municipal building strictly for city use.

A "possibility exists" that the city would have to pay taxes on the office space it would rent out to private owners, the architects said. If four floors were rented out, it would cost the city $22,500 a year in taxes, for example, they said.

School Proves Busing Can Work

field Christian Reformed churches.

A church-owned bus, driven by West Side parishioners, transports the black children daily.

IF THE 56 Students decide to continue their education at Christian schools, they will all probably be bused to the nearest high school, in Elmhurst.

In addition to being integrated racially, the Des Plaines Christian School is integrated in terms of age groups and grade levels.

Van Gilst, who has been principal of the school for the past three years, teaches grades six through eight in one classroom.

Diane Sennaker, in her first year with the Des Plaines school, teaches the third through fifth grades. A third-year teacher there, Joyce VanderBent teaches kindergarten through second grade.

The three were all educated at Christian schools and colleges. According to Van Gilst, "Christian colleges are our best source of teachers. We don't have much trouble orienting people from these colleges to what we are trying to do here."

In addition to teaching, the three serve as counselors and disciplinarians.

"THE OLDER children might lose a lot of the social interaction they might have at larger schools. But a lot of that social interaction might be negative anyway," he added.

The school opened in 1964 with about 30 children enrolled in kindergarten through sixth grade. The seventh and eighth grades were added in the next two years and in 1967 the black students were admitted.

Although the school was founded by the Des Plaines Christian Reformed Church and operates from a church-owned building, it is run by the parents of its students.

According to Van Gilst, the parents' nine-member board of directors operates the school's budget of about $35,000, raised through tuition, contributions from parents and others and offerings from churches.

Although the board and the parents have a large say in what goes on at the school, "they respect our position as educators," Van Gilst said. "We never discourage the parents from questioning what we are doing . . . we believe in accountability."

The school is officially recognized by the state of Illinois. It offers the same courses taught in public schools, plus Christian education courses.

ONE OF THE things all of the children in the Des Plaines Christian School think about and are beginning to believe, Van Gilst said, is the fact that they are working together in a racially integrated school.

"They are aware of what's going on. They know what has happened in other schools that have tried to integrate. They also know why it shouldn't happen here because of what our school is based on — the love of Christ," Van Gilst said.

"When the black students first started coming here, we were a little concerned about community reaction. But we're quietly going about our business," he added.

"The children work together and play together because they're all children and they need each other . . . there aren't very many of them. They are integrated by necessity — mixed races, ages and sexes," Van Gilst explained.

"I think coming to this school has been an eye-opener for the white children especially," he added.

THE CHILDREN "play on each other's fears," he explained, using the examples of a seventh grade white boy spending the weekend at a black student's home and being afraid to hang his feet from the bed at night because of the rats the black student had killed might bite him; and the sixth grade black boy teaching white students how to hide money quickly in case they are ever frisked by Chicago street gangs; or the black girls telling the white girls about the drunks who try to steal their school lunches as they walk to the bus.

"It's the world they live in, and the white children are being exposed to it," Van Gilst said.

According to the Rev. James LaGrand of the Garfield Christian Reformed Church, all of the Garfield and Lawndale black children in kindergarten through second grade will soon attend a newly-formed Christian school right in their community. "They're awfully young to be bused so far . . . so we've started our own school," he said.

The Rev. Richard Greengood, pastor of the Lawndale Christian Reformed Church, said the new community school will only be the beginning of the end of a long struggle his black parishioners have endured to secure Christian education for their children.

"Our religion has always placed a tremendous emphasis on education," Rev. Greengood said. "That's why the parents have been willing to bus their children all the way to Des Plaines. The black children are getting a better education and the suburban children are benefiting from the contact . . . the myths of racism are being broken down."

HE ADDED Timothy Christian School's refusal to admit blacks is "a very shameful sort of story for the church." He said many parents "struggled to decide" whether busing would be more beneficial to their children's education or more detrimental to their children's black identity.

Other children from both parishes are attending Catholic or public schools because of the Timothy controversy.

"We've all been disillusioned. The shame of it all is too much," Rev. Greengood said. "If it weren't for the Des Plaines Christian School, we might have given up on integration."

Van Gilst said, "We are proud in bearing witness that the love of Christ is the one and only solution to the racial tensions of our day."

That's what makes Sam run.

One man can't stop the spending and waste that is frustrating taxpayers. But the right man will try.

One man can't stop the squeeze between soaring taxation and the emaciated dollar. But the right man will try.

The right man is Sam Young. Because Sam has always been a man of political action, and has stood for fiscal responsibility in government.

The Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Daily News have noted Sam's "brilliant record" as securities commissioner of Illinois and assistant secretary of state.

When he resigned the latter post to resume his law practice, Secretary of State, Charles F. Carpenter, praised him as having been outstanding among men he has known in state and local government. He credited Sam Young with drafting the new securities, motor vehicle and state records laws. And with an administrative reorganization of the secretary of state's office.

Sam Young has worked hard for you in the past. And he'll work hard for you again.

What makes Sam Young run? You.

WE WANT YOU.

Nobody has got more out of Scouting than the men who earned the Eagle Badge.

But when you think about it, nobody owes more to Scouting, either. Any Eagle Scout will tell you how important Scouting was in shaping his confidence and his character.

If you earned the Eagle Badge, we want you back in Scouting—as a volunteer leader. Nobody is better equipped to lead boys to manhood.

2 'Ski Mask' Bandits In Bank 4 Hours

by CRAIG GAARE
Police theorized Wednesday that the two men who robbed the Bank of Buffalo Grove and escaped with more than $100,000 were in the bank undetected for more than four hours before forcing a teller to open the vault after banking hours Tuesday evening.

George Miller, the president of the bank, said yesterday between $112,000 and $120,000 was taken, but the exact amount still is not known.

It is possible that the two men, described by witnesses as under 25 years of age and wearing long hair, could have been familiar to bank employees and thus would not have been considered suspicious.

However Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harold Smith said that theory is only speculation and added, "it is not necessarily that difficult to get downstairs," to hike near the vault where the robbery occurred.

Smith also said it is only speculation whether the robbery was carried out by local persons or if professionals were involved.

BUT HE DID say, "I have the feeling it is someone we know."

Police are compiling a list of possible suspects and are "talking to as many witnesses as possible," according to Smith.

Meanwhile, the two suspects, who wore ski masks and brandished small caliber revolvers in the robbery, are still at large and are being sought by local and state police and federal agents.

Smith said the Federal Bureau of Investigation has assigned 15 agents to the case. He met with state police detectives for about an hour Wednesday morning to discuss the case with them.

After the meeting, Smith told the Herald most of the information and leads are sketchy and he is meeting with state and federal agents to "correlate our information so there is no duplication."

ACCORDING TO the police account of the robbery, the suspects entered the bank sometime before 2 p.m. when the bank closes all but the drive-up windows. When the robbery took place, shortly before 6:30 p.m., there were four persons in the bank — three tellers and one employee working downstairs.

Police believe the robbers first handcuffed the employee in the basement and then waited for each teller to bring down the day's receipts from the cash drawers. The tellers normally come separately because they finish totaling their receipts at different times, Smith said.

As each teller came down, the robbers handcuffed them and placed the tellers out of view of the next employee coming down the stairs. After all the employees were in the basement, the robbers forced one teller to open the vault at gunpoint.

The suspects fled on foot out the west door of the bank carrying the money in a green duffel bag.

Ex-Wife Shot, Friend Slain; Cop Is Held

A Franklin Park policeman was being held by Cook County Sheriff's Police yesterday after he allegedly shot and seriously wounded his ex-wife and then shot her male companion to death.

Criminal charges were pending yesterday against Patrolman Peter DiVenere, 38, of 3306 Lincoln St., Franklin Park, after he was arrested by sheriff's police in a trailer court in unincorporated Elk Grove Township.

DiVenere allegedly shot his ex-wife, Laurel, 23, twice, and then shot and killed her companion, Charles McConnell, 23, after he burst into her Hanover Park apartment about 3 a.m. yesterday. Mrs. DiVenere told police her ex-husband shot her twice with a .38 caliber revolver and then shot McConnell once in the back and once in the chest.

Mrs. DiVenere was in serious condition at Alexian Brothers Medical Center yesterday with gunshot wounds of the back, right arm and abdomen. McConnell, who lived in an apartment at the same address, was dead on arrival at the Cook County morgue.

HANOVER PARK police issued an all-points bulletin for DiVenere's arrest shortly after 3 a.m., when they were called to the apartment by an ambulance driver.

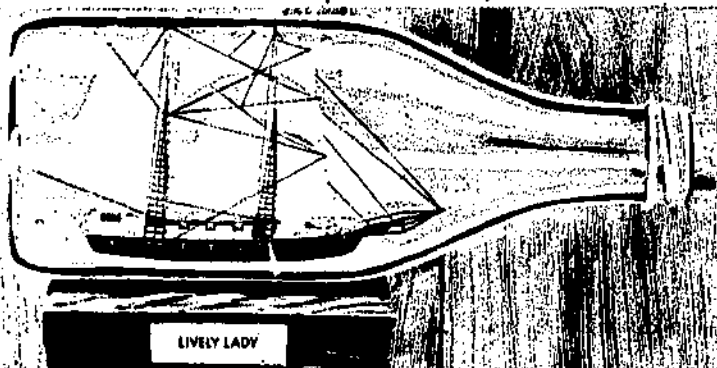

Less than four hours later sheriff's police arrested the suspect at his brother's trailer in the Oasis Mobile Home Court, 7500 N. Elmhurst Rd. DiVenere was arrested without resistance after his car was spotted outside his brother's trailer, police said.

DiVenere has been a member of the Franklin Park force for nine years.

Hanover Park police late yesterday afternoon said no charges had been filed yet, pending word from the state attorney's office.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Take Your Time

Finding The Right Nursing Home

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Your elderly father who lives with you suddenly has a stroke that leaves him with a temporary or permanent physical disability and mental confusion.

Your widowed mother, who has been living independently, begins to decline in health and can no longer manage alone.

Your elderly parents, maintaining their own home, until now have cared well for themselves, but one has an accident, and the other is unable to give him the care he needs.

What should you do?

Families everywhere share your problem. Needs for these relatives vary from close supervision or constant attendance to skilled nursing care . . . often following a period of hospitalization. For various reasons — a job, small children, lack of space, ill health, inability or unwillingness to cope with added responsibility — family members are unable to provide at home the kind of care these sick people need, and must look elsewhere for help. A nursing home may be the answer.

FINDING THE RIGHT nursing home for an elderly or incapacitated patient is not an easy task. And, according to professionals working in this health field, it is not a job to undertake alone.

They suggest you enlist the aid of the patient's private physician, or your own family doctor. If either is a staff member of one or more of the four local hospitals, he'll probably refer you to the hospital's social services or home care departments. They provide this kind of help.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge, Holy Family in Des Plaines, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights, all work personally with these patients and the families. (Though their efforts generally are undertaken for staff doctors' patients, hospital personnel say they never turn away anyone asking for help.)

THOSE WHO WORK with geriatric placements also suggest you inquire among friends, neighbors and relatives who may have experience with nursing homes. Or telephone Information Center for Aging in Chicago. This agency may be able to steer you in the right direction.

"A particular home must be geared to a particular patient's needs . . . and to what he or the family can afford to pay," advises Mrs. Margaret Klein, assistant director for the Information Center.

All professionals agree the first step in searching out the right nursing home begins with the patient and his physician. A complete physical examination will determine the kind of nursing care the patient needs. Approximate length of stay also may be established by this evaluation of the patient's health.

Only those patients who first have undergone a thorough examination are accepted by licensed nursing homes in Illinois. Patients then are admitted only with doctor's orders.

TO OBTAIN A license in this state, a nursing home must meet standard rules and regulations set by the Illinois Department of Public Health. Nursing homes, which provide either minimal care and/or added personal care or skilled nursing care, must meet state standards. These standards cover administration and personnel and also restorative services, medical and personal care, if provided. Food services, building maintenance, home furnishings and physical plant safety and other facets of nursing home operation must meet Illinois specifications.

The Illinois Department of Public Health now conducts four unannounced inspections yearly. All nursing homes are required to be licensed and this state licensure should be prominently displayed. Nursing home professionals suggest you look for it — and others — when you personally inspect homes.

The quality of nursing services may be indicated further by additional accreditation such as given by the Joint Commission or Accreditation of Hospitals and diplomas and certificates of nursing home studies. Look for them. If you do not see them, ask about them.

REMEMBER, THE SEARCH for a nursing home takes time and patience. Those helping families to find these facilities understand the emotional impact such a decision has upon many families and patients. They report the most common reaction in families is guilt . . . and in patients, abandonment. For these reasons and others, professionals caution against hasty decisions.

What could be a good facility for one elderly person might be a very unsatisfactory choice for another. Those unfamiliar with facilities for the aged may become confused. Such institutions include retirement homes, homes for the aged and nursing homes.

Retirement homes provide hotel facilities, three meals a day, laundry and cleaning services. Good retirement homes include activity programs. The Georgian House in Evanston and the Chelsey House in Chicago are examples of retirement homes.

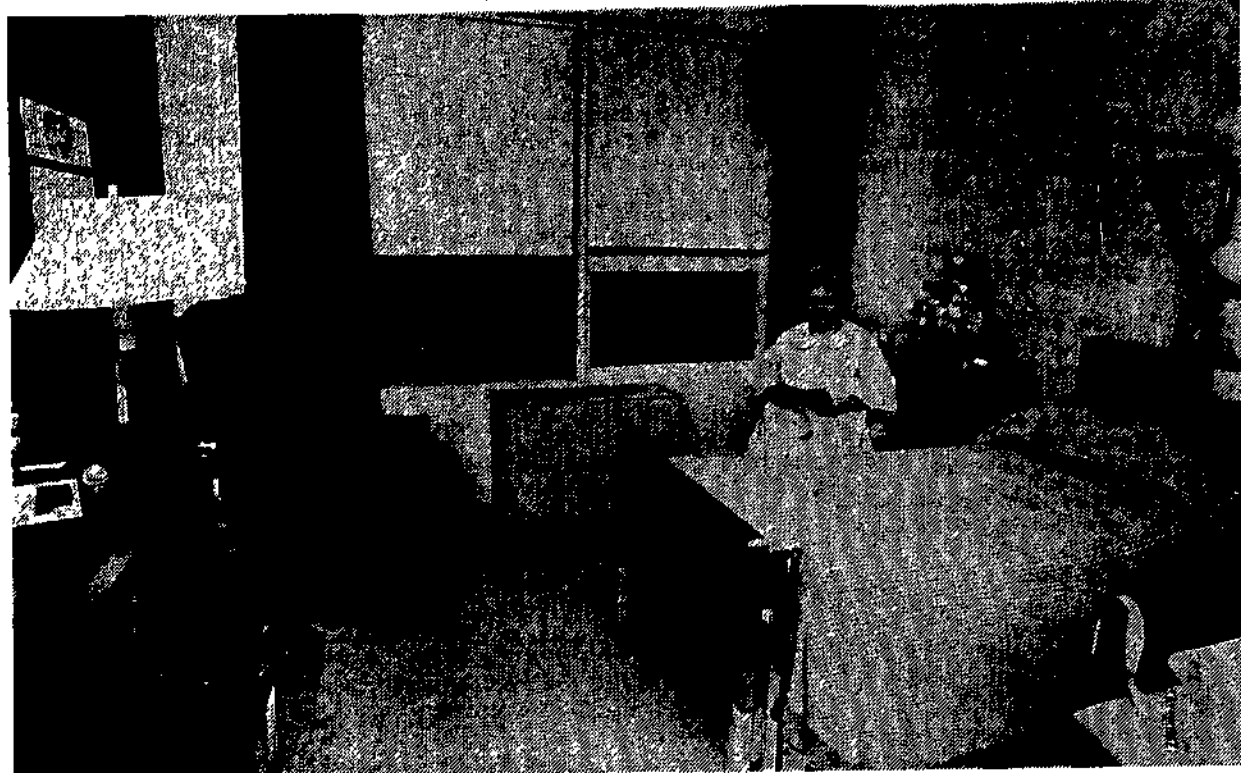

HOMES FOR THE aged usually are non-profit and are run by religious and fraternal organizations. Most residents are members of these groups, and are admitted only if in good health and able to care for themselves. However, most homes for the aged have infirmaries which give health care and nursing services as needed. Lutheran Home and Services for the Aged in Arlington Heights and St. Joseph's Home for the Elderly in Palatine are examples.

Nursing homes — sometimes referred to as rest homes, convalescent homes or sanitariums — provide health care upon admittance. Ideally, a nursing home is a facility which provides good nursing care in an environment as homelike as possible. But, caution the professionals, excellent services are more important than plush surroundings. Staff services should be closely observed also, and the place should be clean and cheerful.

Hospital personnel — familiar with nursing home facilities and their staffs in this area — cite Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine, Americana Center in Arlington Heights and Brookwood Convalescent Center in Des Plaines as excellent examples of nursing homes that provide physical therapy, and other restorative services in addition to skilled nursing care.

"BUT ANY REPUTABLE nursing home will welcome your inspection," said Mrs. Margaret Klein, Information Center for Aging.

Personal inspection by families looking for nursing homes is a "must." Once the NURSING HOMES should have as homelike an atmosphere as possible for good patient morale. Television, comfortable lounge chair and flowers help create a homey touch to the individual room of Miss Gertrude Cushing, resident at Plum Grove Nursing Home. Staff attitude is another important factor.

RESIDENTS OF nursing homes are healthier and happier when there is a good activities program. Miss Valeria Condon, back to camera, Mrs. Olivia Mason and Mrs. Amanda Freeman try their hand at ceramics in the activities room at Plum Grove Nursing Home. Whether a home has such activities is another item to check out.

patient's needs have been established, professionals will do the initial "leg work." Then — if possible — they will recommend several nearby (there aren't always vacancies) homes for the families to visit.

What will this cost you? Plenty. Nursing home costs in the northwest suburbs run from $437 to $920 a month without medical costs. At present, according to professionals, there's not too much help with this expense. Minimal aid may be forthcoming from Medicare, depending on the disability. Insurance companies, however, are aware of the need for help in this health area and, hopefully, will soon come up with a good program. And the Cook County Department of Public Aid places needy patients.

OTHERWISE, THE cost is up to you, and this is another reason you should make a careful choice. For example, a short stay in an excellent skilled nursing home may seem financially prohibitive. However, if the patient is well cared for, restored to good physical and mental health as quickly as possible, perhaps preventing long-term or permanent disability, your choice is a happy and cheaper one. Or, if you place your relative in a plush, skilled nursing home, you could be making a financial mistake. Room and board, help with laundry and cleaning and some personal courtesies in pleasant surroundings with a sympathetic staff may be just "what the doctor ordered," and it is cheaper.

Don't be afraid to ask for help. Send 15 cents to the American Medical Association, 535 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. 60610 and ask for "What To Look for in a Nursing Home."

PROFESSIONALS ADVISE those seeking a nursing home for an elderly or infirm family member to check the facilities for themselves. One of the things to look for is a clean and cheerful dining room. At Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine, residents Willard Cooke, Mrs. Edith Loranzen, rear, and Mrs. Florence Spetch enjoy mealtime in pleasant surroundings.

Women's Rights In Limelight

Women's rights will get attention next week in Chicago when the anniversary of the birth of Susan B. Anthony is celebrated Tuesday and a women's rights conference is held on Wednesday.

Chicago NOW is commemorating Susan B. Anthony's birthday by sponsoring a fund-raising event which will feature the Chicago premiere of Kate Millett's film, "Three Lives." The 70-minute film deals with three women and their experiences as human beings.

The main event will be held in the Mayfair Room of the Sheraton-Blackstone Hotel, Michigan at Balbo. The film will be shown at 7 p.m. followed by a reception.

Mary Ann Lupa, president of Chicago NOW, said, "Those attending our Tuesday event will have a chance to meet and talk to a number of prominent feminists at the reception. We have invited as our guests a number of women who, like Susan B. Anthony, are battling for women's rights."

GUESTS AT the film and reception will include Johnnie Tillmon, associate executive director, National Welfare Rights Organization and Aileen Hernandez, former national president of NOW. Also, Susan Davis, editor and publisher of Spokesman Newsletter and winner of Mademoiselle's award to outstanding young women, will be present.

Tickets at $4 are available at the Loop Center YWCA, 37 S. Wabash, third floor, or by calling 267-1115.

The film will also be shown at noon and 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Loop Center YWCA. Price is $1.50. Tickets will be available at the door only.

"WE FEEL IT IS important that Susan

B. Anthony be remembered," continued Mary Ann Lupa. "Chicago NOW is commemorating Susan B. Anthony's birthday to show our recognition of her dedication to our cause. She is indeed a role model for all the women today struggling for women's rights."

Then on Wednesday, 7 to 10 p.m., national feminist speakers Gloria Steinem and Johnnie Tillmon will head up a Women's Rights Conference at the Sheraton Blackstone Hotel.

In addition to the two main speakers, a panel will discuss issues related to discrimination in employment. Tickets will be available at the door. Further information is available through 629-0170.

Hadassah Chapter Forming In Area

A chapter of Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, is forming a chapter to encompass the townships of Palatine, Wheeling, Elk Grove and Schaumburg. For more than 60 years Hadassah has sponsored medical centers and youth villages in Israel, as well as pursued an active educational program in the United States.

Mrs. D. Louis Steinberg, program chairman of the Indiana-Illinois Region of Hadassah, will speak at the charter meeting at 1 p.m. Monday in the Palatine home of Mrs. H. Gamoran, 617 N. Whitcomb, Palatine.

All interested women are invited, and for further information may call Mrs. Gamoran at 353-9500.

Promises Further Study Of Sudden Infant Death

Further investigation into Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS) is promised by Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., as the result of a hearing into SIDS, known also as crib or cot death, held Jan. 25.

Mondale heads the subcommittee on children and youth which conducted the hearing.

Testifying on behalf of the National Foundation for Sudden Infant Death, the organization created for parents of SIDS victims, were Mrs. Jude Choate, Dr. Abraham Bergman and Arthur Seigal. Frank Hennigan represented the Chicago Chapter of NISID at the hearing.

As a result of their testimony, Sen. Mondale, supported by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., made a commitment to pursue the problems of SIDS further.

Copies of the hearing testimony are available to all interested persons by writing the Chicago Chapter, NISID, 203 N. Wabash, Suite 1804, Chicago, Ill. 60601.

As an expression of appreciation and in recognition of the importance of the Congressional hearing, the Chicago chapter urges all SIDS parents, friends and relatives to write Sen. Mondale thanking him for his interest in SIDS.

SIDS parents also are asked to write their Congressmen and their Senators to make them aware of the hearings and urge them to support the Minnesota Senator in his investigation.

Approximately 10,000 babies die every year from SIDS, and the parent organization hopes that 10,000 letters will be sent to government officials.

Letters to individual Congressmen should be addressed to them in care of the House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20501. Letters to Sen. Charles Percy and Sen. Adlai Stevenson should be addressed to the New State Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20501.

Correspondence to Sen. Mondale should be addressed to: Sen. Walter F. Mondale, Chairman, Senate Subcommittee on Children and Youth, U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20501.

The Home Line by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My husband surprised me at Christmas with a beautiful mink jacket and matching hat. I've never owned a fur before and have no background on how to take care of it. Friends say the fur should never be rubbed down, always up. What happens if I wear it in rain or snow? Is it true that I must put it in cold storage this summer? Should the hat and jacket be covered in the closet to keep the dust off?

—Mrs. T.P.

Relax. Mink is a very sturdy fur and requires very little unusual care. If it gets wet, just hang it carefully in an area away from heat. When it's dry, shake it out. Try to hang it in a closet farthest from heat. No, the pieces do not need covering, and yes, they should be stored in the summer to keep the oils from drying out. That's all there is to it. Go ahead and enjoy it.

Dear Dorothy: I always keep a box of seasoned croutons on the kitchen shelf. Not only do they add something to a tossed salad but when seasoned crumbs are called for in breaded chicken or such, it's the easiest thing in the world to put some croutons in a bag and crush them with the rolling pin. You couldn't ask for tastier crumbs for anything.

—Joyce Mathews.

Dear Dorothy: I've used activated charcoal to absorb odors in various situations, too, and found it unbelievably satisfactory. However, can it be reactivated after it has absorbed the odors completely?

—Mrs. Charles Clarkston.

Spread the granules in a dish and leave in the direct sun and it ought to be reusable in 24 hours. All you have to do is take a "whiff," if it smells okay it can be put back in service. If there's still some odor, leave it a little longer.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Future Babysitters Can Learn Skills At Week-Long Clinics

Babysitting clinics, teaching boys and girls aged 10-14, will be sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club of Des Plaines and the Des Plaines Park District.

Classes will be held at Algonquin, Chippewa and Iroquois Junior High Schools for one week from 4-5 p.m. Classes will be held at Algonquin Junior High during the week of Feb. 14; at Chippewa Junior High during the week of Feb. 21; and at Iroquois Junior High during the week of Feb. 28.

A different program is planned for each class meeting. Programs will include a talk on home safety and artificial respiration by Inspector O'Leary of the Des Plaines Fire Department, games and activities for children by Lucille Stiles and girls from the Maine West

High School home economics department, illness and first aid by Duncan Cook of the Evanston Red Cross, and infant care by Mrs. M. Gustafson of the Chicago Red Cross.

THE LAST MEETING will be a panel discussion by members of the Community Service Committee of the Junior Woman's Club on babysitting.

All Des Plaines children are invited to join the free classes and will be presented with a certificate stating that they have attended. The Park District will have a list of those students who complete and graduate from the clinic for interested parents in the community.

Those wishing further information or having questions about the program are asked to contact the Des Plaines Park District at 296-6106.

tips from Robert Marc at their meeting Monday evening. Marc is a make-up artist with studios in the Chicago area.

Mrs. William Brown, 121 Russell, Mount Prospect, will be hostess for the 8 o'clock meeting. Mrs. James Bowden is co-hostess. New Sigma alumnae in the northwest suburbs may call Mrs. Brown at 253-5226 for details.

The alums had their second social event of the club year Jan. 29, a cocktail party for couples at the Karl Kubon home in Mount Prospect.

EPSILON SIGMA ALPHA

A "Snowman's Tea" climaxed the winter rush program for Alpha Nu Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International. Mrs. George McArdle of Arlington Heights hosted the party Tuesday evening.

A pledge ceremony honored Mrs. J. A. White of Palatine and an affiliation rite was given for Mrs. H. McNeill, Arlington Heights.

There were several special guests at the tea. Mrs. Allen Schoeld, Hoffman Estates, "Outstanding Girl of Illinois ESA," attended, as did Mary Joy Gallagher, Glen Ellyn, who is Woodfield Area Council president, and members of Gamma Theta Chapter, Hoffman.

CHAPTER ILL-PEO

A Valentine's Day meeting of Chapter ILL of the PEO Sisterhood of Des Plaines is scheduled for Monday in the home of Mrs. R. Ballweg. Mrs. K. Holmes will assist as co-hostess.

The program is a "Study of the State Constitution" to be given by Mrs. J. C. Van Schalek.

The Potting Shed by Mary B. Good

From one frozen armchair gardener to another, "Read any good books lately?"

Certainly winter provides time for catching up on back reading.

If you have time for only one book before the growing season sneaks up, try "The Ruth Stout No-Work Garden Book" by who else? Ruth Stout. It's a gardening book-of-the-month selection from Rodale Press.

Ruth Stout is considered the "mulch queen." She doesn't plow, spade, hoe, cultivate, weed, water or spray. At 80 years old who needs all that? Ruth says that with her wheelchair, it need be!

THE STOUT no-slave-to-the-garden technique calls for a 6 to 8-inch year-round straw mulch. This is a great approach for anyone who has a garden but is not very enthusiastic about it, working mothers, career girls, lazy husbands and children who never belonged to 4-H.

Weeds? Just toss on some straw to smother them or add layers of wet newspapers (the weeds die beneath the weight of public opinion).

I admit most people would be a little skeptical about reading this book. No work-ha ha. But Ruth Stout means it. The Prairie Farmers tried it out at Arlington Heights this past summer with good results. When you don't have water, mulching is the best way.

Ruth believes that gardening should be a dalliance, not an engineering project. (Right on, Ruth.)

Maybe I liked this book because Ruth Stout doesn't set herself up as a know-it-all. Her approach is: "This is what works for me. She gets her points across without being pushy about them. "If you're devoted to chemical fertilizers," says Ruth, "enjoy yourself. I don't need it. I wouldn't advise anyone not to spray, that's their affair, but I'm genuinely sorry for sprayers."

HER STYLE is breezy and fast-paced. Her reasoning — logical. "If plowing and cultivating are so very important, then why is it that we don't turn the soil under asparagus, roses, rhubarb, etc?" Good point, Ruth, it makes us readers think.

Hersey Posts Strong Finish For Team Honors

Elk Grove, Forest View Finish 2-3 In Wrestling

by KETH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

More than a couple of teams were on hand. But there was Hersey following the old dual meet script anyway.

With the finals over half finished, the Huskies were just one of seven teams having put someone in the winner's circle at the Mid-Suburban conference wrestling meet.

Two outstanding members of Tom Porter's defending champion club — one of them a top seed — had been knocked out of competition and while Hersey still appeared to have the loop crown within sight, their win would be much less impressive than in 1971 when five grapplers claimed individual crowns en route to a romp on the team level.

That was going into the 145-pound clash. Tad DeLuca pulled the trigger then, and when the heavy artillery had been stilled, the Huskies again had their five individual champs . . . and another romp through the MSL mat field at Wheeling Saturday night.

"I thought our whole team was kind of flat over the first two sessions," Porter commented after Kevin Pancratz had capped the Hersey barrage by capturing heavyweight honors and his team's fourth title out of the final five matches. "I knew they'd pick up in the finals though. This is too good a group to stay down for very long."

What Porter was trying to say was that he, and his stellar lineup of heavier wrestlers, had been through it before. All season long, in fact, they had been bringing their team across over the dual campaign, piling up the points to counter the slow starts that would invariably have the Huskies trailing early on the score-board.

DeLuca was a championship repeater, as was Brad Smith before him and Pat Teeley later on. These three veterans ran their collective records beyond 60 victories without a loss this season while bulwarking an 84½ point team total that outdistanced 11 other schools by 24 tallies or more.

Pancratz and Frank Czarnecki were the other Hersey winners, both pulling the carpet out from under the top choices in their respective brackets. "Frank's showing was about the only surprise and even his finish wasn't too unexpected," Porter said. "We knew he would have to take on an awfully tough opponent in the finals, but he's been coming on strong ever since Christmas, when he came out on top in our Tri-State meet in Wisconsin."

All Czarnecki had to do was get by one of the tough Byrne boys . . . brothers Dennis and Dave Byrne of Elk Grove, who had torn up the circuit all season at 155 and 167 pounds. Frank had to get by Dave, the undefeated one.

And Czarnecki did so in nothing less than sizzling fashion, pinning Dave Byrne in the second round and issuing him his first setback in 19 tries this season. That verdict served to incur the wrath of brother Dennis, who came on afterwards and blanketed Steve Frankovic of Arlington at 167 to give the Grove their second title of the evening.

The Grenadiers were the only team outside of Hersey to come away with more than one blue ribbon. Glenbard North had a chance after 167, with a pair of top-flight entries still alive. But Teeley responded at 185, in what had to be rated among the top tussles of the entire two-day tournament, and Pancratz neatly wrapped things up at heavyweight.

Among the winners in the early going Saturday night were two more grapplers remaining among the undefeated ranks. Mike Beard of the host Wildcats emerged on top at 165, breaking another matman's unbeaten streak in the process. And at 126 Mark Hyneman of Forest View weaved together three impressive decisions after faltering in the semifinals of this very same weight class during last year's conference meet.

Elk Grove finished in second place in the meet with 57½ points and also wound up number two in the conference overall. Conant, which had won the South Division throne during dual action, slipped to eighth in the overall standings after coming in ninth in the conference meet.

Forest View came home third in both the meet and overall while Palatine, Wheeling, Glenbard North and Schaumburg occupied the next four slots in two separate orders.

Here's a rundown of the meet by weight class.

95 Pounds — Top seeded Saxon Gary Evans went on to claim top prize, stopping Bob Ancona of Elk Grove in the finals 10-3. Ancona just barely made it out of the semifinals when he pinned Kurt Weisenborn of Hersey in the last seven seconds of the bout while trailing 6-3. Weisenborn, who had lost to Ancona during the regular season too, rebounded to edge Chuck Tuttle of Palatine for third place, 5-2.

105 Pounds — Mike Beard of Wheeling upped his record to 23-0 for the season by knocking off Falcon Steve Egedal in the finals, 6-2. Egedal had also gone into the match unbeaten this winter. Beard, a runner-up at 98 pounds in last year's conference meet, forged the shortest bout of the tourney when he took 14 seconds to pin his quarterfinal foe, Blain Bachus of Schaumburg came back to annex third place while Gary Ahr picked up Rolling Meadows' only point of the meet by gaining a first round ref's decision.

112 Pounds — While favored Jeff Alvis of Fremd came out of the upper brackets, unseeded Wildcat Mike Millay worked his way up through the lower brackets to gain the other berth in the finals. Alvis finally disposed of Millay, 3-0, upping his overall slate to 20-1. Cougar John Beck, who had three close battles earlier, fashioned a first-round pin in consolation action to take over third place.

119 Pounds — No surprises. The top three seeds went on to finish according to their pre-tourney rankings with Craig Mann of the Grenadiers stopping Cardinal Tom DalCampo in the championship bout, 7-1, and Al Gordon of Conant winding up third. Mann and DalCampo were both unbeaten in conference going into their showdown.

126 Pounds — Falcon Mark Hyneman breezed through three matches, winning 11-3, 8-0, and 7-2 over Fremd's John Lynch in the finals to remain undefeated this year. His first victim, unranked Card Dick Porowski, rebounded to take consolation honors.

132 Pounds — Brad Smith of the Huskies hardly worked up a sweat in gaining his second conference title in a row. He opened with a 19-3 triumph, pinned in the semifinals at 5:06 and finally stopped Rob Callagione in the finals at 5:41 after building up a 12-4 advantage. Callagione had also notched a pin in the semis, bumping off second seeded John Laver of Prospect at 2:35 and Laver was also turned back by Pirate Kevin Loneragan in the consolation bracket.

138 Pounds — Defending conference champ Pete Anderson of Arlington became the first top seed to fall by the wayside when he was upset by Palatine's Jim Bambrick in the semifinals, 11-5. Bambrick, a third-place finisher at 132 pounds in 1971, went on to topple Schaumburg's Ric Butler in a hard-fought championship battle 6-2, while Anderson came back to win in consolation play. Bambrick had been fourth seeded in the meet.

145 Pounds — Tad DeLuca initiated the strong Hersey windup by winning in a breeze. He opened with a 21-2 romp, pinned Glenbard's Lon Yeary at 3:57 in the semis and thumped Wheeling's Steve Jorgensen 13-5 in the finals to up his unbeaten skein to 20 this season. He was also a winner at this same weight in last year's tourney. Yeary, in the meantime, nudged out Tom Tillman of the Pirates 2-0 to claim third prize.

155 Pounds — The meet's second major upset occurred in the finals here when top seeded and unbeaten Dave Byrne of Elk Grove was pinned at 2:59 by second seeded Huskie Frank Czarnecki. Byrne had been impressive going into the windup bout, pinning at 4:40 in his opener and toppling Lon Marchel of Palatine in the semifinals 10-4. Czarnecki just eased by Gordy Moore of Forest View 3-0 in his semifinal bout and Moore later captured consolation honors.

167 Pounds — Another shocker occurred in the semifinals here when Steve Frankovic of Arlington outbustled Bob Vercruyase of Hersey 5-2 to advance to the finals. Top seeded Vercruyase, who finished fourth last year at 185, had only lost twice in 17 tries leading into the semis and had crushed Frankovic 17-5 in dual meet action earlier this season. Second seeded Dennis Byrne, who barely edged out Steve Andrews of Conant 3-2 to gain his berth in the championship match, shut out Frankovic 4-0 in the big showdown and Vercruyase came back to finish third.

185 Pounds — The exciting championship match pitted two very aggressive grapplers with 20-0 records. Glenbard North's Frank Savagnano jumped into a 7-5 first-round lead but Pat Teeley rallied to win 12-7 and claimed his second consecutive conference title. At the same time Andy Jones of Schaumburg went through five matches, winning four of them, before winding up with the consolation title.

Heavyweight — Panther Marc Neer was top seeded and he had little trouble advancing to the finals. He met Huskie Kevin Pancratz there, with six pins and undefeated in nine conference bouts, including quarter and semifinal tourney victories. Pancratz overpowered Neer, 8-2. Falcon Chuck Meade wound up third, and he too ended up skirmishing five times to gain his consolation title.

Oakton Cagers Nip Kenosha Tech

Holding off a late rally by Kenosha Tech, Oakton recorded a 97-95 victory over the Wisconsin school Monday night at Niles East.

The Raiders led by 16 points after eight minutes of the first half and held a 52-40 halftime lead. With four minutes remaining in the game, Oakton had an eight-point lead but Kenosha Tech chiseled away at the Raider lead for the remainder of the contest.

Kenosha Tech had an opportunity to tie the game in the last five seconds but a guard leading a fast break missed a lay-up.

Craig Christensen paced the Raiders in both scoring and rebounding, putting 23 points through the hoop and pulling down 15 rebounds.

Jerry Gryzbowski contributed 22 points while Dennis Pheius had 19 and Larry Gawauch 16. Jim Weller had 11 rebounds for Oakton.

For Oakton, it was its eighth victory of the season against seven losses. In Skyway Conference play, the Raiders are 3-7. Oakton will travel to Triton for a Skyway Conference contest on Friday at 7:30 p.m. Triton is in first place in the league and is 22-1 overall.

ND Fencers Dominate New Trier East, Tournament

It was another outstanding weekend for Notre Dame's fencing team, whipping New Trier East in a dual meet and reaping most of the awards at an invitational meet in Wisconsin.

The Dons whipped New Trier East 15-3 on both the varsity and the frosh-soph levels with Terry McConville going 3-0 for the varsity and Pat Gerard and Bill Kica doing the same for the frosh-soph squad.

In a tournament in Nequoin, Wis., Notre Dame took the top two places in the 14-15-year-old division and the first four places in the 15-19-year-old division.

Randy Mikos took first place in the 14-15-year-old division while posting a 12-2 record. Kica finished in second place while recording an 11-3 record and Gerard was fourth with an 11-3 mark. Gary Gronke finished fifth.

Tom Alcock nabbed first place in the 15-19-year-old division with an 11-2 record while Sam DiFiglio took second. Gary Beriak was third, Terry McConville fourth and Tim Glass sixth.

Competing for Notre Dame as a team, McConville has a 30-9 record, Alcock is 25-7 and DiFiglio is 28-11. Counting all meets, including those with collegiate and adult fencers, Alcock is 58-27, McConville 63-31 and DiFiglio 70-36.

On the frosh-soph level, Gerard is 14-1, Kica 11-3 and Mikos 10-2 for Notre Dame. Overall, Gerard is 51-24.

The Dons' next meet will be Tuesday at Maine South, the defending state champion, at 4 p.m. Notre Dame will go against Niles West on Thursday, Feb. 17, and will compete in the Gordon Tech Invitational on Saturday, Feb. 19.

Two Notre Dame Games Reslated

Two Notre Dame High basketball games have been rescheduled.

The Dons' game with St. Patrick, originally scheduled for this Friday, has been slated for this Sunday at 2 p.m.

"Due to the situation we had when we played at St. Patrick, we have decided to move the game to Sunday afternoon," explained Notre Dame's head basketball coach Ralph Hinger.

The "situation" at St. Patrick on Friday, Jan. 7, was an ugly affair following a 66-50 win by the Shamrocks.

As the Notre Dame bus was leaving the parking lot at St. Patrick, a brick was thrown through a bus window and at least three Notre Dame basketball players were cut by flying glass.

"We do not feel that the incident was a reflection on the student body at St. Patrick," Hinger said. "We do not even know if the brick was thrown by a St. Patrick student."

"It has been decided and agreed by both schools that the game should be moved to Sunday afternoon to prevent another such incident."

"It is a shame that we should have to penalize the student bodies at both schools for something done by a bunch of bums. But, the rescheduling is something we thought we had to do."

Notre Dame has also reslated a basketball game with Niles West, a contest which was originally scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 11. On that date, Notre Dame's gymnasium was in the process of being remodeled and was not available for play.

The Notre Dame-Niles West game will be played Friday, Dec. 18, at Notre Dame at 8 p.m.

END OF THE ROAD. Bob Ancona of Elk Grove appears to be the dying cowboy, comforted by his trail partner Gary Evans of Schaumburg. It was the last stop along the Mid-Suburban League wrestling trail for the sophomore Grenadier at any rate, as Evans logged a 10-3 victory to capture 98-pound crown at the Wheeling hosted affair.

Three Winners, One Record For North Swimmers

Maine North captured three first places and set a school record in the 400-yard freestyle relay to show surprising strength in a 64-30 loss to New Trier West.

"We had a very good meet," said Norsemen coach Bob Retel. "Our boys were up for the meet and the conditions were perfect. Any time we can score 30 points on a team as good as New Trier West, we have to be pleased."

John Monaghan took first place in the 50-yard freestyle with a 24.6, Jim Crites was the victor in the 100-yard freestyle with a 58.5 and Jeff Rusk won the 100-yard breaststroke with a 1:08.9.

Maine North set a school record in the 400-yard freestyle relay with Monaghan, Crites, Jeff Rusk and Mark Lange who covered the distance in 3:41.9.

Monaghan earned the Norsemen's only second place finish, that coming in the 100-yard butterfly. Third places went to Lange in the 200-yard freestyle, Hammer in the 400-yard freestyle and Tom Buettgen in the 100-yard backstroke.

New Trier West won the frosh-soph meet.

The Norsemen will compete in the Central Suburban League meet at Glenbrook North Friday at 7 p.m.

Waubonsee Tops Raider Matmen

In a battle for third place in the Skyway Conference, forfeits proved costly to Oakton as the Raiders lost to Waubonsee 37-12 in a junior college wrestling meet Monday night at Niles East.

Eighteen of Waubonsee's points came due to forfeits by Oakton at 150 pounds, 167 and 190.

The Raiders' two victories of the meet were turned in by John Donnelly, who won via pin in 4:01 at 126 pounds, and undefeated Herman Ruff who won by forfeit in the heavyweight division.

Ruff closed out the regular season for Oakton with a 10-0 record.

In other wrestling action for Oakton, Keith Nelson lost 11-0 at 118 pounds, Rich Cook was pinned in 2:00 at 134, Bob Menisk lost 8-0 at 142 and Mark Sompolski lost by pin in 4:34 at 158.

The Raiders will compete in the Skyway Conference meet at Triton on Saturday, Feb. 19, at 10 a.m.

3 River Trails Hopefuls Backed

Ted Wattenberg, an incumbent, and Leora Rosen and Lloyd Demel were endorsed Monday night as candidates for three seats on the River Trails Dist. 26 School Board.

The candidates were chosen by the Dist. 26 caucus from a field of seven. William Kurman is the only other candidate interviewed by the caucus who has definitely decided to run on April 8 as an independent. Richard Hendricks, Don Kioseff and James Bowes said they have not yet decided.

"I am still going to run, and I'm going to win," said Kurman, of 1813 Tano Ln. in Mount Prospect. "I think I'm probably the most qualified of the candidates. I have a real interest in success of schools in Dist. 26 and the educational process. And I expect to be most active in seeking the support of citizens in the community."

Kurman 50, has a bachelor's degree in science from Kansas State University and 30 hours of graduate work in secondary education at Temple University in Philadelphia. He also taught there. Father of three, he is employed by the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. in Chicago and has lived in the district for six years.

THE FOUR will be competing for three seats. Harold Haney, board president, and Lee Hufman, board secretary, have indicated they will not run again. Wattenberg's seat, filled by an appointment last summer, is also open in the coming election.

Hendricks, of 1577 E. Emerson Ln. Mount Prospect, said he is "slightly disappointed" he did not receive endorsement. He said he would run again if "some people will urge me and support me."

"The feeling I received by questions asked by caucus members was that they questioned what interest I would have in Dist. 26 if I send three of my children to St. Emily Catholic and only one to a Dist. 26 school. As a matter of fact, it was mentioned that my serving on Dist. 26 School Board, might cause a conflict of interest," he said. "I, as a taxpaying resident of Dist. 26 have as much right to serve on the board as the next person, no matter where I send my children to school if I choose to support two schools that's my business."

Hendricks 35, has served on the Dist. 26 caucus committee for the past two years. Last spring he unsuccessfully sought election to the Mount Prospect Village board as an independent candidate. He is a former president of the

Teachers Tell Hopes For Pact

Teachers in River Trails Dist. 26 plan to use for a 1972-73 contract that is "minimal in scope and cost," according to officials of the River Trails Education Association (RTEA).

Exact figures for the package have not yet been determined, according to Jan White, chairman of the teacher's bargaining team. However, teachers plan to ask for changes in 11 items, she said.

Those items include salary, extra duty and sick leave. The package also will include a request for binding arbitration, according to Al Burns, RTEA president. Under the current contract, arbitrators can be sought, but their decision is not binding on either the school board or teachers.

Unlike the teacher's proposal, the board proposes renegotiation of every item in the contract.

"THE REASON for the board's desire to again renegotiate the entire agreement remains unclear to teachers," said Mrs. White. "The contract now in effect was unanimously approved last September after almost eight months of negotiations by the same board that now wishes it completely reopened."

Because of the "minimal" package, Mrs. White said the board has no reason to hire a negotiator. Richard Zwieback, a professional negotiator, was hired recently by the board at a salary of $6,500 and $47 an hour as a consultant.

"It is hard to understand that the board felt the need for a professional negotiator, especially this year," she said. "The teachers have not used and do not intend to use professional negotiators to do their negotiating job. The IEA (Illinois Education Association) staff serves only in a consulting role."

Thieves Get Watch, $150 In Cash Here

Thieves stole a watch valued at $135 and $50 in cash Tuesday afternoon from a downtown Des Plaines apartment.

Miss Victoria Wick, 790 Lee St. told police a black diver's watch was taken from her jewelry box and the cash was removed from an envelope in another bedroom.

Police said the means of entry into the apartment was not known.

Fairview Gardens Civic Association and current member of the Village Drainage and Clean Streams Commission.

Wattenberg, a corporation attorney who lives at 1807 Tano Ln., Mount Prospect, was appointed to the board when Jack Halvorsen resigned. Wattenberg, 63, was endorsed by the caucus and ran unsuccessfully in 1968 and 1969. In 1970, he failed to receive caucus support and decided not to run again.

MRS. ROSEN, 29, has lived in the district 3½ years and is the mother of two children. She has a bachelor's degree in biology from Northwestern University and has taught school in Zion. She lives at 1805 Apache Ln. in Mount Prospect.

Demel, the sole candidate from Prospect Heights, is a marketing development manager for Universal Oil Products in Des Plaines. He has a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering from the University of Illinois and a master's degree in business from the University of Chicago.

Demel, 41, has been a resident of the district 1½ years and is the father of four children. He served last year on a citizen's committee that publicized the need for an addition to River Trails Junior High School. That committee was instrumental in getting a building plus a tax hike referendum last spring. He lives at 13 Leon Ln. East.

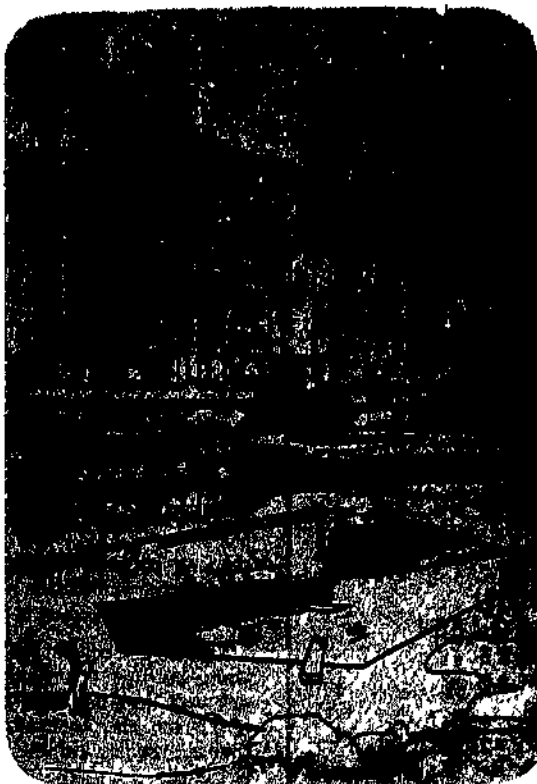

Bowes, 1307 Mulberry Ln., and Kioseff, 1014 Sycamore Ln., are both Mount Prospect residents.

Domanico Back In Race For Board Of Education

Albert Domanico is back in the race for the board of education of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59.

Domanico, of 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village, said yesterday he will be a candidate for election to the board in the April 8 election. He was defeated last year by Erwin Poklacki in a race for the board.

"I'm tempted to say I'm running out of habit," Domanico said. He served on the board for 16 months during 1960 and 1970, but did not seek reelection in 1970 because he was expecting to be transferred out of the area.

He said yesterday he expects to campaign on the basis of his long acquaintance with the district, and added, "During the last year when I attended board meetings I have found myself continuously voting with the minority on many issues."

HE SPECIFICALLY criticized the board decision last summer to close the school buildings to all after-school use following defeat of a tax rate referendum. The decision was made at the first meeting after the defeat by a vote of 5-2 with Poklacki and Harry Peterson voting against the action.

Albert Domanico

"I found myself agreeing with Harry Peterson that they shouldn't have taken that action in isolation and should have looked at the budget as a whole. I think the board has been too quick to respond in some cases," Domanico said.

The board later reversed its position on building closure when more funds became available when the Illinois Supreme Court restored personal property tax.

However, Domanico had praise for Paul Neuhauser and Harold Harvey, the two incumbent board members who have announced they will not seek reelection. "I feel we are going to feel the loss of Mr. Neuhauser and Mr. Harvey because they have contributed a lot to the board," he said.

Domanico has lived in Elk Grove Village for eight years. He has four children and is assistant regional sales marketing manager for General Instrument Corporation in Lincolnwood.

Filing of petitions for the board election will begin Feb. 23 at the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Park District Will Offer Trampoline

A trampoline and tumbling course for adults, sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District, will begin Saturday at Pioneer Park, 500 S. Fernandez, from 11 a.m. to noon.

Anyone over 18 is invited to sign up at Olympic Park, 660 N. Ridge. The fee is $4 for the six-week course.

Schools Eye Ecology Price

Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 is going to investigate the price of ecology.

The board of education Tuesday night authorized the administration to ask for bids for duplicating paper for the district — and asked an alternative be included in the specifications asking for a price if the district buys recycled paper.

In other action, the board waived an irregularity on the performance bond submitted by Towns and Country Plumb-ing of Chicago, the plumbing contractor for Friendship School.

The bond submitted by the company was from a new insurance company not rated in the Best Insurance Guide as required in bid specifications, according to the administration.

Also the board approved the appointment of Richard Jenness, principal at Holmes Junior High School, as summer school principal for the third consecutive year.

Voting In State Is Termed Light

Voters in 51 Illinois counties ousted dozens of incumbent county board members who were vying Tuesday for nominations to seats reduced in number by the 1971 reapportionment.

Bitter cold throughout much of the state may have been a factor in keeping voters away from the polls as officials termed turnout generally light.

The primary election was the first since the reapportionment, ordered by a 1969 state law that sought to put elections on a "one-man-one-vote" basis. The map is expected to take power away from rural areas and concentrate it in the cities.

In Champaign County, where the map reduced the 80-member board to 27 members, 49 Republicans and 42 Democrats ran for nominations. Incumbent Board Chairman Wesley Schwengel, a Republican, was renominated to the board from his district.

ROBERT E. POLL, of Champaign, and Stanley Iles, Urbana, both incumbents, were dropped from the ballot in their districts in races that included at least three other incumbent Republicans seeking three ballot positions.

High vote-getter in the county was Democrat Jeanne-Marie Wyld, wife of a physics professor at the University of Illinois, who polled 670 votes in a district dominated by university people. In other Democratic areas, generally urban, the percentage of voter turnout was light compared to rural Republican areas.

In Adams County, where 40 county board seats were reduced to 28, one Republican and two Democrat incumbents lost renomination bids in a field of 63 candidates. Thirty incumbents sought renomination from among 35 Republicans and 28 Democrats.

DEMOCRAT Charles H. Bickhan, 59, a retired state employee and a 23-year veteran board member, came in last of five candidates in his district vying for four positions on the ballot. Bickhan lives in Quincy.

Ralph E. Pieper, 56, a Columbus construction worker and board member since 1969, came in last of five in his rural district, as did eight-year board member Walter G. Dinklage, 63, a Republican from Gilmer Township.

Republican-dominated DuPage County lost nine Republican incumbents and 19 others won renomination. The board was cut from 31 members to 25. Incumbent Republican Board Chairman Gerald R. Weeks won renomination over Lester R. Swales by more than 4,000 votes. Swales, however, an incumbent board member, won renomination to the board from his home district.

DuPage Republicans who lost renomination bids were James H. Kohler, George D. Enzenbacher, R. R. Rickson, William Swegler, Elmer Hoffman, Donald J. Wall, Patrick Riedy, Edmund J. Rmuzieka and George Pratt.

Bakalis' Office To Request Less Money This Year

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Superintendent of Public Instruction Michael J. Bakalis said Wednesday he will ask the legislature for $260,200 less to run his office in fiscal 1973 than he requested for the current fiscal year.

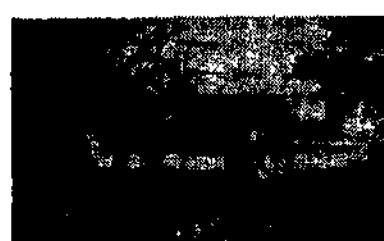

Bakalis said he will seek an office operating budget of $11,528,800 for next year, $260,200 below his $11,789,000 request for fiscal 1972.

A spokesman for Bakalis said requests were reduced chiefly in two areas — those for contractual services and office supplies. Last year, Bakalis' first as Illinois' chief education officer, he sought $164,000 less to run the superintendent's office than had been spent the year before.
